Swastika Rides To Rebel Conference

JAPS DEFY BRITAIN IN NAVY GUNS

TOKYO, March 27—The Japanese government officially declined today to accept a two-power limitation in naval gun calibres without a simultaneous reduction in naval tonnages by the other great sea powers, the United States and Great Britain. Japan thus held herself free to construct guns of any size.

The Japanese position, outlined in a note handed by foreign minister Naotake Sato to the British ambassador, Sir Robert Clive, was that quantitative and qualitative limitations could be considered only in conjunction.

The note refused to accept Britain's request that naval armaments, free from the restraints of the now-dead Washington and London naval treaties, be limited to 14-inch guns.

When the 1922 Washington treaty was negotiated Japan possessed two dreadnoughts equipped with 10 16-inch guns each—the 39,000-ton Kaga and the 42-000-ton Akagi. Under the treaty terms the two were dismantled and converted into airplane carriers.

Some naval observers believed Japan might now go further than her previous armament strength and construct battleships of 50,000 tons or more capable of carrying 18-inch weapons. Construction of such superships was believed feasible under Japan's five-year naval budget.

Both the London and Washington naval agreements, denounced by Japan Dec. 27, 1934, expired at midnight last Dec. 31. The 1936 London agreement between Great Britain, the United States and France gave Japan until April 1 to indicate whether she would limit battleship armaments to 14-inch guns as an admiralty spokesman indicated Britain would do.

Two United States battleships, Jane's Fighting Ships Gazeteer reported at the beginning of the year, will carry 16-inch guns and this automatically gives Britain and France the right to increase gun calibres similarly if they wish.

TAMARA DESNI

attractive Russian actress who recently married Bruce Seton, brother of Sir Alexander Seton, was awarded starring honors for her work in "Fire Over England." The British-made film was awarded the League of Nations gold medal. Miss Desni is pictured in costume for her role of Elena in the Elizabethan film.

Franco's Troops Routed

MADRID, March 27.—Insurgent air raiders bombed Alcala De Henares, 20 miles east of here today. The city is a strategic point on the road to the northeastern Guadalajara front. Reports of the attack were brought to Madrid by eye witnesses unable to give the extent of casualties or damage. The attack was staged as government guns were reported blasting at Naval Peral De Pinares and driving on the important insurgent stronghold of Avila, 50 miles west of Madrid and slightly north.

The bombs struck an off-chord for Madrid's songs of victory based on recent successes in Guadalajara province and near Pozoblanco on the southern front.

The populace felt that the tide of war had been turned.

Joyful "milicianos" sang and shouted a joyous refrain in the city's bars and cafes—on Easter leave—while their comrades on the western front were reported to have established advanced outposts in the drive toward Avila.

Newspapers blazoned claims that Franco's long weeks of pressure on the government stronghold at Pozoblanco, 150 miles south of Madrid, had been cracked in a mass rout of his troops.

The atmosphere in Madrid contrasted sharply with the tenseness of a little over a fortnight ago when Franco's legions—the government called them an Italian army of 30,000—were rolling down through Guadalajara province, threatening to close the last open segment of the ring of siege lines about Madrid.

That drive was halted before when it had reached a point about 40 miles northeast of the city and a counter-offensive hurled the Fascist war machine back to a line about 60 miles away. Madrid's situation was the best since the Fascists arrived at the capital's gates a little over 4½ months ago.

Until 15 days ago the war, for Madrid, was a dogged and discouraging defence. Today the spirit of offensive warfare seemed to have been infused in both Madrid's civil population and her military defenders.

Franco Claims Recovery In Battle

WITH GENERAL FRANCO'S SPANISH INSURGENTS ON THE CORDOBA FRONT, March 27—The southern insurgent armies of General Gonzalo Queipo D Llano drove over the western heights of the Sierra Morenas today to smash at government lines defending the mineral lands of Jaen province.

Striking straight at the Pozoblanco sector, where the government has launched a series of recent counter-attacks, De Llano's men won control of the mountain watershed.

The attack was like that at coastal Malaga—hard riding columns of cavalry driving through mountain passes; while planes ahead rained bombs on government supply trains and rail and road communication lines.

Officers insisted the previous government attack had failed despite the use of tanks.

JAPAN'S CHIEF LEADERS SHUN CHINA AFFAIRS

Foremost Businessmen Say Economic Capture Is Failure

TOKYO, March 27.—A council of some of Japan's foremost businessmen, bankers, economists and military leaders, called by the Tokyo Chamber of Commerce, decided today the Japanese economic mission to China had failed.

They concluded:

Japan's attitude toward China has undergone marked change but if it is extended it may give China the impression Japan was wrong in her previous treatment of her big continental neighbor.

It is true that Japan's North China policy which is one of the principal stumbling blocks for Japan's success has many deplorable points which should be corrected. Japan should try to remove China's misunderstanding she intends to exploit North China.

It is useless at this time for Japan to push her North China aims because that only would increase China's misunderstanding. Japan's best policy toward China is one of watchful waiting, but adopt a firm policy.

British economic activity in South and Central China is being intensified and must be closely watched.

Easter Bells Peal As World Trembles In Balance Of War

By The Associated Press

Church bells throughout the Christian world pealed today the joyous tidings of the risen Christ—but to a world torn by war, the thought of war and by religious conflict.

Christ, on the way to his death on the cross, spoke to his disciples of "wars and rumors of wars," of brother that "shall betray the brother," of censure for the church.

And today:

Nations everywhere speeded the pace of armaments.

Civil conflict gripped Spain, brother against brother.

Catholic and Protestant alike engaged in controversy with Nazi Germany over the question of religious freedom.

The Jew, in Poland, in Germany and elsewhere trod an uneasy path. In the Holy Land of Palestine there was unrest.

Insurgent Pilot Is Shot Dead When He Uses Parachute

By JOHN LLOYD
Associated Press Foreign Staff

GUADALAJARA, Spain, March 27.—Combatants on the Guadalajara front watched a spectacular air drama today—a drama in which an insurgent pilot was shot dead as he parachuted to the ground by an airman who, government officers said, was one of his fellows.

His body fell inside government lines and officers declared papers found in his pockets indicated he was a German.

The victim was the pilot of one of a score of insurgent pursuit planes protecting bombers as they flew over government-occupied territory in this sector northeast of Madrid.

A government fighting squadron forced the pursuit craft into combat while the bombers fled.

Ground troops, gazing fascinated at the scene, saw an insurgent plane go into a sudden spin under the fire of its opponent.

The pilot bailed out and drifted down slowly while his plane spun to earth.

Quickly another plane separated itself from combat and began spiralling around the parachute jumper, spitting machine gun fire. When its proximity to the ground endangered the plane, the pilot pointed its nose upward and climbed back to the fray. Soon the insurgents' ships sped off over their own lines.

Government soldiers found the jumper's body riddled with bullets.

Officers said the pilot who fired at him evidently mistook him for a government airman. They asserted no government flier was responsible for the act.

HOPES RISE AS RAIL MEN RESUME TALK

Conference is Resumed in Montreal This Morning —Chase Mum

OTTAWA, March 27—Labor Minister Norman Rogers succeeded today in inducing representatives of the railways and the railroad unions to resume direct wage negotiations at once, breaking the deadlock which choked off their wage negotiations last Wednesday. Direct negotiations were resumed in Montreal today.

Yesterday the minister met separately the union representatives and the presidents of the railway companies, all of whom had come to Ottawa at the minister's invitation in an effort to break the deadlock.

SEES LABOR MEN

Mr. Rogers conferred first for a considerable time with representatives of the 17 unions concerned. After that, he conferred with S. J. Hungerford, president of Canadian National Railways, and Sir Edward Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The union spokesman then attended a second conference with Mr. Rogers about four p.m. which terminated in half an hour with the

25 CANADIANS HELD AS THEY RUN BLOCKADE

Search of Coasting Steamer Reveals Presence of "Volunteers"

PORT VENDRES, France, March 27—Twenty-five would-be volunteers in the Spanish civil war, who claimed to be Canadians, were held here today after they attempted to run the international non-intervention blockade of the Spanish coast.

Despite their claim to Canadian identity, port officials believed many of them came from other countries.

The coastguard cutter Le Cerbere, patrolling the northern Mediterranean coast of Spain, stopped the steamer Sans Pareil off Cape Bear, near the Spanish frontier this morning.

An officer of the Sans Pareil said the ship belonged to A. M. Gaudel of Valras, in the Henault department of France, and was going to Cerbere to take on a cargo of furniture.

The patrol agents were suspicious, however, and insisted on searching the Sans Pareil. Gaudel, who was aboard, then admitted he was attempting to smuggle 25 men into Spain.

The ship was ordered to proceed to Port Cendres, where the would-be volunteers told the authorities they were Canadians. Gaudel and his crew were placed under surveillance and the Sans Pareil was held by maritime authorities pending further investigation.

British Decline Girls As Gift In Ambush Death

NEW DELHI, March 27—British military authorities today turned down an offer of two Waziristan maidens, a blood ransom of fifty rupees and a war elephant offered in expiation for the slaying of a British officer on the northwest frontier. The two maidens were valued in the offer at $50 each.

The officer, Lieutenant M. R. N. Beatty, was killed in ambush and a punitive expedition was sent against the tribe responsible for his death. The British refused the blood ransom offer, the most severe penalty according to native tradition, and asked for the three men who killed Beatty.

The chieftain who made the offer protested that it would not be just "to deliver to death three brave men for an ambush that succeeded so well." He was given until tonight to reconsider.

LABOR PARTY KEEPS IDENTITY

CALGARY, March 27.—Alberta branch of the Canadian Labor Party will maintain its identity. By unanimous vote the annual convention at a closed meeting yesterday decided not to submerge into the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation.

Delegates voted to continue support of the C.C.F. Fred J. White was elected president for the coming year.

Man's Head Found: No Sign Of Torso

TORONTO, March 27. — Police today investigated the finding of an elderly man's head in the bed of a small creek at Pine Grove, about 15 miles north of Toronto. A farm hand found the head and a cap but there was no sign of a torso.

HOPE WANING IN SEARCH FOR DUCHESS, PLANE

WOBURN, England, March 27.—All hope virtually abandoned, Flight Lieut. R. C. Preston, personal pilot of the Duchess of Bedford, today appealed to Easter weekend excursionists to join in the search for the 71-year-old "Flying Duchess" who disappeared last Monday.

Preston and other leaders of searching parties that have combed England for five days refused to give up a last hope the Duchess or the wreckage of her plane would be found.

DINO GRANDI DRAWS HORNS OVER TROOPS

ROME, March 27. — Informed Italian sources said today that Count Dino Grandi, Rome's ambassador to London, has assured Great Britain that Italy does not intend to send more volunteers to the Spanish civil war.

The authoritative statement was qualified in government circles to embrace this statement: "Unless other nations start to send volunteers again."

Lindy And Mate Returning Home

BARHEIN ISLANDS, Persian Gulf, March 27.—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, returning from a flight to India, took off today for Iraq after an overnight stay on these oil-producing islands.

INDIA'S BASIC LAW RUNNING INTO BIG SNAGS

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, March 27—India's new constitution is running into snags.

B. C. Kher, leader of the congress party and first premier-designate for Bombay province, has declined to form a government. Kher issued a statement saying the governor of Bombay, Lord Brabourne, had declined to give the assurance contemplated in a resolution passed by the all-India congress committee. Therefore Kher declined to form a ministry.

WHEAT PRICES SPURT AGAIN

WINNIPEG, March 27.—Wheat prices shot upward on today's short session of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange and ended 3½ to 1⅞ cents higher than Thursday's close to set new seasonal and seven-year highs. Flax gained the full five-cent fluctuation limit. May wheat futures finished at $1.47⅛, July at $1.43⅛-⅝ and October at $1.29¼-⅜.

Charge Highway Signs Necessary

TORONTO, March 27.—Ontario legislature's raising the motor vehicle speed limit to 50 miles an hour in the country and 30 miles an hour in towns and cities will necessitate changing of thousands of highway signs in the province.

Drinker, 108, Dies, Sorry He Didn't Smoke

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—Dead at 108, Levi Altshuler left behind today the regret that he had waited until he was seventy-four to take up smoking.

"I was never a teetotaler," once said the water-front merchant, whose first customers were the gold rush men of '49, "but always drank good liquor and drank it in moderation. I didn't take up smoking until I retired (in 1906), but I'm sorry about that. I missed a lot of good smoking."

His death yesterday was caused by pneumonia, which recalled that he recovered from an attack of it when he was 105.

"But after that I got a little lazy," he confided not long before his death. "I cut down on my walks and decided it was time to begin taking it easy."

Jobs Showing Increase Over March In 1936

OTTAWA, March 27.—Industrial employment on March 1 showed a substantial increase over the corresponding date last year, but was considerably below the figures of the previous month, according to a report issued today by the dominion bureau of statistics.

Returns from 9,988 firms showed 975,862 were at work on March 1, while reports from 9,411 employers on March 1, 1936, showed 931,959 workers on their payrolls. On Feb. 1 this year 987,879 were employed.

Silent Film Star Weds Australian

HOLLYWOOD, March 27—Claire Adams, film star of the silent days, and Donald Selbie MacKinnon of Melbourne, Australia, have been married in London, England, her relatives said today.

Noted Sculptor Dies

LONDON, March 27—Henry Pegram, 74 noted British sculptor, died today.

PRESS FREEDOM COMING TO END IN HITLER RULE

BERLIN, March 27.—A campaign to abolish newspaper freedom as a check to "the international press terror" was launched today by Germany's controlled press, under the direction of Wilhelm Weiss, president of the National Journalists' Association.

In a special edition of the newspaper "12 Uhr Blatt," which published contributions from 20 European editors, Weiss declared "the real revolutionaries of European press reform no longer adhere to the principal of freedom of the press. This freedom is, in reality, defended only by reactionaries of a past epoch."

"Nazi Germany has made it impossible for the German press to slander foreign nations or incite their leaders," declared the newspaper, without mentioning specific incidents.

ARMS WORKERS GO ON STRIKE

GLASGOW, March 27.—Demanding a two-cent-an-hour wage increase, 2,000 armament workers on the government's $7,500,000,000 defence program went on strike today.

The men are employed in the engineering department of the Parkhead forge of William Beardmore Company which is also making castings for the sister ship of the Queen Mary.

Progress Noted In Settlement Of Chrysler Strike

CHICAGO, March 27.—Reports of progress in negotiations to end the Chrysler Motor Corporation strike were a cheerful eastern greeting to 80,000 idle automotive workers today.

Governor Murphy's statement that "not a great deal" separated opposing forces brightened the Detroit workers' prospects of getting back to jobs they left almost three weeks ago.

Scotland Wins

WALES, March 27.—Scotland defeated Wales 2-0 in an amateur international football match played here today.

Moslem Gals Discard Veils, But Timidly

TIRANA, Albania, March 27.—Shopkeepers looked for sales of lipstick and rouge to triple today when the law prohibiting Mohammedan veils became effective.

Here and there was a timid blush as the Albanian girls first showed their faces in public; others joined in jubilant burning of the veils as a symbol of their new freedom.

King Zog sponsored the law as part of a social reform program for his tiny nation.

NOTED CRICKETER IS SHOT DEAD

LONDON, March 27. — Albert Relf, 62, noted Sussex cricketer earlier in the century, was found shot dead today in the cricket pavilion at Wellington College in Berkshire. One of the leading professionals in England 30 years ago, Relf was cricket coach at the college.

General Electric Increases Wages $7,000,000 Yearly

SCHENECTADY, N.Y., March 27.—The General Electric Company has announced pay increases which it estimates will amount to $7,000,000 annually to employees in all its plants, effective April 1.

C. P. Engineer Dies, Hand On Throttle

SUDBURY, Ont., March 27. — Stricken while on the seat of his engine cab, E. A. Williams, 57, Northern Ontario Railway engineer, died with his hand on the throttle yesterday two miles west of Markstay.

He was operating a C.P.R. extra engine from Sudbury to Markstay. The engine made the remainder of the trip under guidance of Fireman William Antler.

Infant Nearly Chokes On Doll

HARTFORD, Conn., March 27. — Seven-months-old Michael Hopkins, Jr., nearly choked to death yesterday when a china doll, more than two inches long, became lodged in his throat. The doll was removed.

TORONTO SOLONS DEVELOP MUCH NEW LEGISLATION

TORONTO, March 27.—The third session of Ontario's 19th legislature which closed on the eve of Good Friday produced a sizeable amount of scheduled and unexpected legislation.

The session began January 19, paused three weeks while Premier Hepburn regained his health in the south, and came to an end five hours short of Good Friday.

Out of the main spout of the legislative mill came:

Repeal of legislation that allotted to Separate schools a greater share of corporation taxes.

Minimum Wage Act for male workers.

Bill hoisting Ontario's speed limit from 35 to 50 miles an hour.

Legislation to prevent court action against the Ontario Hydro Commission as a result of cancellation of power contracts.

Wider powers for the Ontario Securities Commission to undertake inquiries.

Appointment of Percy D. Wilson, Ontario's official guardian of minors, to the board of guardians for the Dionne Quintuplets. He replaced Hon. David A. Croll, minister of labor and welfare, who resigned from the board.

POPE DELIVERS MEXICO APPEAL

VATICAN CITY, March 27.—Pope Pius XI, in an Easter-eve Encyclical letter, appealed today to Mexico's clergy and laity for "a greater intensification of the Christian life" so as to have "true peace and prosperity."

The Pope said that "in every country the secret and guarantee for true peace and prosperity's Christian life is carried on in its multiple works."

Search Reveals $50,000 Lost Gold

LYON, France, March 27—Police searchers have recovered $50,000 in gold bullion carried by the Imperial Airways airliner Capricornus which crashed near here Wednesday, killing five, it was announced today.

Newspaper Banned

ROME, March 27.—The New York Herald-Tribune was banned from Italy today for an indefinite period.

No Bunnies, No Rabbit Eggs For 5 Dionne Babes

CALLANDER, Ont., March 27—Easter Sunday will be red letter day in the lives of Annette, Cecile, Emilie, Marie and Yvonne—the Dionne quintuplets, who will be exactly two months short of their third year tomorrow.

Dr. A. R. Dafoe, their physician, declared firmly today that there will be no Easter parade in the quints' nursery. If the weather is pleasant and mild tomorrow as it is today, the little sisters will go outdoors for their usual romp but there will be no special Easter finery. It is altogether likely that this will be a bunnyless Easter for the younger Dionnes. And certainly there will be no hard-boiled eggs, colored or uncolored.

The Easter costumes and toy bunnies the quints posed with for the newspaper photographers all were taken away a couple of weeks ago.

Back At Work

LONDON, March 27.—Most of the strikers in rubber plantations and coal mines in the Selongor region, Straits Settlements, were back at work today.

CATHOLIC CHURCH SPLIT IN SPAIN CIVIL WAR

RELIGIOUS ISSUE IS SECOND ONLY TO RED BAITING

(This is an uncensored article, mailed from Madrid by George Seldes, celebrated war correspondent, who made a tour of the Loyalist trenches in early February, observing both the military and political situation at first hand. A veteran war correspondent and author of several important books on foreign affairs, Mr. Seldes has turned up some startling facts, hitherto unpublished, and he draws significant conclusions.—EDITOR.)

By GEORGE SELDES

MADRID, March 26.—(Uncensored)—Next to red-baiting, the chief weapon of the enemies of the Spanish Republic is the religious issue. Throughout Europe, the church question is employed to inflame men and women. The propaganda goes so far as to make Franco's Moors, who murdered the wounded, the doctors and the nurses in Toledo, the vanguard of a twentieth century Christian crusade.

The religious question in Spain must be discussed. The fact that it is controversial and that many newspapers prefer to ignore it has been a great aid to the pro-Franco press of Europe, which has received millions of pesetas of Fascist money from Primo de Rivera's time until today.

OFFERS IMPARTIAL REPORT

And since I once wrote a history of the Vatican which was praised by both Protestant and Catholic leaders in four countries, including Spain, and was distributed by the Catholic Book Club in New York, I must ask readers to believe that the statements which follow are made without prejudice but in the interests of a clearer understanding of the situation.

The first and most obvious fact of all is that the Catholic Church of a large part of Spain, the Catholic Church of the autonomous Basque Republic, chose to defend the Madrid government instead of its Fascist attackers.

The fact that the President of the Republic, and many Cabinet members and high officials are devout religionists cannot be overlooked. There are only some 35,000 non-Catholics among the more than twenty millions who inhabit Spain, and the present civil war is not the first but the tenth or twentieth time in a century that there have been anti-clerical—but not anti-Christian—acts of violence.

In France, another Catholic country where there is wide anti-clericalism, this subject is complicated but in America, where there is no anti-clericalism, it is of course a mystery.

PRIESTS SLAIN BY FRANCO

The fact that priests have been murdered by Franco's armies is never admitted in the campaign against Christian Spain. Another important fact is that whatever excesses occurred on the government side were during the early days of the revolution and against the will of the government, whereas the executions of churchmen by Franco are officially confirmed by government documents—are responsible action of an organization, not irresponsible outbursts of individuals or mobs. That fact is suppressed by Franco.

The fact that the Basque Catholics chose to side with the coalition of middle-class and working class Spain against the landed proprietors, the grandees, the landowners and the mine owners who financed the Fascist rebellion, proves conclusively that the church is divided and no blanket statements can therefore be made about it.

The church, therefore, is in the position of the Jews in Germany and France in the World War, fighting on all fronts, brothers against brothers.

In Bilbao, the Church of San Vincente, every Sunday, mass follows mass owing to the great crowds. At 9 o'clock a battalion of loyalist soldiers, with its officers, attends mass. It is significant that whereas in Catalonia there is a Durruti and Vanzetti Battalion, in Bilbao there is the Battalion, in Bilbao there is the ing for the republic.

Throughout the Basque anti-Fascist front the priests accompany each battalion. But they are not armed, and they do not fight. They do exactly what my friend Father Duffy did in the World War: they are the spiritual advisers, the chaplains.

CATHOLICS IN GOVERNMENT

The provisional Basque government consists of four Catholics, three Socialists, one Communist, one Left Republican, one Republican Union and one Left National Action Party member. There are no reactionaries, no Fascists. The government is much the same as the Valencia coalition, except that the Catholics are present as a national party in Bilbao, whereas in Valencia there are Catholics in the government, including the president of the republic. Of course, the official Catholic political party of Gil Robles and Juan March is financing Fascism.

President Antonio de Aguirree of the Basque Republic is an ardent Catholic, states: "It is of importance that we Catholics take our part against Fascism just because we are true Christians. Christ never preached the use of force, and those who lodge our force against the people are criminals."

Among the many civilians whom Franco's Fascist forces have shot and hanged there are hundreds of intellectual and spiritual leaders. The Government is preparing documentary lists of them. The first contains the names of liberals, Free Masons and priests "who have been shot without trial and solely for their anti-Fascist sympathies by the insurgents." The majority of these 105 men, the official statement says, were firm adversaries of Communism."

At Guipuzcoa the priests shot were:

Don Hilario Olazaran de Lizarra, Don Jose Pena Garicano, Don Jose de Sarasola, Don Jorge de Iturri-Castillo and Don Jose de Marquiegui y Olazabal. Other priests who have been killed by the rebels are: Don Joaquin Arin, Don Leonardo Guridi, Don Martin de Lecuona, Don Alejandro de Mendicute, Don Celest de Oniandia.

At El Ferrol the Catholic and liberal Rear Admiral D. Antonio Azarola Gresillon was shot. In Granada two Protestant priests, Father Garcia Fernandez and Father Salvador Iniguez, were executed. I have the complete list of names and towns.)

No one in Republican Spain denies that some excesses have been destroyed. Going from city to city I saw hundreds of churches standing or burned. Later I found three of four which were destroyed. All but one figured in the first days of the Fighting as munition depots or fortresses.

SUMMARIZES CHURCH DESTRUCTION

When the British church delegation came to Spain I compared notes with its head, the Dean of Chichester, and talked to the seven other noted members. The Dean of Chichester did not want his findings stated before his return to England, but I am at liberty to say now that we agreed on the following summary of he church situation:

1. Totally destroyed: very few, mostly the scene of fighting.

2. Fired, masonry damaged perhaps irreparably; few.

3. Contents, images, woodwork, pews, etc., burned but edifice practically undamaged: the large majority.

4. Untouched: few in Barcelona area, many in countryside, all in the Basque country.

Not only has the Republican Spanish Government had nothing to do with excesses against the churches, but it has on the other hand done everything to protect the buildings and the works of art.

411 WRECKED BEFORE WAR

It is also a fact that Gil Robles, the Basque Republic an ardent Catholic, states: "It is of importance that we Catholics take our part against Fascism just because we are true Christians. Christ never preached the use of force, and those who lodge our force against the people are criminals."

Among the many civilians whom Franco's Fascist forces have shot and hanged there are hundreds of intellectual and spiritual leaders. The Government is preparing documentary lists of them. ## How Rebels Wage Triple Attack

The triple battleground around besieged Madrid is shown on the above map as Rebel leaders spent three armies forward in the fiercest attack of the war. The north-eastern army battled on a wide front, driving Rebels from small towns and sending the tank-equipped spearhead toward Guadalajara and Alcala, capture of which meant cutting off highway communication with Valencia and completely isolating Loyalists in the capital. Other Nationalist attacks centered at El Pardo and Vaciamadrid. Heavy black line indicates Rebel front, dotted areas the fiercest fighting. Area shown on larger map is indicated by dotted lines on map of Spain at upper right.

Winter Sports Spanish Style

Americans and Canadians, too, often go miles out of their way to find snowy slopes on which to try their skis, but in Spain winter sports have been made a grim business by the civil war. Garbed in white ski-suit uniforms, a company of mountain troops lie in a snow bank in the Granada sector, skis attached to their boots, and draw a bead on enemy forces who occupy a nearby hill. This is something new in modern warfare for any nation to attempt and would be of great assistance if a retreat signal happened to be sounded and the way to safety was down hill. A "Slalom" of Spanish troops would certainly be a sight worth going miles to see.

Spring Styles On Spanish Front

The natty appearance of Spanish rebel troops is an amazing contrast to the rag-tag revolutionaries of tradition. The Moors (left) who comprise Insurgent General Francisco Franco's personal guard are picturesque in white turbans and robes. Those at right look more like soldiers on dress parade than victorious fighters entering captured Malaga. Their multi-colored, heavily braided jackets, shining boots and steel helmets indicate how well the revolution is financed.

Many Attend Rites For Mrs. Stevens

SYLVAN LAKE, March 27—Many attended the funeral of Mrs. R. S. Stevens, wife of Rev. R. S. Stevens, here last Saturday. Service was conducted by Rev Hugh Jack, assisted by A. M. Steele, student pastor, of Sylvan Lake and Rev. Mr. Campbell of Benalto. The Union Sunday School also held a memorial service for Mrs. Stevens, who was for seven years teacher of the intermediate girls' class.

Community Club Is Formed At Didsbury

DIDSBURY, March 27.—A popular community enterprise has been formed in this district, sponsored by the business men of the town and already numbers almost one hundred paid-up members.

It is called The Twentieth Century Club, and following are the chief officers: President, Dave Jenkins; vice president, Dorothy Hugel; secretary, Doris Freisen; treasurer, Charles Geiger. The program committee is composed of Ruby Sproule, Tom Royds and Bill Ross. The club has rented rooms and gymnasium.

W. F. Jersey Again Blindman Reeve

RIMBEY, March 27.—At the reorganization meeting of the municipal district of Blindman, held in Rimbey, March 13, W. F. Jersey was returned as reeve for the year and Jerome Donnelly as deputy reeve for the first six months of the year. Dr. J. N. C. Byers was appointed medical health officer. Municipal mill rate will remain at 12, as last year, and school mill rates varied from 9 to 30, according to the district.

B.S.M. Dale Goes To Coronation

RED DEER, March 27—Battery Sergeant-Major Ronald Dale, of the 78th Field Battery, R.C.A. of Red Deer has been appointed to the Alberta militia forces to go to the Coronation.

B. S. M. Dale has been a member of the 78th Battery for the past ten years and during that time has taken a deep interest in the activities. He holds certificates as Sergeant and Battery Sergeant-Major, after taking training at the Royal School of Artillery, at Winnipeg. In addition he holds a first class signalling certificate.

BUY NEW RANCH

BITTERN LAKE, March 27—Connelly and sons have leased the Freeman ranch and will transfer their herd of purebred Hereford cattle from Rimbey to this place.

Charles Lonnie has bought the house recently occupied by A. Carlson and has engaged William Remsel to move it to his farm south of the village.

Big Shipments Of Baled Hay

RIMBEY, March 27—Large shipments of baled hay have been leaving Rimbey district by rail and by truck during the past few weeks. Howard Jordan, a farmer east of town, shipped 400 tons, purchased by him for the Hall Feed Company, Calgary, the Union Feed Company, Calgary, and for Fred Watts, grain buyer at Champion. Joseph Fugine, a buyer from Lacombe shipped 10 cars by C.P.R. from Rimbey. The hay crop was good in this valley.

Home At Didsbury Is Prey Of Flames

DIDSBURY, March 27.—The residence of Fred Kastrup in East Didsbury was completely destroyed by fire at six o'clock Monday morning. Mr. Kastrup, a butcher, had arisen to start the kitchen fire and shortly after his leaving to go to his work the house caught afire and the alarm was given by Moses Good, a neighbor. Little of the occupants' furniture was saved, and a sum of money in cash was also burned. The house is owned by A. A. Perrin, and it is understood that the loss was mostly covered by insurance.

Lady Tweedsmuir Books At Trochu

TROCHU, March 27.—Up to the present, about 1400 books have been received for the Lady Tweedsmuir circulating library, sponsored by the Alberta Women's Institutes. The books are chiefly in English but a number are in French and German.

HOME IS BURNED

BITTERN LAKE, March 27.—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the farm home of Ben Zilkie Tuesday. Mr. Zilkie's car, which was standing near the residence, also was destroyed.

LODGE CHIEF VISITS

RED DEER, March 27.—On Tuesday evening at the regular meeting of Keystone Chapter No. 12, R.A.M. the Grand First Principal of the province, M. Ex. Comp. H. Sendin, from Edmonton, paid an official visit to the chapter. A number of grand lodge officers accompanied him. An informal social gathering was held after the meeting.

INDIANS FELTED

RIMBEY, March 27—Four Indians were arrested on 20 counts by a Royal Canadian Mounted Police officer, following a complaint that they had been trapping muskrats in a park area on Gull lake. They were Poul Oskelomin, Sam Clubley, Pierre Souleaux and Narcis Iwastin.

"Contact" eye glasses were invented in 1927, by a man named Herschel, who cast them from a gelatine negative.

BOMBINGS IN ANTI-JEWISH WARSAW FEUD

Coffee Houses Still In Strikers' Hands—Furs Destroyed

WARSAW, Poland, March 27—A wave of anti-Semitic agitation, accompanied by bombings that caused considerable property damage, swept over strike-beset Poland Friday.

The strikers — approximately 100,000 in number—demanded higher wages to meet rising living costs. In many cases the walkouts were against Jewish employers.

FURS DESTROYED

On incendiary bomb was hurled at a Jewish shop at the city of Poznan. Furs valued at $20,000 were destroyed. A passerby was injured when a Jewish textile shop was bombed at Grudziadz.

In Warsaw Jewish shop signs were smeared. Striking strikers who took over a metal factory here in February continued to hold their posts, while the city's newest coffee houses remained in the hands of strikers who have occupied them for a week.

CANNOT TRADE

Widespread Jewish boycotts hampered trade and brought protests from Jewish business men. They cited instances in various towns, including Ketowice, where trading licenses have been refused Jews.

Hundreds of strikes were underway in the nation, with trouble impending in the textile mills of the Bialystok district. Workers there demand a 30-per cent increase in wages.

Gold Transferred

WASHINGTON, March 27. Treasury officials reported today the seventh transfer of gold bullion from the New York assay office was enroute today to the United States government's steel and granite depository of Fort Knox, Ky.

FIRST AID CLASS

RIMBEY, March 27—A class in St. John's Ambulance first aid work was organized at Rimbey. Oliver Massing was chosen president and M. B. Tuckey, as secretary. Dr. J. N. C. Byers will give instruction. There are 20 members.

TOSCANINI WINS OVER BRITISH DOWN BEAT

LONDON, March 27.—The British Broadcasting Corporation has given up an attempt to cut down Conductor Arturo Toscanini's concert fee; but even at that they will pay him $1,500 less than he will receive for a United States broadcast concert.

Toscanini told B.B.C. that $2,500 per concert was his bottom fee. Last year the corporation tried to persuade him to take less and when he refused the concerts were not given.

This year the corporation felt the Coronation justified engaging the 70-year-old Italian at his own terms. So they raised $13,000 to get Toscanini for six concerts. In the United States he will receive $40 000 for 10 concerts.

RECEIVES $7,593.40 FOR $5,000 POLICY

A policyholder who insured with The Mutual Life of Canada for $5,000 in 1912 on the "Endowment in 25 Years" Plan, is receiving a cheque in 1937 for $7,593.40. The annual payments to the Company totalled $5,006.25, so that his gain is $2,587.15 on the transaction. Of course, he has received life insurance protection for the past 25 years.

Since The Mutual Life was first organized 67 years ago, in addition to providing protection, over $64,000,000 has been paid to policyholders in dividends alone.

It is results such as these that have earned for The Mutual Life of Canada the name of "The Policyholders' Company." The policyholders have always owned the Company and all the surplus earnings. The policyholders' interests have been first and foremost. Security of principal, good returns to policyholders and prompt payment of all claims have characterized the company's activities.

You are invited to become a policyholder and part-owner of this Mutual Company.

HUDSON MOTOR CAR DEALERS GATHER HERE

Plan Spring Sales Drive For Hudson and Terraplane Autos

With a complete complement of Hudson-Terraplane sales representatives in this area gathered at a special meeting at the Macdonald hotel last night, plans were presented for one of the most comprehensive spring sales drives in the history of Hudson Motors of Canada Limited. This includes the holding, for the first time, of a number of "salesmanship seminars" in nearly a score of key points across Canada and it will take at least six weeks to complete the sessions.

OFFICIALS PARTICIPATE

Officials and sales executives of the company are actively participating in this series of meetings, with Sidney Allen, district manager for the western provinces, supervising the special sales courses.

Much enthusiasm was aroused here last night when a telegram from Ross Mackinnon, vice president and general sales manager of Hudson Motors of Canada Limited was read to the assembly. This stated that shipments of the new 1937 models up to February 15th showed an increase of 45.2 per cent over the figures for the corresponding period of 1936. The message also reported that heavy production schedules had been advanced and were being maintained at the Detroit plant in anticipation of continued early spring buying and to insure that dealers will have adequate stocks of all models on hand to avoid delay in delivering the new cars.

BIG INCREASE

"There has been over 39 per cent more Hudson and Terraplane cars delivered to owners since the first of 1937 than during the same period last year," Mr. Mackinnon's message continued. "Shipments during the month of January, 1937, were up 216 per cent over the shipments made in January last year. Orders for weekly delivery have shown a steady increase for each week of 1937, with advance orders for the week of March 8 being heaviest to date."

With Sidney Allen conducting the "sales school," examples were presented of the proper methods of meeting or prospects, his explanations being supplemented by the use of special training charts and three sound-slide films which accentuated specific selling points. Details of a nationally-indorsed used car plan and the advertising campaign to be used during the ensuing months to support the selling efforts of the Hudson-Terraplane sales organization were also presented by Mr. Allen.

Come Eleven Babe, Proves Old Cry

HALIFAX, March 27.—"Shootin' crap" isn't, apparently, new. A provincial museum report tabled in the Nova Scotia legislature mentioned nine dice, made by Mic Mac Indians and believed to be more than 150 years old. The Indians used the dice for a game they called "Wobonakum," in which eight tubes were thrown on a blanket, the highest number winning the "pot."

'Peg Workers Want Wages Restored

WINNIPEG, March 27.—Winnipeg civic employees are seeking restoration of wage cuts made in 1932 and unless the demands are met Hydro linemen and underground workers will apply for a board of arbitration, the civic legislation committee was informed yesterday.

Easy Trapping

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., March 27.—It wasn't much trouble for B. Mitchell to catch a fox. Out for a walk, Mitchell encountered a fox, which got so excited it wound up in a wire fence and stuck there. Mitchell took it home.

Pedestrians Must Obey Signal Lights

Flouting of signal lights by pedestrians endangers traffic on busy city streets and should constantly be avoided, runs the warning issued Saturday by the Junior Chamber of Commerce Safety committee.

"City police officers often observe passengers leaving eastbound street cars at 101 street and Jasper to dash to the north side of Jasper avenue instead of the south where they could cross with the green light," the committee statement declares.

"This is very serious and dangerous and police officials inform us they are going to warn people for a day or so and then commence prosecutions against jay walkers from street cars and also those not observing the lights."

U.S. URGED TO TERMINATE SIT DOWN STRIKES

Harvard President in Wire Calls it Armed Insurrection

CHICAGO, March 27.—Governor Murphy of Michigan strove for settlement of the United States major Labor dispute today while a demand for governmental action to end "sit-down" strikers reached the Senate.

The governor emerged from prolonged conferences with Walter P. Chrysler and John L. Lewis, with word he was "optimistic and hopeful" peace would be attained.

MANY INVOLVED

Murphy was represented as believing termination of the 19-day strike in the Chrysler plants, directly and indirectly affecting almost 80,000 automotive workers, might result in settlement of strikes involving 10,000 Hudson Motor Co. employees at Detroit and 2,200 at the Reo Motor Car Co. in Lansing.

To the Senate and Vice President Garner came a telegram urging swift steps to end seizure of property by sitters. Signed by President Emeritus A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard university and a group of Bostonians it set forth:

"Armed insurrection — defiance of law, order and duly elected authority—is spreading like wildfire.

"It is rapidly growing beyond control. What determined action by the governor of Michigan several weeks ago, or a few words of counsel by the president, would have ended summarily, now challenges the supremacy of government itself."

PRODUCE STRIKE

Announcing he would lay the message before the Senate Monday, Garner prepared to discuss the troubled labor situation with President Roosevelt and congressional leaders.

Meanwhile, Buffalo, N.Y., produce handlers, paralyzed wholesale Easter trade in fruit and vegetables there by launching a strike.

A strike vote was started among 8,000 union employees of the Southern Pacific railroad on the west coast. The men charged the road had violated pay agreements.

EDITOR SLAYER FACES CHARGES

ALTURAS, Calif., March 27.—A first degree murder charge was on file today against Harry French, 30, for the police termed "newspaper feud" slaying of laude L. McCracken, 46.

Miss Donna Conwell, 27-year-old co-publisher of the mimeographed Modoc daily, swore out the complaint against French.

More than 1,500,000,000 pounds of tobacco are produced in the United States annually.

CORONATION REHEARSALS IN PROGRESS

To Insure No Hitch When King and Queen Are Crowned May 12

LONDON, March 27.— Rehearsals o' Coronation pageantry, to insure there will be no error when the King and Queen are crowned in Westminster Abbey May 12, are under way at the tower of London. These rehearsals involve the King's own guard and the Yeoman warders. Warders who will guard the crown jewels while they are on display in the Abbey, before and after the Coronation, are receiving instruction in their duties.

All warders are being instructed in the handling of the ancient weapons they will carry when forming the guard at the west entrance to the abbey, which the royal procession will enter.

248 SALUTES

Artillerymen are preparing for no less than 248 salutes that will boom from the grey walls of the tower on Coronation Day.

Coronation visitors to the tower will have opportunity to see through excavations now under way, some of the old, outer defences of the tower; discovered but during the reign of Henry III and demolished in 1853. What remains of the Lion tower, casemates and old drawbridge will be revealed and some of the old defences replaced.

London subway trains will provide an all-night service—for the first time in history—as part of the transportation facilities to be provided for the coronation.

SHATTER RULES

This shattering of rules and precedent will take place the night of May 11-12 when hundreds of thousands of Londoners will be pouring into the coronation procession area to find vantage points as spectators.

It will be the largest transportation problem London has had to deal with, with plans being made for more than 12,000,000 "passenger journeys."

DEVELOPMENT GOING AHEAD AT OUTPOST

A winter of rapidly driving development was reported by W. A. Coughlin, manager of Slave Lake Gold Mines, Limited, of Outpost island, when interviewed Saturday in the Macdonald hotel. Mr. Coughlin arrived here Friday in a Mackenzie Air Service plane, piloted by Harry Hayter.

"Things are sliding along," Mr. Coughlin said. "We have done about 700 feet of lateral work underground, mostly on the 200-foot or third level. The other levels are 50 and 125 feet. The ore body is looking all right, but we have not yet done enough work to know definitely if we have a mine. Our crew is about 25 men. Some ore shipments of ore were sent out last fall."

Mr. Coughlin stated that an underground diamond drill was to be shipped in, to drill down from the 200-foot level, while a shaft will be raised from this level to the 125-foot tunnel.

On Sunday night Mr. Coughlin will hold a telephone conference between Edmonton and Montreal to discuss the new season's program with A. A. Pare, chief engineer of the N. A. Timmins Corporation, of which Slave Lake Gold Mines is a subsidiary.

Visiting Mr. Coughlin in Edmonton are Mrs. Coughlin and their two young sons, Louis and Billo. They will return to Montreal when Mr. Coughlin goes north.

VIMY VETS TO ATTEND PARTY

Extensive preparations are being made by officials of the Canadian Corps Association for the celebration of Vimy Ridge night on the evening of April 8.

Designed to commemorate the 20th anniversary of the successful assault on the hitherto impregnable fortress, this celebration will be a banquet event.

The association, with berets and arm bands designating units of the corps to which the men belonged, will mobilize at 8 p.m. on 103 street, just south of Jasper avenue. The parade will move to the Capitol theatre, where special entertainment will be provided by the theatre management and by the association.

London May Envy Edmonton Weather

LONDON, March 27.—The British Isles yesterday experienced one of the coldest Good Fridays in several years. A blizzard swept parts of Kent, the Manchester district, had a fall of three inches of snow and London went to church in a mixture of rain, snow and hail.

The king and queen, accompanied by Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose, attended service at the royal chapel of Windsor with about 100 employees of the Windsor estate among the congregation.

Mgr. Cody Departs

EASTVIEW, Ont., March 27. — Mgr. John C. Cody, bishop of Victoria and former parish priest of Assumption church here, will leave Monday for Victoria to assume his new duties.

Two Fliers Burn

CASABLANCA, French Morocco, March 27.— Two French military fliers attached to a squadron returning to Marrakech from Casablanca burned to death today when their plane crashed near Berrechid.

'Okay' Signifies You Are Either Child, Shop Girl

NEW YORK, March 27.—Now come the 10 "most over-worked" words.

Wilfred J. Funk, who took time out from his activities as a dictionary maker, magazine editor, book publisher and poet, to compile the list, not only picked the words but named classes of people he considers their "most flagrant abusers."

Your education, charm and related qualities, he thinks, can be measured inversely with the frequency with which you use his 10 words. Here's the list and the folk accused of being chief offenders:

1—Okay—Child and shop-girls.

2—Terrific—All persons "exposed" to Hollywood for 24 hours or more.

3—Lousy—Ditto.

4—Contact (both verb and noun)—Advertising workers.

5—Definitely—Society

6—Gal—Broadwayites.

7—Racket—Tradesmen

8—Swell—Interior decorators.

9—Impact—Columnists and commentators.

10—Honey—Stock brokers.

"Lots of other people besides those listed are over-working these words but I have tried to name the worst offenders," he explained.

Funk chose his most beautiful words in the English language —Dawn, hush, lullaby, murmuring, tranquil, mist, luminous, chimes, golden and melody.

HOPES RISE AS RAIL MEN RESUME TALK

announcement negotiations would be resumed.

CHASE SILENT

A brief statement issued by Mr. Rogers at the conclusion of the day's efforts follows:

"In view of the interruption on Wednesday of negotiations between the railway companies and the employee organizations in the pending wage dispute, the representatives of the employee organizations and the presidents of the railway companies were requested to confer with the minister of labor. As a result of this conference, it has been arranged that direct negotiations will be resumed promptly."

Howard B. Chase, chairman of the joint committee of Canadian vice presidents of the 17 unions declined to comment on the outcome of the proceedings. Any statement, he said, would be forthcoming from the minister of labor.

New hopes of an early settlement of the long drawn out 10-per cent wage-cut restoration dispute were understood to have resulted from the day's conversations.

Prospective Bride Shocked Ill When Fiance Fails Show

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., March 27—Sheriff C. H. Gillan directed a posse today to go into the south mountain in search of J. Raymond Smith, son of a well-to-do Shippensburg family, who disappeared yesterday, a few hours before he was to have been married.

J. David Smith, furniture dealer, reported his son was dressed for the marriage, had a large sum of money with him and left home to purchase flowers for the wedding. He feared his son had met with foul play.

The bride-to-be, Miss M. Kathleen Bard of Chambersburg was ill at her home today.

Wife Gets Card That Cost Lives Of Two To Post

PARRSBORO, N.S., March 27.—Mrs. Calvin Merriam today has the postcard her husband and two members of his crew lost their lives to post.

The card, which arrived yesterday, was marked Boston, March 20, the night Captain Merriam and two of the crew of the Parrsboro lumber schooner Irene and Myrtle were believed to have drowned in Boston harbor while returning from the port to their ship. They went ashore to post some mail.

Morenz Estate To Share Playoff Pool

MONTREAL, March 27.—The estate of the late Howie Morenz, Montreal Canadiens speedbail who died suddenly in hospital here March 8, will receive the same share of the National Hockey League team's cut in the playoff pool as if he were out there at centre with his mates, Canadiens' officials announced last night.

NAZI ENVOY ABSENT FROM ROME RITES

Pontiff Does Not Attend On Advice Of His Physicians

VATICAN CITY, March 27.—Mourning services in the Sistine chapel — without the accustomed presence of Pope Pius—climaxed Good Friday observances.

Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state and high priest of St. Peter's cathedral, conducted the ceremonies in the presence of Cardinals of the Curia, members of the diplomatic corps and high church dignitaries.

PONTIFF ABSENT

Heeding the advice of his physicians, he had Holy Father heard mass this morning in the privacy of his apartments.

The fact the German embassy to the Holy See was not represented aroused comment because of strained relations between the Vatican and Germany.

Diplomats pointed out, however, more than half the legations here were not represented. Prelates said the important thing to note will be whether the German ambassador attends the papal mass Easter Sunday, to which he has been invited with the other diplomats.

POPE TO ATTEND

The Pope plans to attend the pontifical mass inside the cathedral, and then give his blessing from the Loggia.

The Vatican announced the papal encyclical on Mexico would be published late today. It was said to be in size.

Coronation Stirs Charity Impulse

LONDON, March 27—In commemoration of the coronation of the King, Lord Glanely, millionaire ship and racehorse owner, has made a gift of $150,000 to a number of charitable and educational institutions. The money will be distributed among 24 causes, the greater part being allocated to Wales.

Windsor Accepts Ottawa Art Work

OTTAWA, March 27.—Lionel Forbery, Ottawa sculptor, today received a letter from the Duke of Windsor accepting a plaque of himself which Forbery executed.

The plaque of the former King Edward VIII, a portrait in relief in bronze, is about five by six inches in size.

Abandoned Ship Sinks; 30 Rescued

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—The motor ship Fijian, abandoned by its crew after it caught fire at sea sank five miles from Aurhi island in the Marshall group, the Chamber of Commerce Marine Exchange reported today.

The crew of about 30 men took to boats when fire in the vessel's hold broke out anew after it apparently was under control. The lifeboats tossed for 20 hours, some 1,800 miles southwest of Hawaii, before the crew was rescued by the Japanese freighter Kinahu Maru.

Egyptian Regent Is Seriously Ill

CAIRO, March 27—Prince Mohammed Ali, president of the regency council and cousin of young King Farouk I, is seriously ill. He suffered an attack of angina pectoris while walking.

Prince Mohammed Ali, 61, heads the council governing Egypt until King Farouk becomes of age on July 31.

Pigeons Halt Time

BRANTFORD, Ont., March 27.—The march of time was halted for 70 minutes here today. Pigeons which roost in the post office tower perched on the hands of the city hall clock, their weight preventing the hands from turning.

DRAMA CRITIC HEAPS PRAISE ON VANCOUVER

Players Equal To London's Best, Adjudicator Declares

VANCOUVER, March 27.—For the second successive night Vancouver's strolling players won high praise from George de Warfaz at the British Columbia regional drama festival Thursday, this time with an excerpt from Rudolph Besier's "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" which Mr. de Warfaz described as "an absolutely perfect production."

Coupled with credit to the amateur dramatic group which Wednesday night took major honors with Vincent Godefrey's tragedy, "The Widow of Ravensdale," was the adjudicator's comment that either Gay Scriven, leading lady in both strolling player presentations, or Colin Laurence, director of both plays and portrayer of Edward Moulton-Barret in Thursday night's effort, could "go to New York or London and win fame with any professional company."

"I am lost in admiration for Colin Laurence who gave us two such different plays in as many nights," Mr. de Warfaz declared. "Mr. Laurence is a great director. As for the Strolling Players, they could hold their place among London's finest professional actors."

Mr. de Warfaz said he considered the plays he had seen at Vancouver "the best in his trip across Canada."

William Clark made the first window glass in America in 1857.

BETTER TO SELL

If the city can sell any considerable amount of the confiscated property it has on hand, with building requirements attached, it would be good business to do so at half the fictitious prices it has been asking and five per cent interest on deferred payments.

The city needs money. Men need work. People need homes, and better homes. These three facts are the sufficient basis for a policy of returning confiscated property to private ownership, on any terms necessary to effect the purpose. The alternative is to go on holding the property off the tax roll, borrow money to keep idle men on relief, and continue to discourage home-building.

A MONOPOLY ON TALK?

The city council staged a sit-down strike the other day, and might have been sitting yet but for a tactful spectator who happened along and played the role of the great pacificator.

The dead-lock arose over a proposal that no council-member should be allowed to address the legislative committee anent the Fortin plan except one of the aldermen who would like to put the plan over without consent of the taxpayers. The performance was appropriate to the subject and a pre-view of things to come. Sitting in dilatorious session about all future councils will be able to do if the scheme goes into effect, for they won't have money enough to do much else.

It is to the credit of council that when the proposal was finally submitted in a formal way no one would second the motion. It would have been still better if the motion had never been made. Is it the idea that nobody but a Fortin alderman should have a right to talk?

PROFESSOR KEYNES ON MONEY

Rarely have advocates of "cheap money" found so formidable a recruit as in Professor Keynes, perhaps England's ablest economist, who recently attacked high interest and usury in finance. His article, reproduced in the latest issue of "The Living Age," is direct and challenging.

"Unquestionably in past experience dear money has accompanied recovery, and it has also heralded a slump. If we play with dear money on the ground that it is 'healthy' or 'natural' then, I have no doubt, the inevitable slump will ensue. We must avoid it therefore as we would hell-fire."

Professor Keynes goes still further and claims that our present freedom from gold standards and currency rigidities gives mankind the keys to its destination. "We are no longer rest under a compulsion to do what is ruinous."

If the distinguished economist is right—and his record is one of unblemished success—a revolt against the crippling orthodoxies of finance is well in order.

ON THE EVE OF SEEDING

Whether the fault lies in Edmonton or in Ottawa, there has been regrettable delay in arranging to supply seed grain to farmers in the dried out areas of Alberta. The legislature on Wednesday was still thrashing out the details of the necessary legislation, while hopefully waiting to hear what Ottawa intends to do about the matter.

All these preliminaries should have been attended to long ago. The approach of spring is not a surprise event. Everybody knew it would come along three months or so after Christmas. And it should have been somebody's business to find out how many farmers would not be able to supply themselves with seed, how much each would require, where the seed was to be secured, and how it was to be paid for. To say nothing about actually getting the seed, cleaning it, and testing it for germinating power.

Spring work has already started in southern Alberta, according to press reports. Everywhere the farmers are planning their year's operations. This the dry belt farmers cannot do without knowing how much seed they can get, when, at what price, and on what terms of repayment. This information should have been in their possession a month ago, and the seed should be going out to them now.

THE ROOT OF THE TROUBLE

Having been told on high authority six weeks ago there was no such thing as a Left wing of the Social Credit party, the public are perhaps to assume that Alberta has set up a new record —in the quick-order formation of a political group. There certainly is a Left wing now. The question at present is how much of the Right wing will be found intact on Monday.

Nothing specific has happened in the meantime to account for the sudden cleavage. The presentation of an orthodox budget was a foregone conclusion. And the speeches of the dissenters reflect dissatisfaction that has been growing for many months. It began no doubt last fall, with the failure to distribute the expected dividends in November. And it did not sprout in the minds of the "insurgent" members, but in the minds of their rank and file supporters.

To the man on the street and the man on the farm, Social Credit means just one thing—dividends. Maybe that shouldn't be the case, but it is. Talk about a "new social order" leaves ordinary people cold. They do not know what the term might mean. It is vague, indefinite, and sounds like evasion. Dividends were what they were asked to vote for, and did vote for; and dividends are things anyone can understand and use.

The dividend question is the root of the schism. There is no use trying to talk away or around that bed-rock fact. If the dividends were going out, there would be no Left wing movement to embarrass the Government and threaten political chaos.

CLAYTON McLENNAN

Death is the destiny of man, but sorrow of a specially piercing degree must mark the passing of a youth still in the very springtime of life and with his hopes and ambitions all before him. Clayton McLennan will be mourned and remembered by many, for all who knew him liked him. Often would be burden his frail body with self-imposed tasks of kindness that many a stronger person forebore to perform. Had he been spared, and granted time to reap for a while in the field of honor, he would undoubtedly have made his mark in public life. A former member of the staff of the Bulletin, he was a frequent and always welcome visitor to the office, where his cheerful, generous spirit was prized at its true worth. His host of friends will pray that their sympathy may help to speed the stricken hours of his parents and their suddenly darkened household.

A letter from Banff says that the new C.P.R. hotel has been laid foundations last. The hotel will not be ready to receive guests before the end of June. Buildings are going up in the town rapidly, and there is prospect of a lively summer as visitors throng to the mineral springs.

The Indian department has written notices posted up in several places in town calling for tenders for 100 bushels of seed barley and 300 bushels of potatoes, to be delivered at Battleford. It seems strange that of all the departments of the government having business in the North West, that that part of the department of Indian affairs manipulated from Regina is the only one that does not find it advisable to advertise its wants publicly.

Epilepsy

By DOCTOR FRANK McCOY

The term epilepsy comes from the Greek and means "seizure" or "falling sickness." The severe form of the disease, known as Grand Mal is marked by convulsions and loss of consciousness. The less severe form is known as Petit Mal and may be marked by a momentary loss of consciousness. The patient may appear to be daydreaming, may stare straight ahead, forget what he is doing, or drop whatever is in his hands.

Dr. F. McCoy

Many of the great men of history have been epileptics, including Julius Caesar, Moliere, and Peter the Great. The popular attitude toward this disorder is that there is little hope for recovery, however, the "picture is not as bad as it is painted, and I have known personally of many cases in which a satisfactory cure was established.

This is one instance where the public is a little too pessimistic, and the patient with epilepsy should not give up hope until he has tried the newer treatment consisting of right diet, manipulations, and intestinal cleanliness.

The principal cause of this serious affliction is a certain characteristic toxema produced by fermentation within the large intestine, or colon. Sometimes patients discover this cause for themselves and learn to ward off an attack by taking something which will produce a sudden and complete emptying of the colon.

While there are several contributing causes which may be present and which require attention, nevertheless, the dietetic treatment of the case is most important, and a permanent recovery can not be expected unless the alimentary tract is kept free from poisons.

The idea has gained foothold that meat eating may predispose the patient to epilepsy and it is therefore common to run across this prejudice against meat. However, it is my belief that epilepsy is not due to meat eating but is produced by a toxema originating in the lower part of the digestive tube from the fermentation of different foods, and more especially from sugars and starches. The patient should be told to use only a moderate amount of meat in any one day, but that is the only restriction necessary in regard to meat.

There is nothing mysterious about the cause of epilepsy and many patients will recover under the proper dietetic regimen. For many years, I have seen case after case yield to treatment by fasting on fruits or fruit juices, diet, manipulative treatment over the abdomen, and the enema. Those cases least likely to respond are those due to injury of the brain by an accident.

In the treatment of epilepsy, the patient should first be started on a fast and then attention should be given to dietetic measures. It is significant that even the books on psychology which discuss epilepsy mention the importance of the dietetic treatment. During the fast, only the whole fruits or fruit juice may be used. Many medical authorities now advise the fasting method for epilepsy, using the straight water fast. However, I find the fruit fast to be even more effective. Sometimes, when the first fast does not bring relief, it is a good plan to repeat it a month later with the patient using a careful diet in between. There have been many cases where the second or third fast brought results after the first had failed.

Massage or osteopathic treatment may be necessary, as a prolapsed or kinked colon must be corrected by suitable treatment given for the purpose of restoring the intestine to good working order. The patient should use at least two enemas a day until such time as the larger bowel is functioning normally. Those wishing further information may write for my articles on EPILEPSY. Send with your request one large, self-addressed envelope and 4 cents in stamps.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Mrs. William D. inquires: "Is it all right to let the high school boy or girl go to school without any breakfast? My two children refuse to eat and I worry over their being hungry in the middle of the morning. It seems to me that they need something to eat before school."

ANSWER: School children often run away from breakfast because they get up too late to eat breakfast and get to school on time. Try awakening the children a little earlier in the morning. Sometimes, they are not hungry because of eating too much at the evening meal of the night before. Any one who is not hungry for breakfast should skip a few meals until hunger returns. If there is any time of the day when one may be expected to be hungry, it is in the morning after the fast of the night. In fact, this is the way the name of the morning meal originated, as it means the meal for breaking the fast which normally occurs during the sleeping hours. Occasionally, I find that children are unwittingly coaxed in breakfast because not enough effort is spent in making this meal attractive, when there is too great a tendency to serve the same food over and over again. Try to get a little more variety into the morning meal and see if the right of new and delicious dishes does not tempt the children to sit down and eat.

QUESTION: Mrs. Thomas L. asks: "I believe that my stomach must have fallen, as everything I eat seems as heavy as lead, and the stomach just refuses to digest food the way it ought to. Is there any home test I could use for myself to see if it is prolapsed?"

ANSWER: A simple home test which may sometimes be used with good results to find out if the stomach is prolapsed is to drink one pint of ice cold water first thing in the morning. Then take the backs of the fingers and run them over the left side of the abdomen. In this way you will locate the cold spot and thus determine roughly the position of the stomach. If the stomach has sagged several inches, the cold spot will be very low on the left side. However, instead of guessing about your case, I believe the best plan is to go and be examined.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

A change has come over the scene in Spain. Two weeks ago and British observers were preparing the public mind for a Fascist victory in Spain. No fewer than 80,000 Italian troops with airplanes, bombers and military tanks were fighting under a general of their own, for the Fascist cause.

Il Duce in a burst of revealing bombast, sure that his deception had worked, sent a triumphant message to the Italian commander in Spain, saying:

"Cruah the international forces opposing you. That will be a success of great military and political importance."

A few days later and the Italian divisions were in flight. An air armada was adding to their panic by bombing and machine-gunning them as they fled. In one attack at Brihuega no fewer than five Italian planes were shot down and over a hundred Italian soldiers taken prisoner. Moorish troops, more seasoned to modern warfare than Mussolini's men, were used to stop the rout of the Italians.

Mussolini made his boast too soon at the dedication of the triumphal arch across the Libya highway. It is one thing to fight helpless Ethiopians who have neither air force nor artillery nor modern tactics—it is quite another thing to face these implements of modern mechanized warfare.

Two weeks ago and Il Duce was proclaiming the might of Italy to the gaping Arabs as he unveiled the arch with its boastful legent, "Bountiful sun; thou canst see nothing greater than the city of Rome."

Though he had his soldiers blessed by Italian cardinals before they were shipped to Ethiopia, his journal, "Giornale d'Italia," now assails the venerable Archbishop of Canterbury. The Archbishop had not blessed the troops opposing Mussolini in Spain. All he did was to protest in the House of Lords at the massacre of thousands of helpless Ethiopians by Italian firing squads following the attempt on the life of General Graziano by an Ethiopian fanatic. Yet the Giornale d'Italia—a paper which must do whatever Mussolini dictates—refers to His Grace as follows:

"An iniquitous and bloody archbishop who put his hands into the bleeding wounds of Italy, which will not be forgotten, despite any gentlemen's agreement."

The Dean of Winchester, Rev. Dr. Edward Selwyn, who had referred regretfully to the Italian conquest of Ethiopia at an Ethiopian memorial service in London, is described as a man "who counts for less than nothing." In Italian fascist fashion, the organ of Mussolini says of Dr. Selwyn:

"He looks like a poor provincial canon who stupidly attacks a whole people and nation through a desire to imitate his superiors."

These remarks, and the Italian decision not to send a representative to the coronation of the British monarch because Haile Selassie has been invited too, would indicate that the pompous Mussolini is somewhat afraid about nothing. That "something" is probably a realization that his troops are not so efficient against modern troops as against a lot of ragged Ethiopians. Now that Britain has embarked upon a re-armament scheme, bombast cannot take the place of guns or guts.

London "Punch" gives a new cartoon version of the fable of the hare and the tortoise, as applied to the re-armament race. It shows two startled rabbits looking on as a fat, galloping tortoise rushes by. The rabbits are saying to each other, "If he keeps on at this pace, we'll have to call the race off."

From a land that no one may leave without government sanction, forty thousand Germans have gone to aid the Fascist cause in Spain. A disproportionately large number of these are aviators, tank craftsmen, mechanics and technicians. The offer of 1000 marks bonus, displayed in the Reichswehr barracks, for volunteers for Spain lured many; official sympathy opened the gates to let them go.

A surprising feature of the aerial war in Spain is the inferiority of the German planes to those of Italy and Russia.

Writing in the Daily Herald, Lord Stabolgi (formerly Commander Kenworthy, M.P.) says:

"An interesting aidelight on the aerial warfare in Spain is the repeated accounts of the bombers poor performance of the German machines.

"The German fighter-aeroplanes are reported as slower than either the French or Italian planes; and it is known that the French planes available for the Spanish government are not of the latest design.

"This is a consideration of great importance. German friends of mine are saying that the newest German engines are not in use in the Spanish fighting. It is difficult to believe this. One cannot imagine the German authorities risking the loss of pretige that follows from a disclosure of inferior material by not sending the very latest machines they had.

"There are similar accounts about the German medium bombers, which are apparently unwieldly and comparatively slow. If this is true, the menace of the expanded German Air Force is not as great as certain politicians and organs of the press in this country have been making out."

Destructive as they have been, the incessant aerial bombardments of Madrid by German and Italian bombers have failed to produce any military success alone. They may terrorize nations by their wanton killing of non-combatants, but they cannot achieve military victory without the use of ground troops.

Nations that rely upon large forces of aerial bombers are doubtless calculating on their dreadfulness to compel stubborn nations to seek peace. The history of the repeated bombing at Madrid show that proud and stubborn people are not terrorized into submission by such instruments of terror. Dreadfulness seems to intensify their will to resist.

Any nation that invokes dreadfulness as a weapon invites dreadfulness as a reprisal. The panic of the Italian divisions in Spain under the first loyalist bombing shows the danger of fighting with weapons one cannot endure to suffer from.

A Day in Canadian History —o— By FRED WILLIAMS

Montreal in early days had several duels to its credit (or discredit if you feel that way) but probably the most interesting was one fought on March 27, 1765, in which the man who was killed used a brace of pistols which had belonged to General James Wolfe. He was Lieut. Samuel Lester Holland, fourth son of Colonel Samuel Holland, the sailor, soldier and surveyor. His opponent was Captain Schoedde, of the 60th Regiment, then stationed at Montreal. The exact cause for the meeting on the "field of honor" is not told in any of the histories. One version has it that it arose out of an indiscretion by young Holland at a large dress ball at the Chateau St. Louis, Quebec another, and the more likely, is that it arose over a game of cards held in Montreal, for who would have travelled at that time of year from Quebec to fight a duel?

In one story about the duel it is said that Colonel Holland handed his son a brace of pistols, remarking: "Samuel, my boy, these are the weapons which my beloved friend, General Wolfe, presented to me on the day of his death. Use them to keep the old family honor without stain." And the historian adds that when the father saw the corpse of his son, he remarked, after an outburst of grief: "My beloved son, when General Wolfe presented me, on the Plains of Abraham, with those beautiful weapons, little did I think they would be used to bring you to a dishonored grave!"

The historic pistols are now owned by Mrs. J. E. Welsh, of Boston, a native of Prince Edward Island.

Visitors to old Niagara are surprised when at certain times in the day they hear the sounds of a bell. Sir Byron E. Walker, president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, who, like Sir John Aird, his successor, really worked his way up from the bottom to the top of the ladder.

THINKING

Editor, Bulletin: Few people realize that there are only two ways for the human brain to function in the world—we call thinking. One is the common method of using unrealities, hopes and dreams as standards of comparison, together with the custom of jumping to conclusion, making snap judgments and prejudging all suggestions; using traditions and bogey stories of one's childhood and adolescence to befog and muddle the entire problem.

The other method is the scientific one by which one analyses the facts and then synthesises them logically into a co-related structure in which each part fits metrically and accurately with the next and is in complete co-ordination with the whole.

If this latter method is used, it can be clearly seen that there are only three basic facts concerning human activation. These are: (1) The inert masses of the living body. (2) The kinematic energy of the physical world inside the human body, activating these inert masses. (3) The suggestive drive of the living body in its resistless drive towards a source of life-sustaining energy, which, in its turn, humanizes the above activating energies.

If these energies are channelised functionally, they will integrate with the functional sequences and produce functional behaviour and functional motivation. It is such channelisation that produces the chemist, the physicist, the engineer and the mechanic, inside their particular specializations.

When such energies are channelised into parasitical and superstitious courses due to an attempt to escape from the reality of life into a dream world, the inevitable result is a confusion, which, in its worst and most abnormal cases, is described by medical science as dementia praecox.

This disease is probably more prevalent than the common cold. It is the result of universal conditioning in philosophic speculation, superstition, necromancy and all the mumbo-jumbos and hocus-pocuses relating to the unrealities and completely divorced from the material and metrical facts of the world we inhabit. All people suffer from this disease, its common symptom being the use of the expressions, "believe," "wish," "hope," and a pride in the vicious virtues and asinine stupidities that go to make those the world calls "highly respectable."

It is, however, true that an ever increasing minority have realised this and are engaged in curing themselves and regaining their natural sanity. That this minority can recover sufficiently to prevent the insane and the partially insane from dragging not only themselves but the rest of the inhabitants of this continent, is not only possible but even probable.

Is it not time that we, as individuals, came to our senses and metrically analysed the situation we are in, rather than continue to grub into destruction, guided by a pillar of humbug and a cloud of sunkum?

Salute!

Current Comment

WHO VOTED FOR THAT?

Outside of Alberta, no government nor any minister of the Crown, in a British country would ever venture to propose such things as are set out in the two Bills sponsored by Hon. Dr. Ross, whereby liquor is to be taken to license and control all forms of trade, business, industry and profession. Together with control and fixing of prices on all goods, wares, merchandise, agricultural products and minerals and petroleum products within the province.

It should be understood that these Bills are the preliminary to more and more and worse and worse legislation which is to come. These Bills are the foundation for what they call Social Credit. Few people thought that Social Credit involved the sacrifice of the liberty of the individual; but that is just what is involved. Social Credit, effectively applied, is the very antithesis of British liberty. Our democratic form of government is based on the principle that the state is created for the benefit of the individual citizens. Social Credit turns it upside down and proclaims the supremacy of the state over the citizen, in other words the citizen is created for the benefit of the state. — Vegreville Observer.

Your Children - By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

(Second of three articles reviewing the problems encountered in disciplining children.)

Discipline, in the sense of regulation, makes us happy in spite of the fact that we grumble about the "have-to's" of living.

But in order to be happy and content, we have to conform cheerfully to the pressure—otherwise only resentment results.

O. R. Barton

Children who are not carefully disciplined so that they become accustomed to obedience and to duty will never learn mental ease later in life when society, law, work and so on demand things of them.

There are two kinds of discipline and both are necessary to mental content and moral strength. One is the imposed discipline that says to the child, "You must"; the other something that the child develops in himself. We call it character. The latter is the whole problem of child training and is endless in its scope.

TWO CLASSES OF OBEDIENCE

Imposed authority is valuable only if it leads to self-strength. The parent must be leader and commander, but he should see that his, or her, too constant or too strict supervision does not make the child's own judgment worthless. There are times to call a halt without argument, and there are times to allow the child to work out his ideas with tolerance.

Henry will sometimes argue a point and say, "Why, Mother?" Then it is best to think it over and decide whether Henry is entitled to know. If he isn't, then a mere, "Do as I say, son," is enough. If he has a right to know, explain. One is performance without questioning, the other a sensible discussion between mother and son.

The goal would be reached if Henry could be trusted at all times to use his own good sense, but actually the time never comes. Even the greatest of men need, and seek, mentors. None of us has the perfect strength in ourselves to go through life's experiences without superimposed authority to keep us in line. The tenets of society and law are a relief rather than a burden.

If the child is not disciplined by home rules and his parents' orders, and is left to his own selection and devices, it is an unkindness to him. He likes to exert his own judgment, but he is really more comfortable and happy living under a reasonable home law. He may not know it, but he depends on it, needs it and trusts it, or should. And he will, if his parents are reasonable and not too dictatorial. Otherwise their forfeit his confidence and the urge to please them.

INDECISION BREEDS CONTEMPT

If every action left for the child to decide, and he has to put up his desires against a natural sense of right, then conflict steps in, and conflict is the cancer of mental content. He often insists on doing as he pleases, but he also wants, subconsciously perhaps, to be told. It is a relief not to have to decide. It explains why some men will work long lifetimes under pressure who would otherwise loaf and die on their own momentum, which fails them.

Everyone should be strong enough in himself, and fine enough, to go right along without any imposed discipline at all, but scarcely a person lives who can do it. The more of self-control, self-discipline and innate power he has, the better, so the child should be allowed as much self-development as possible. But the millenium is not here, and he must accept a certain amount of commanding from his parents, his teachers, and later the circumstances of life. This is called "acceptance," the very essence of content and health.

NEXT: Discipline and punishment.

Do I Like The Country?

By Nellie McClung

A CANDID friend has written me a letter, in which she questions my accuracy in describing the joys of country life. "Do you really like the silence of the country," she writes, "better than the cheerful voices of the city, or are you merely stuck in the country, and trying to make the best of it? I know writers are like lawyers and can make out a case without mixing in any of their own opinions, and so I am writing to ask you to give me the truth as you see it. I am footloose and free, and I am looking for a place to settle down and unpack the hoardings of years which consist of a few books and a few pictures, and one or two whatnots! . . . If you have been telling the truth about Vancouver Island I would like to see it."

So now, if the truth is in me, I will tell it to my correspondent.

NELLIE McCLUNG

FOLLOW OWN DESIRES

I do like the country and the country people. They are individuals who follow their own desires, and are not guided or governed by fashion, nor worried about keeping up with someone else. Neighbors mean something in the country. Human nature is the same all over, but people in the city do not need their neighbors. When our car would not start a few days ago when I was leaving on the boat, we phoned to a neighbor who brought his car over to give us a push. Meanwhile two other neighbors, seeing the commotion, offered to let us have their car, or would drive us into Victoria. People do that naturally in the country, and it cements friendship. In the city if your battery is down, you phone a garage and the whole matter drops to the prosaic level of a commercial transaction. People in cities do not know their neighbors as we do, for they need nothing that they cannot buy, except perhaps friendliness and companionship, and they must come as by-products of something else. I think this matter of by-products explains the charm of country life.

Then country life develops resourcefulness. You cannot send to town for an electrician every time a fuse blows out, or the cord of your iron burns. You go out to the garage and get a new fuse, or a few tools, and repair the damage, and you feel a satisfaction in being able to do it. And you make many things for yourself in the country, which city people buy, but never own as you own the things that have come from your own hands.

HAVE "STAKE" IN HOME

Women who have made their own rugs, quilts, curtains, cushions, hemmed their own table linen, and in the garden have planted trees and flowers, have a "stake" in their home that will hold them to it when storms threaten. But when people live in a furnished suite or house, where nothing has any meaning or significance, it is easy to pull up and get out. There are no ties, no memories, nothing to hold or bind your affection.

Then in the country we take delight in seeing how much of our living we can make. When you have apples and pears, you naturally make jelly and preserves. And when your cucumber beds bear by the tub full, it is easy to make a few pickles, and right here I sound a warning. Pickling is a form of intoxication. It grows on you, and the neighbors give you recipes, bringing over a jar to show you just what they mean by "marrow curd," or "mock capers" (made from nasturtium seeds).

LOW FORM OF GENEROSITY

I do not know what your attitude is to flowers. But I get a great satisfaction, not only from growing them, but from giving away flowers. Psychologists will tell you this is a low form of generosity—this giving accompanied by pleasure, and they may be right. But I never counted on receiving any reward from this beyond the one which is paid at sight. On the prairie we had lovely flowers, but for a short season. Always above our fairest blossom hung the sword of destruction, and that may be why flowers are so precious to us all. And to be able to cut and arrange flowers and give them to people living in suites, gives me a feeling of exaltation.

Beverley Nichols, in one of his books on Gardening, says that people who plant the seed and watch it through the period of growth, grow peaceful in their minds, and if everyone gardened, everyone, Hitler and Mussolini, and every other son of battle, there would soon be peace on earth. The contact with the soil, the love for growing things, would tame the savage breast.

FASCINATING WORLD

Certainly, to own a garden, however small, atones for life's losses. There are no apples quite so sweet and fragrant as the apples you grow on your own trees,—and everyone knows that the vegetables you go out and dig up or find on your own vines have a flavor all their own. And all this sowing and reaping, even though the reaping is not in direct ratio to the sowing, opens up a new and fascinating world and leads one to flower shows and fairs, where interesting people gather. It makes the farm and garden pages of newspapers come alive and fairly bristle with things you want to know.

I have not said a word about the birds, but they are a vital part of country life. The English skylarks, which fill the air with music from early spring until late summer (and which are the only skylarks in America, north or south), the humming birds that come when the peach trees on the south wall of the house is in bloom, are a constant source of delight. Then the quail that come in droves, and the lordly pheasants. Just now the little things are hungry, and everyone puts out grain for them, and what a sight it is to see them feeding in crowds. The quail use our lavender beds for their own personal quarters all summer long. Under the leaves and flowers there is a fine cool playground, and here they assemble, big and little, with soft murmurs of contentment.

WELCOME SUNRISE

Perhaps these small delights may seem trivial to the Candid Friend, but under their gentle influence we find life both sweet and satisfying, and it has shown no tendency to grow monotonous. Every morning we welcome the sunrise which comes sweeping across the gulf in infinite variety of color, always beautiful and challenging. And every day brings pleasant occupation!

ALWAYS ENCLOSE A STAMPED ADDRESSED ENVELOPE

Address all correspondence to: The Director, Stamp Collectors' Club, The Bulletin, Edmonton, Alberta.

For some years The Bulletin has made possible guidance in the hobby of an internationally known philatelic expert, who is at your service to advise regarding your problems.

YOU are welcome in membership. State your age, size of collection and what stamps are of special interest to you. Enclose postage for reply always. You will receive a membership card and some stamps for your collection.

AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH POSTAL HISTORY

The Commonwealth of Australia is the largest island in the world and is one of the seven self-governing Dominions of the British Commonwealth of Nations. It is also the smallest continent, with an area of nearly three million square miles, and, with the surrounding islands in Oceania, is often referred to as Australasia. The capital city is Canberra and the population about six million. Currency used is the Australian pound, which is equal to the British at par, although exchange rates fluctuate greatly.

The Commonwealth was inaugurated on January 1, 1901, and consists of the six former independent colonies of New South Wales, Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia, with their dependencies consisting of New Guinea and Papua, the Bismarck Archipelago and the Northern Islands of the Solomon group. The administration is vested in a Federal Parliament, consisting of a senate and house of representatives, in which the king is represented by a governor-general.

For some years there was no individual issue of postage stamps for the new dominion, and the current stamps of the various former colonies continued to be used. All such stamps used on and after January 1, 1901, are actually Commonwealth issues and should, logically and philatelically, be treated as such and included in any collection of the dominion issues, and not under each separate colony. Few collectors watch their post-marks in this connection. The first definite type of postage stamp was not issued until 1913 and is of the design showing a kangaroo on a map of the island. An issue of postage due stamps, however, was first made in 1902, for use of the new dominion, and further issues of "Dues" were made of new types between that date and 1909. Four different types were issued during this period, the first three not carrying the name of the country in the design.

Of unusual interest are the stamps overprinted, or punched, "O.S." (official service), for use by the various government departments. Some catalogues do not list the "punched" officials, but many of them are scarce or rare and bring large premiums over normal varieties from specialists in this country. Such issues may be found carrying the initial letters of some of the former colonies, as well as the letters "O S" and should be placed in collections in accordance with the dates of the postmarks. A most interesting field for study is found in this group.

In addition to the first regular postage issue type, that of King George V (head in medalion) has been that of the regular issue. Commemoratives are not numerous and are attractive, and the few provisional issues are scarce. Of the typographed issues, a number of varieties are known; the 6 penny, ultramarine, watermarked Narrow Crown and Narrow A, of the 1915-20 issue, has a variety in which the kangaroo has a "broken leg," and which is eagerly sought for by collectors. The 5 and 10 shilling, and 1 and 2 pound dominations are fairly scarce, but other issues are, generally, low priced, and a representative collection of the country can be assembled for little cost.

Minute Make-Ups

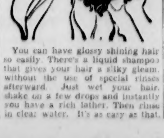
By V. V.



You can have glossy shining hair so easily. There's a liquid shampoo that gives your hair a silky gleam, without the use of special rinses afterward. Just wet your hair, shake on a few drops and instantly you have a rich lather. Then rinse in clear water. It's as easy as that.

DOGS

by P. Hamilton Goodsell

ABSURD ARGUMENTS ABOUT DOGS

By P. Hamilton Goodsell

The controversy between those who favor dogs and those who are opposed to them, continues with much vehemence. One man, being able to see no good in dogs whatsoever, blithely suggests their complete extermination and advocates that rats take their place. For tolerance, woeful lack of knowledge and understanding, and sheer nonsense, many of these arguments are unsurpassed and are priceless examples of the lengths to which some persons will go.

It is not only from the ranks of the anti-dog people that such absurd arguments come, but also from those who claim to be champions of dogs. The latter quite frequently indulge in statements which must strike the person of average intelligence as mawkish sentimentality. So keen are they to fight for the rights and virtues of their friend, the dog, that they sometimes are as guilty of wild and extravagant assertions as are those to whom the dog is anathema. The latter, nine times out of ten, indicate by their arguments that their bitter dislike of the canine race so undermines their powers of reason and logic that the premises upon which they attempt to build their case become ridiculous in the extreme.

All of this brings me to what I have in mind, namely, that it cannot be denied that much of the arguments used by those averse to dogs is furnished them, unconsciously perhaps, by those who really like dogs, yet who by their actions and statements and utter disregard for the rights of others, add fuel to the fires of animosity. The dog is, in my opinion, too fine a creation and too valuable an asset to our daily lives for us who like him to run the risk of rendering him ridiculous by unwarranted eulogies on his many virtues, or attempting to claim for him perfection in all things.

If those who like and those who dislike dogs would remember that for centuries dogs have been a part of man's life and that during all these years have become more and more firmly established in man's estimation and affection, they would realize that it is as absurd to talk of eradicating them and totally damning them as it would be to argue that because men are murderers, gangsters, and racketeers all mankind should be incarcerated, or furthermore to try to prove that because many men and women are living the lives of saints all are. No one can be so lacking in intelligence as not to be willing to admit that there is room for improvement in the human race. And so it is with the canine. Equally absurd it is to make the extravagant claim that all dogs are paragons of loyalty, devotion and intelligence, or absolutely devoid of all these qualities.

One person made the amazing statement that no dog behaved unless it had been brought to submissive obedience by a club in the hands of its master! The result of such an absurd assertion in the minds of those who know anything at all about dogs is to bring the boomerang of ridicule whistling about the ears of its author, and to tempt those desirous of controverting it to equally extravagant statements on the other side. As well state that every child that obeys its parents and regards their wishes does so only through fear of the rod!

Some of those who hold dogs in contempt and detestation are prone to attempt to prove their point regarding canine worthlessness by citing such terms of opprobrium as "dirty dog," "yellow cur," etc., and in my mind's eye I can see their gleeful grin of joy at their cleverness in presenting, as proof of their contention, an argument which from their lack of knowledge they believe irrefutable. Let us admit at the outset that these two expressions are considered opprobrious, but then take the trouble to ascertain how they came into use and whether or not they are fair and just, considering dogs as a whole. To call a man a "dirty thief" would certainly be using a term of opprobrium and would lead one to believe that all men are thieves, just as the expression "dirty dog" might suggest to one that all dogs are things to be held in abhorrence.

Mr. Goodsell will be glad to answer letters about dogs, exclusive of those dealing with sicknesses, if you will write him at Tenacre, White Plains, New York. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

CANADIAN EPIC PICTURE

"Silent Barriers" Proves To Be Sensation At Rialto Show

Richard Arlen, Antoinette Cellier and Lilli Palmer Have Stellar Roles in British Production

The Canadian epic film "Silent Barriers," which proved a sensation at its preview at the Rialto on Thursday night, and which is now showing at that theatre, has qualified as the outstanding motion picture ever to be produced dealing with life and affairs of the Dominion.

It is a purely Canadian achievement. Not only is the picture, depicting difficult and strenuous pioneer railway construction days of this country, based on the story "The Great Divide" by Alan Sullivan, a Canadian author, but practically the whole film was produced on Canadian soil by the largest unit ever to engage in the making of a film in this country. No less than 52 stars, featured players, directors and technicians made up this producing unit in addition to which more than 600 Canadians were engaged as extras, carpenters, electricians, laborers, cooks, etc. during the months that the company was on location in the Canadian Rockies.

RESIDED 1 NCANADA

Noteworthy is the fact that five of the leading players of "The Great Barrier" have resided or were educated in Canada. Richard Arlen, the star, enlisted in the Royal Flying Corps at Winnipeg, and trained at Toronto, Beamsville, Deseronto and Camp Borden before proceeding overseas.

J. Farrel MacDonald, veteran character actor who portrays Major "Hells' Bells" Rogers in this historical film, was educated at St. Michael's College, Toronto, at Peterboro and St. Dunstan's College in Prince Edward Island before going to Yale.

Antoinette Cellier, leading lady as "Mary Moody" went to school at Halifax, N.S., and has relatives in London, Ont.

LIVED AT FIELD, B.C.

Roy Emerton, veteran English actor, who is the "Dan Moody" of "The Great Barrier," lived for a number of years at Field, B.C., where a part of the picture was made last year. Emerton also worked on a lake boat plying between Owen Sound and the Lakehead.

Reginald Barlow, who appears in the role of James J. Hill, famous railroad builder, was educated at Upper Canada College, Toronto.

In addition to these film artists, Phil Dorle, sound engineer with the Gaumont British unit, will be remembered as a former resident of Toronto, when he installed the equipment of Radio Station CKGW, remaining on the staff of that studio for 18 months before taking up motion picture recording in England.

TOURED DOMINION

J. Farrell MacDonald toured Canada with road productions, including the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company, and, amongst his many pictures, has starred in "The Country Beyond," which was filmed in the Canadian West.

All in all, there is much of direct interest to the Edmonton theatregoers in "Silent Barriers."

Vivid Scene From Rialto's Epic Film

LOVE VS. FAME FOR LILY PONS

To taste the fruits of success as an opera star or enjoy ecstasy in love's retreat is the problem facing Lily Pons, the renowned diva, in her second starring musical comedy, "That Girl From Paris," playing at the Dreamland theatre Monday with Gene Raymond and Jack Oakie in other starring roles.

The diminutive singer plays the title heroine who deserts her manager at the altar and pursues a handsome young American to his country. Here she encounters a series of hectic experiences which lands her in jail, into love with two men and finally into marriage with one of her suitors.

Miss Pons presents to motion picture audiences the widest variety of music ever brought to the screen in one feature. She sings three popular songs written by Arthur Schwartz and Eddie Heyman, the "swings" Johann Strauss's "The Blue Danube Waltz" to a brilliant new arrangement, she sings "Tarantella," and to top it all off, she renders the beautiful aria, "Una Voce Poco Fa" from "The Barber of Seville" by Rossini.

With Raymond, Oakie, Bing, Mischa Auer, Frank Jenks, Lucille Ball and Vinton Haworth, Miss Pons is surrounded by a highly versatile cast. Nathaniel Shilkret directed the music and Andre Kostelanetz, famed radio conductor, supervised the songs. Miss Pons sings, Leigh Jason directed "That Girl From Paris."

Lily Pons

Set New Title

"Bulldog Drummond Escapes" has been set as the release title for the new mystery built around that well-known character of fiction, starring Ray Milland.

Pet Hate

Despite her background as a photographer's model, Ruth Coleman, feminine lead in "The Crime Nobody Saw," has acquired a pet dislike more or less common among screen players. She doesn't like posing for still pictures.

PLAYERS FAVOR CERTAIN TOPICS

Motion picture stars like to be interviewed—if the questioner hits on their favorite topics.

Fred MacMurray is a taciturn young man, but get him on the subject of houses and he will talk your arm off. Fred and his bride, the former Lillian Lamont, are building one.

Mention cowboys or Indians to Gary Cooper and that usually silent star will break into a lengthy discourse. One reason Gary liked working in Cecil B. DeMille's "The Plainsman" was because it dealt with subjects that had been his hobby since boyhood.

Interviewers who ask Marlene Dietrich for beauty hints strike a responsive chord in the exotic star. That's the one subject she likes best to talk about.

Ten states border on the Mississippi river.

"Wings of Morning" Flaming Romance of War-Torn Spain

Beautiful Annabella Co-Starred With Henry Fonda in Capitol's Picture in Technicolor

The flaming romance of a lovely fugitive fleeing from strife-torn Spain, "Wings o' the Morning," which delighted audiences Friday at the Capitol theatre, introduces a new and exciting screen personality in Annabella, starred with Henry Fonda and Leslie Banks in the film, which presents the world-famous tenor, John McCormack.

Brought to the screen in all the lifelike beauty of natural Technicolor, "Wings of the Morning" provides a thrilling mixture of drama, spectacle and surprise, including the spectacular changing of the Guard at Buckingham Palace, home of English Kings, and the most sensational derby ever run, with jockey Steve Donoghue riding his most thrilling race.

SWEEPING DRAMA

Breathtaking in its sweeping drama, the film acquires a new beauty and dimension through its natural, perfected Technicolor, as lifelike and beautiful that you'll think you've never seen color on the screen before.

Annabella, a brilliant new star as different and alluring as her unusual name, first appears in the prologue, as Marie, a gypsy princess. She marries Leslie Banks, the Earl of Clontarf, who dies on the hunting field five months later. Marie goes back to her gypsies to be told that her descendants will be cursed for her marriage for three generations.

ANNABELLA AS MARIE

Modern times bring us Annabella as Marie, the great-granddaughter, fleeing from Spain in the midst of revolution to a quieter Ireland, where she can have her horse, "Wings of the Morning," trained for the English derby. Victory in that would provide her with a dowry to marry her Spanish fiance.

Kerry Gilfallen, a young Irish trainer, played by Henry Fonda, likes Marie's Derby candidate, but falls in love with Marie, agrees to train "Wings" for the big race, and gives a party for Marie at which John McCormack sings.

When her jockey breaks his leg, Kerry even arranges for his own jockey, Steve Donoghue, to ride Marie's horse, although he knows that victory for Marie may mean defeat not only for his own horse, but also for his love for Marie.

CURSE OF GYPSIES

Derby Day brings not only the most sensational derby ever run, but the harrowing realization that the curse of the gypsies may still have a last paralyzing influence on the lives of those involved. A surprising conclusion, in which Marie's great-grandmother makes her last earthly gesture, paves the way for the happiness of Marie and Kerry.

Also featured in the cast are Stewart Rome, Harry Tate and Irene Vanbrugh. Harold Schuster directed the film, which is based on stories by Donn Byrne.

Honor Cross

Randolph Scott, now appearing opposite Irene Dunne in "High, Wide and Handsome," is the only actor in pictures who has been awarded the Cross of Honor of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. It was awarded for his work in "So Red the Rose."

DIRECTOR BUYS VALLEY RANCH

Hermes Pan, dance director, is the latest to join the film farm colony in the San Fernando Valley. He has just purchased a five-acre place in the Encino district, and plans to make his residence there shortly with his mother and sister.

The little farm has a Spanish type ranch house. The acreage is improved, being planted to orange, lemon and walnut trees.

Pan, who is currently preparing the ensemble numbers for the next Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers filmusical, "Stepping Toes", will install a swimming pool on his new estate, and also plans to lay in tennis and badminton courts.

STRAND GETS FINE COMEDY WITH MUSIC

Gladys Swarthout and Fred MacMurray Co-Star In "Champagne Waltz"

"Champagne Waltz," a brilliant comedy with music, co-starring Fred MacMurray and Gladys Swarthout, and including Jack Oakie, Veloz and Yolanda, Herman Bing, Vivienne Osborne, Frank Forest, Benny Baker, Ernest Cossart and others opened at the Strand theatre last night, bringing to local audiences one of the finest potpourris of wit, beauty, romance and melody yet to reach the screen.

GAIETY OF VIENNA

"Champagne Waltz" is built around the gaiety and charm of Vienna. MacMurray, an American "swing" band leader, captivates the city with the new type music, playing havoc with the famous old Waltz Palace of the Strausses. He meets and falls in love with Miss Swarthout, who is the grand-daughter of the musical director of the palace, but doesn't dare reveal his true identity. His success forces the Waltz Palace out of business and when Miss Swarthout finds out who he really is and what he has done, she breaks with him. Remorseful, MacMurray returns to America.

Miss Swarthout and her grandfather come to America where they open a Waltz Palace along modern lines which becomes a sensational success. But the girl is not happy. One day she meets him. What follows brings a happy ending.

NEW HIGH IN DANCING

The dancing of Veloz and Yolanda in "Champagne Waltz" strikes a new high note for ballroom team dancing and Jack Oakie's typical comedy supplies much of the picture's mirth. The chorus work, in which 380 beautiful girls execute the new swing waltz rhythm, is particularly worthy of note.

DEANNA WILL THRILL FANS AT EMPRESS

Canadian Singing Star Makes Debut in "Three Smart Girls"

Millions have heard the glorious soprano voice of Deanna Durbin singing in Eddie Cantor's radio show. Now everybody in this city can see Deanna's rare beauty in the movies and hear her golden voice.

Dainty Miss Durbin has been brought to the screen by the New Universal in "Three Smart Girls," which begins its three-day run at the Empress theatre Monday.

LYRIC SOPRANO

Possessing a lyric soprano voice that electrifies all who hear it, little Miss Durbin makes her movie debut in one of the gayest comedy dramas ever to come out of Hollywood.

It deals with the madcap adventures of three lovely daughters of a New York millionaire, who join in a conspiracy to break up their father's romance with a fortune hunting beauty.

SPIRITED FIGHT

The blonde, played by Binnie Barnes, and her scheming mother portrayed by Alice Brady, put up a spirited fight for their matrimonial prize, but are outwitted by the three smart girls, Charles Winninger, as the millionaire, Ray Milland and Mischa Auer are prominently cast.

You will be enchanted by the music, thrilled by the romance and convulsed by the humor of "Three Smart Girls." Be sure to see it.

Others Suffer, "Ill Players" Stay Well

Here's one for the coincidence department.

During the making of "Internes Can't Take Money," everyone of the principals connected with the production have been ill at one time or another, it was revealed today, with the exception of two.

They are Lloyd Nolan and Stanley Ridges, both of whom undergo operations in the course of the picture.

Painful Scene

In his first scene of Paramount's "The Crime Nobody Saw," a few minutes before he was scheduled to pack up and go home, Cora Tapley suffered a severely cut finger.

Singing Star

GLADYS SWARTHOUT,
who co-stars with Fred MacMurray in "Champagne Waltz," at the Strand theatre.

Beautiful Pat Paterson Likes Hash And Pie

There's none of this "pardon my English accent" attitude about Pat Paterson, English-born film player.

Pat hadn't been in Hollywood long before everybody realized she was "just folks," even if she does play around with yachts.

Pat's favorite American dish is corned-beef hash, while running a close second is pie al la mode. She goes into Joe's "quick lunch" every time she gets a chance.

When she's home in England, and extra hungry, she orders "whitebait," a sardine-sized fish which she likes fried in deep fat.

She collects toy dogs, loves the color green.

Sailing is her favorite sport, and one of her fondest memories is that of being at the helm of a yacht which defeated that of the late King George V during a regatta at Cowes, England.

She married Charles Boyer, the French actor, at Yuma, Ariz., in 1934, and when she returned to her native England, as a French citizen she had to apply for permission to work in British films under the alien quota law.

Those are astronomical signs on Pat Paterson's bathing-suit. Here's your chance to figure out her horoscope.

Smart Girls

Reading from bottom to top, Deanna Durbin, Barbara Read and Nan Grey, appearing in "Three Smart Girls," at the Empress theatre starting Monday.

MAJOR AND MINOR NOTES

By John Oliver

Although the musical season is moving toward its close, there are still several events of major importance in the offing. The one that is intriguing most music lovers, is the visit of Lawrence Tibbett, world-renowned baritone, who will come to the Women's Musical Club celebrity series. He will make his appearance here shortly before leaving for London to appear at Covent Garden during the gala season of opera in connection with the Coronation.

Next week will see the production by the Edmonton Civic Operatic Society, of Victor Herbert's exceptionally tuneful light opera "The Red Mill." Rehearsals have been progressing most satisfactorily under the baton of Mrs. James B. Carmichael, general musical director of the organization.

* * *

Principals and chorus are reported to be in readiness for the big event. Herbert composed the score of "The Red Mill" when at the height of his powers. It was in the period when he composed Mlle Modiste," "Babes in Toyland" and several others that have lived many years and will live for many others. Some of the songs in "The Red Mill" will be heard, probably as long as people love melody. "Because You're You," "The Streets of New York," "Legend of the Mill," "Moon Beams" and others are exquisite.

On Tuesday next at the Masonic Temple, Avenir Nizoff will present Irene Mercer, concert pianist, in a piano recital, with Mr. Nizoff taking the second piano part in the major number of the evening, the Rubinstein D. Minor Concerto, first movement. Other numbers on the program will include the Bach "Bourree and Gigue," the Bach-Tausig "Toccata and Fugue," a Chopin group including Three Preludes, Fantasy Impromptu and Etude on Black Keys; Ireland's "Island

THREE FAMOUS BOYS TEAM UP

For the first time, three of the most famous boys in motion pictures are teamed in the same screen story. They are Freddie Bartholomew, Jackie Cooper and Mickey Rooney.

The new picture, "The Devil Is a Sissy," based upon an original story by Rowland Brown, comes to the Princess theatre Monday for a three-day showing.

"The Devil Is a Sissy" is the story of three boys who become inseparable pals and, strangely enough, features three boys who are boon companions in real life.

Freddie Bartholomew

Freddie Bartholomew plays a rich English lad who meets his unusual companions by visiting his father's studio on New York's East Side.

Jackie Cooper's role is that of the son of an executed convict, while Mickey Rooney portrays another juvenile product of the sidewalks of New York.

Despite the wide chasm of society that usually separates wealth children from those of the slums, "The Devils Is a Sissy" emphasizes that neither creed nor race can keep apart boys of different social strata when their lives and friendships are so closely woven together.

Stars Change Type In Latest Picture

Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray have exchanged personalities.

Miss Lombard, so long identified with sophisticated roles, has gone comic, while MacMurray, recognized as a comedian, has become a sophisticate.

The actress and actor made the discovery while they were portraying their leading roles in Paramount's "Swing High, Swing Low."

Ready For Work

Marlene Dietrich, in Europe for almost ten months, has returned to Hollywood, ready to start work in her next Paramount starring picture, "Angel," which Ernst Lubitsch will produce and direct.

Pipe Smoker

Reuben Mamoulian, directing Gene Raymond in Paramount's "High, Wide and Handsome," smokes a pipe constantly on the set.

and Debussy's "Golliwog's Cake Walk"; Nizoff's "The Mill Wheel" Waltz.

City churches celebrating Good Friday appropriately with suitable music and others on Sunday will do likewise. Both in churches and over the air much good Easter music was heard. It is notable that such standards favorites as Stainer's "Crucifixion," Maunder's "Olivet to Calvary" and Harold Moore's "The Darkest Hour" are among the most favored works both in their entirety and from which to draw selections. "God So Loved the World" from "The Crucifixion" is specially popular.

- Listen Inn -

Easter Sunday services from many sections of the world will be carried to radio listeners by Columbia on Sunday, March 28, beginning at 3 a.m., Edmonton time. The first program to go on the air at that early hour will be a broadcast from St. Peter's Rome, with a benediction from Pope Pius XI and a pontical high mass. This program is expected to last for one hour and a half. Following that listeners will be taken to Philadelphia to hear the sunrise service from the Temple stadium there. Other programs from various parts of the United States will follow before the program jumps the Pacific to Waikiki Beach, Honolulu. The Easter services as carried by CBS will be continuous from 3 a.m. until 11:30 a.m., so that if you are planning on listening it might be well to go to bed a little earlier on Saturday night.

Ken Murray and his stooge, "Oswald," will replace Burns and Allen beginning with the program of Wednesday, March 31. The program originally announced for the 31st was later changed to April 7 and has now been announced for the 31st again. Lud Gluskin and his orchestra will supply the music while other supporting players will be Shirley Ross and Marlyn Stuart. Murray and "Oswald" have been active in vaudeville and motion pictures since leaving radio last December. The time will be 9:30 p.m. Edmonton time, and the program will originate from the Hollywood Playhouse.

Memo Pad Notes: Tommy Bond, who has been with Gus Edwards' program for some time, will replace Bobby Breen with Eddie Cantor sometime in June. . . . Irvin S. Cobb's "Paducah Plantation" program fades from the air after the broadcast of April 10. . . . Dave Putterman, American-born Jewish Cantor, will sing on the Hammerstein Music Hall program of March 30. . . . Putterman claims to be the only Yankee synagogue singer. . . . Fred Allen may leave his present sponsor because of overwork and a money angle. . . . It's just a rumor, however. . . . Popular song of the week as heard over the networks was "This Year's Kisses."

Behind the Headlines At Ottawa

By DEAN WILSON

It is impossible to conceal the fact that there is an undulatory wave sweeping the Capital now, which has for its basis the amendment of the seventy-year-old document commonly referred to by Canadian statemen as the Charter of Canada, but which history has recorded as the British North America Act.

Wherever there is an informal gathering of Members of the House of Commons, or of the Senate, either in House or lobby, one is certain to hear some mention of this old act, and it is usually a complaint, and this sort of reaction is not limited or restricted to members of any particular political party.

There are a number of reasons for this reaction at the present time, but two recent happenings have brought the issue to a head in the Capital, with the natural result that all sorts of wild schemes are going the rounds, though they boil down in each case to a suggestion that an immediate amendment of the original document of the Fathers of Confederation must be made.

One of the reasons for this reaction amongst the legislators can be traced to the recent judgment of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. These judgments declared null and void all measures, except one, that were passed by the Bennett Government in 1935 and which aimed for a social betterment of the Canadian people, because they were considered to be outside the competence of the Federal Parliament and really a serious infringement of the Provincial rights.

The other and more recent cause for complaint against the British North America Act as it stands today was brought about by the defeat of the Howe Transportation Bill in the Senate, because this famous Bill perished chiefly on account of the seventy-year-old Act which provides that when a truck or bus service refrains from crossing a Provincial boundary, it is subject to the Provincial jurisdiction only. It was estimated by experts that more than ninety-eight per cent of these modern transportation services come within this limitation, and therefore no real object could have been achieved by the Howe Transportation Bill under the existing laws of the British North America Act, although the Bill aimed to help the railway systems to compete with the truck and bus services, who enjoy a certain amount of privileges and rights that explain a good part of the deficits of the railroads in this country.

It is obvious from these facts that this undercurrent of complaint will come to a head very soon, and when an amendment to the British North America Act is proposed, or becomes crystallized in action before the proper body of legislators, there is sure to be no particular political alignment on the subject, since the arguments, pro and con to such a movement, come from persons of every political shade of opinion.

Although every care has been exercised by the Government and high Ottawa officials to minimize the importance of the latest movements on the part of the Government in its negotiations with the United States on certain matters of mutual interest to the two countries, there are indications in Ottawa now that seem to point out that an opinion expressed in this column previously will be corroborated in the very near future. The opinion was that Prime Minister King and President Roosevelt had conferred on an extremely timely and important matter when they met recently in Washington, and an exchange of views between experienced Ottawa and Washington correspondents seems to indicate this is the case. The official reports stated that the recent conversations between the heads of the Canadian and the American Governments centered around the questions of the St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty, mutual trade, and other such problems, but that is not the complete story behind these manoeuvres.

History is being made, and the Dominion of Canada is doing it right now by cementing the relationships between Great Britain and other parts of the British Empire with the United States, and thus forming a powderful alliance of the Anglo-Saxon people in the event of any new world war.

Although deep secrecy covers every move made by any of the Governments and no person has offered any commitment on this subject, yet there are signs of this historical and momentous agreement being made, and when the forthcoming Imperial Conference meets in London, immediately after the Coronation ceremonies, there may be specific hints of just such an alliance, especially when the preparations for the defence of the Empire are disclosed to the general public.

These disclosures will contain many surprises according to the best informed opinions in Ottawa, and some of these astounding reports will be revealed exclusively in this column next week.

Purple Ink Clue Provides Cell For Writer

LOS ANGELES, March 27. — A bottle of purple ink, Detective Lt. Robert Underwood said today, caused a 43-year-old housewife to confess writing a "black hand" note to Aimee Semple McPherson, demanding $200.

The note, one of two received yesterday by the Evangelist, warned: "You are in great danger of the black hand."

"I needed $200 to pay down on a new car," Underwood said the arrested woman explained. She was booked on suspicion of extortion as Mrs. Lydia Swenson. The note was signed "Mrs. L. Akers," but carried Mrs. Swenson's Glendale address, the officer asserted.

HISTORIC MUNITION MILLS FLOURISH AS NAZIS REARM

By MILTON BRONNER
(Bulletin Foreign Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, March 27.—Prosperity has rumbled 'round the corner—on the wheels of the giant Nazi war machine—and stopped before the smoke-blackened doors of Dr. Gustav Krupp von Bohlen and Halbach, head of the great German armaments, steel and coal firm of Krupps. Last year brought the firm great profits—this year should bring greater profits. The new-found prosperity of Krupps is chiefly due to the vast manufacture of war munitions. Chancellor Adolf Hitler is arming Germany to the teeth. Having torn the Versailles Treaty to small pieces, he is building a huge army, a big airfleet and a formidable modern navy. Most of that is grist for the Krupp mill.

The report of the concern, issued for 1936, shows a net profit of about $6,000,000, compared with $4,000,000 in the previous year. The gross profit for the year just closed was about $30,000,000 more than in the previous year.

Big sums were set aside for very significant things. One is for a vast plant for the manufacture of gasoline from coal. Krupps also owning big coal mines and Hitler wanting to make Germany independent of the petrol companies of the world. Still other sums are set aside for the technical branch to discover still other "ersatz" (substitute) materials to take the place of products Germany would otherwise have to import, especially for war needs. And other sums are set aside for the building of more plants to take care of the ever-increasing orders, especially from the Reich.

SEE GREATER DEMANDS

The report shows that there has been an increase in the firm's sale of cars, agricultural implements and structural steel, also. But the main profit comes from something modestly concealed in one sentence which says there has been incread business, due to the fact that the nation once more is regaining its armed sovereignty. As a result, Krupps have declared a dividend of four per cent, the first in 14 years.

Rather sinister-sounding is the sentence:

"The coming times will make further great demands on the technical, economic and financial efficiency of the works."

In a way for which there is no parallel in America, the whole life of the city of Essen revolves around Krupps. And Essen is a city of nearly 700,000 people, 82,000 of whom work in the Krupp plants, while 11,000 more, retired for age, receive Krupp pensions.

BISMARCK'S WAR ORDERS

The great Krupp dynasty is only a little over a century old. In the days of Napoleon, Friedrich Krupp made cast steel in a little forge in Essen. When he died, the business was carried on by his son Alfred, who made of himself a great metallurgist. So far as his means would allow, he was always experimenting. As late as 1845 he only had 125 workmen. In 1847 Krupp, the steelmaker, made his debut as Krupp, the cannon-maker.

He turned out a three-pounder, muzzlemen of Essen were refusing to work for the French. All Germany was straining every nerve to feed and maintain them in this.

There was a scarcity of money. Krupps issued token money—pieces of paper with ther guarantee. When we paid a bill with real money we often got some of this token money in exchange. It was perfectly good in Essen. The name of Krupps was back of it.

PROSPERITY RETURNS

Later, when the French left Essen and business for a time got better, Essen began to look itself. There were no idle men on the streets. They were all back in the Krupp plant. The night sky told the story. It was like a picture illustrating Dante's Inferno. On all sides there was the blaze and glow of the furnaces. And that is true tenfold today, for Krupps are building Hitler's war machine. In the exposition in London in 1851 he showed more guns, great steel ingots and steel tires for use on railways.

Bismarck, the famous Iron Chancellor of Prussia, was dreaming of making his King the emperor of all the Germans. To this end, he worked with the Prussian generals. To this end, they gave contracts to Krupp. The war of 1870 with France was largely won with Krupp war material. Alfred Krupp was called the Cannon King. Dying in 1887, he was succeeded by his son, Friedrich Alfred Krupp, who vastly expanded the business, not only for war material, but for peace machinery. It was he who built model villages to house his workmen, gave them schools, libraries and playing fields, hospital and medical service and pensions when they were retired for age.

He died in 1902 and was succeeded in the dynasty by his daughter, Bertha. She was wooed and won by a brilliant young German diplomat, Gustav von Bohlen and Halbach. When he married her in 1906, he added the name of Krupp to his own. He took direct charge of the business and it was largely Krupps which armed Germany all through the World War.

WATER PIPE, BACK AGAIN

After the war, for a time, Krupps fell from their high estate. Germany by treaty was not allowed a big army nor big guns. Under supervision of an Allied commission, Krupps was ordered to change over from a war-making plant to one solely used for peace purposes. This writer saw it in 1921 when the cannon-makers were busily hammering at engines, automobiles, gas and water pipes, etc. But an American attache to the supervisory committee pointed out to me that the same machinery, which made pipes, could easily be changed back to making cannon. So it proved later.

January, 1923, saw another change in the fortune of Krupps. Poincare had marched the French troops into the Ruhr in the endeavor to collect German reparations money. For a visitor like myself Essen was a strange place. The little blue-coated soldiers of France were everywhere. So also were the Krupp coal miners and the steel workers—sullenly silent and idle. Theirs was a passive strike.

Numbed Bunny, Warmed, Makes Away With $20

BALATONFUERED, Hungary, March 27.—Farmer Josef Herrling found a rabbit numb with cold in a field. Te tied its legs with a handkerchief, in which was knotted $20 in savings, and flung it over his shoulder. The rabbit revived, escaped — with handkerchief and money.

Studebaker economy is the talk of Canada!

And Studebaker sales are soaring!

ROYAL PHOTOGRAPH

THE two always go together when Canada goes to buy its automobiles . . . the less a car costs to run the more readily it sells!

In February, Studebaker sales went 'way ahead of February, 1936 . . . in fact, they beat last year's high mark by fifty-nine per cent.

And that sensational sales advance stems straight from the new 1937 Studebaker's remarkable economy which equals and often betters the best showing of the smaller lowest priced cars!

A FEW CENTS A DAY MORE THAN A LOWEST PRICED CAR!

The 1937 Studebaker is the world's first car to offer the dual economy insurance of the Fram oil cleaner and the gas-saving automatic overdrive! World's first car to offer the double safety of the built-in automatic hill holder and feather-touch hydraulic brakes! And the world's only car with non-slam doors that close lightly, tightly and silently on exclusive rattle-proof rotary latches!

Before you buy any new car, you will be smart to drive a new Studebaker and find out why it's called Canada's spotlight car of the year!

New Type Overdrive Features 1937 Studebaker

A new automatically selective overdrive transmission features the 1937 Studebaker Presidents. Radiator fronts that blend into sides lend sleek beauty to all models, which offer also strong double drop frame, built-in shock absorbers, defrosting equipment, and twin lever steering gear.

An unusually interesting series of gasoline economy tests has just been completed on the Bonneville, Utah, salt flats by the Studebaker Corporation using that company's 1937 models. These tests were conducted under the strict supervision of the American Automobile Association and the results of the runs are official.

A week prior to the economy tests, Studebaker research engineers chose—at random—a Studebaker 1937 Dictator and a 1937 President from cars coming off the assembly lines. These cars were driven to the salt flats and, immediately, A.A.A. inspectors and engineers took them apart to ascertain whether they were genuine stock models in every respect. After searching scrutiny, the cars were certified as strictly stock. Then came careful supervision of the purchase of fuels to be used. Every angle of the tests was thoroughly checked by the A.A.A. inspectors.

The tests were begun. The plan was simply this: each gasoline tank had a capacity of 15 imperial gallons of fuel and the tanks were filled. Only ordinary gasoline was used. The cars were to run at a constant speed until the fuel in the tanks was exhausted. Three runs were to be made by each model, one at 35 miles per hour, another at 45 miles per hour, and a third at 55 miles per hour. The cars were driven by expert pilots who had been carefully instructed as to what speeds to maintain. The results were the maximum that can be obtained under the most perfect conditions.

Guide Affairs

"Girl Guide cookie day." This is something new to Edmonton citizens and to the Girl Guides themselves, but it is expected to be a big hit with both the public and the girls.

Set aside as Girl Guide cookie day, May 15 will be the day on which cookies wrapped in cellophane will be delivered to all those who have decided to contribute towards the maintenance of guiding in Alberta through this medium.

Orders for the cookies will be taken from April 1 to 7 by Girl Guides in uniform. Girl Guide cookie day is part of a provincial wide campaign for guiding funds.

Edmonton's first Girl Guide Cadet Ranger Company has now been organized and is well under way, holding its regular meetings in St. Anthony's Girl Guide hall on the first and third Thursdays of each month.

The company is under the direction of Miss Helen Burns as captain. It is a leadership training school which has as its objective the building up of a reserve of leaders for Guide companies.

On Monday night of this week South Edmonton Divisional Commissioner Mrs. S. H. Gendler inspected the 17th Girl Guide Company of St. Barnabas, under Captain Miss Jean Bradley.

Girl Guide Rangers of the Second Company are celebrating another anniversary with their annual banquet being held tonight in the balcony room of St. Joseph's College.

McDougall Y.P. Invites Visitors To Entertainment

An unusual program was presented to the McDougall Young People's Society on Fellowship Night, Sunday evening, March 21. The other Young People's unions in the city were each asked to contribute a number towards the evening's entertainment.

In the opinion of the large audience honors of the evening went to the male voice quartette from Knox Church composed of Norman Lansedowne, Jimmie Hamilton, Jennie Buchanan and Berwyn Griffith. Every item was greatly appreciated from Jim Pritchard's two solos to the talk on fellowship given by Percy Boulton from McDougall.

Others taking part were Graham Hanlan, from First Presbyterian, and Alva Koerner from First Presbyterian, who gave a piano and vocal solo, respectively. The program convener responsible for this successful presentation was Miss Ethel Lay.

Baptist Youth Postpone Plays

At their meeting on Monday, March 22, First Baptist Young People's Society, after a short business meeting, read and discussed the article in the Reader's Digest entitled "Jade Curtain" by Pearl Buck. "How to Win Friends and Influence People."

Owing to the illness of their director, Ned Wigginton, presentation of their two plays, "The Box of Mystery" and "The Boy Who Discovered Easter," has been postponed indefinitely.

Louise Williams and Bob Thompson of the Devotional Commission will be in charge of the meeting of Monday, March 29. All young people and their friends are cordially invited.

Lamont Hi Union Presents 3 Plays

LAMONT, March 27.—Last Friday in Swain's Hall the Lamont Hi Students' Union presented their second annual concert of three one act plays. The Reading of the Will, a mystery comedy directed by Bill K. Tooley; The Ghost Doughnut Corporation, a farce directed by Miss Bessie Fertile; and Summer Time, a melodrama under the supervision of Mr. C. Shook.

A duet with guitar accompaniment by Elmer and Stanley Steller, a humorous recitation by Peggy Harkins, a doll dance by Mary and Jennie Danchuk, and a duet by Jessie Harrold and Violet Steller filled the intermission. Midnight Shires sang while Mrs. E. V. Ross, Miss O. Schie and Mr. T. H. Hamilton chose the best acting and actor

Girl Scouts Celebrate 25th Anniversary As Tribute To Founder Juliette Low

* * * * * * *

Twenty-five years ago an American woman, returning from England, debarked from the S.S. Arcadian enthused with a burning idea. Beginning March 12 of this year nearly 400,000 girls in the United States commenced an eight-month celebration of the result of this idea which proved to be the establishment of the Girl Scout Organization of North America; sister organization to the Girl Guides of Canada and the British Empire.

The woman was Mrs. Juliette Gordon Low an American lady who had married an Englishman and gone to live in his native land. There she became acquainted with Sir Robert Baden Powell and his sister. They discussed his plans for the Boy Scout Movement and Mrs. Low became enthusiastic over the possibility of organizing a similar project for girls.

EARLY EFFORTS

Her first effort at forming a sister organization to the Boy Scout Movement was among the girls of Glen Lyon, Perthshire, where her husband had a shooting lodge.

This group was called Girl Guides, a name adopted by the movement which later sprung up all over England and the British Empire. The young women and girls of Glen Lyon included chicken raising, and weaving the wool sheared from their parents' sheep, phases of activity vastly different to any on the present Girl Guide plan.

Mrs. Low went on to organize other groups in Lambeth and London—her experiences increasing her eagerness to promote the gift of scouting to American girls, and on her return to her home in Savannah, Georgia, she lost no time in commencing her effo's to organize troops there.

TURNED PARTY INTO FIRST TROOP

Commendering the unenthusiastic aid of several somewhat bewildered friends, she gave a tea-party for 12 girls, and by the time the party was over, those girls were the first Girl Scout troop in America.

It is because Mrs. Low was the kind of woman she was that when the 1912 tea-party is commemorated by 16,145 troops and Brownie packs of Girl Scou's in 4,586 cities, it will be more than a birthday party to celebrate the Silver Jubilee of the organization.

It will be a nationwide tribute to the success of Mrs. Low's great vision, to her faith in American girlhood and to her personality which transmuted apathy and disillusionment into energetic enthusiasm and sustained effort.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, the president, and first Girl Scout to become a First Lady, opened the celebration with a national broadcast on March 12, the birthday evening. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, honorary president, was the principal speaker at a Silver Jubilee dinner in New York on April 9. From August 9 to 23, girls from thirty foreign nations, members of the international Girl Scout movement, will be the guests of American Scouts during a great encampment at Camp Andree, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y. The climax of the jubilee celebration will be a national convention at Savannah Ga., the birthplace of Girl Scouting.

HANDICAPPED BY ILL-HEALTH

Mrs. Low would seem to be the last person on earth to undertake the foundation of a great national movement—and was in more, practically single-handed carry it on indomitable will, a complete through the early days of confusion and struggle.

Georgia Widow Fought First Battles Unaided

Fifty-two years old when she brought the idea back from England, in ill-health, handicapped by deafness, with no lots of experience in organizing, ignorant of office routine and completely helpless in financial matters she had nothing but blindness to obstacles and a fervent faith in the worth of her idea.

She turned her deafness into an asset by using it to ignore refusals of co-operation, Never a wealthy woman, she financed the movement in its cradle days and when funds ran low, she sold her personal possessions. Her cheque-book was ever a joke to her and bills payable were filed in four bundles, marked "This Year" "Next Year" "Sometime" and "Never." When the early committees of the Girl Scouts struck a snag, her invariable solution was "Let's put it up to the girls." If the girls liked it, it was right. If not, out with it!

Juliette Low's great dream was of goodwill between the world's races, with Girl Scouting as the medium. She considered Scouting as a game whose rules are: To play fair. To play in your place. To play for your side and not yourself." Mrs. Low died in 1927, active almost to the day of her death.

And because the Girl Scouts recognized that they owe their very being to Mrs. Low's devotion to an idea, and the continued growth of the organization to her original and generosity of time, energy and money, the Silver Jubilee will be but much a festival as it will be a fitting and fruitful attempt of her ideals as it is a celebration of the material well-being of the movement.

Two Plus Two Club Plans Dance

Members and friends of the Two Plus Two Club, will attend a dance at the All Saints Parrish Hall on the evening of Thursday, April 1. Dancing will commencest 9 o'clock.

This is one of the many social affairs to be held by the club during the coming months. Miss Irene McKenzie, chairman of the social committee, is in charge of arrangements and an interesting program has been planned.

Under the leadership of Charles Hustwick, the club has gained a new momentum and preparations are being made for the remainder of summer activities of the club. Members have proven themselves very active and every indication points to a successful attainment of the club's aims in the three fields which are listed as educational, social and sport activities. The club will further attempt to establish cooperation among youth and advocates the establishment of a youth centre where all activities among youth organizations can be housed.

MANY HOGS SHIPPED

THORSBY, March 27.—With many members enrolled along the C.P.R. line from Ledue to Lacombe, the Blindman Valley Hog Pool is keeping up shipments to last year's standard, and is ahead of 1935.

Of the evening who were Miss Nellie Scraba and Mr. Billie Carp. The program closed with the singing of "God Save the King."

Mr. E. V. Ross, principal of the school, acted as chairman, and make-up arrangements were made by the capable direction of Mr. C. Shook. The Students' Union is very grateful to all who took part in the program and to all those who helped in any way.

EASTWOOD HOLDS MOST SUCCESSFUL SCHOOL CONCERT

Pedalling his toy auto onto the stage and giving a fair hitch-hiker a lift as the strains of the school orchestra brought the refrain, "Hiking Down the Highway," Neil Forrest and shyest little boy of grade five brought to a happy ending one of the finest programs that has been staged in the history of the school, when pupils of Eastwood intermediate and public schools held a concert in the auditorium Thursday evening and Friday afternoon.

The Glee club opened the program with a number of choruses and the pupils in grades three and four amased their parents by the memory they showed for a long series of exercises in a ward drill.

Grade two boys and girls ran the mouse up and down the clock in record time and then made way for the bigger fellows who fell all over the floor and turned handsprings over the backs of chairs. The wee tots sang cherries, fish and turnips until the audience thought they were back in Old London Town. Then grades seven and nine girls danced them off to Ireland with their dancing of the Irish lilt and the rye waltz. A novel note in the program was struck by swinging by the girls of grade eight. Grades six and seven contributed a goodly share to the program with two short, but peppy skits.

Grade eight lots on the program were Accordion solo, Mike Wakal; violin solo, Norman Morgan; piano trio, June Davies, Kirsti Luoma, and Lola Dyster; song, "A Little Old Lady," Ruth Wiles.

Junior Poultry Fanciers Organize

A junior group of poultry fanciers has recently been organized through the activities of the Edmonton Poultry and Pet Stock Association, and an interesting program will be drawn up for 1937. The first official meeting will be held in the club rooms, 10010 102 street, on Tuesday, March 30. The age limit for members in the group is 21 years, according to present indications a large number of interested teen-age boys and girls will attend. The meeting will start at eight o'clock.

Rambler Rangers Are Organized

The Rambler Trail Rangers had their first official meeting on Wednesday. Officers were elected and members initiated by Mr. Harold Fraackerley, president of the Provincial Boys' Work Board and Mr Roland Moore, mentor.

Those elected were: Chief Ranger, Tommy Russell; sub-chief ranger, Arthur Blackwood; tally, Harry Cache, Robert Wilson; press reporter, Jim Arden.

Pastor for the group, Rev. Mr. Ramsey, will be initiated as an honorary member at the next meeting which will take place on the regular day, Wednesday, in Erskine United church at 7.30.

Benefit Held For Man Stricken Blind

BITTERN LAKE, March 27. — Benefit dance held at Central Community Hall on March 24 added $29.50 to the fund being raised to send Gunnard Holstrom to Mayo Brothers Hospital for treatment for his eyes. Mr. Holstrom received total blindness overnight and his condition has not been helped by treatments given by doctors. The dance was donated, as was the music, by Sevne's orchestra of Wetaskiwin.

DANCE AFTER GAMES

ERSKINE, March 27.—After basketball games in which Erskine boys and girls teams defeated the visiting players from Big Valley, a party and dance entertained the guests in the I.O.O.F. hall.

The Junior Authors' Club

At long last the buttons really have arrived, and the whole pretty green and gold buttons proclaiming membership in the Bulletin Junior Authors' club were mailed to all the boys and girls who have written to the corner so far. Thank you, pals, for having been so very patient while numerous delays kept you waiting for the buttons, but by this time you will have them at last, and I hope you like them and will wear them gaily.

Lois and lois of the buttons are now on hand, safely tucked away in the editor's desk, and just waiting now for stacks and stacks of letters from boys and girls—letters sending in stories and poems of your own original composition, in order that the editor can send each one a button and a membership card in the Junior Authors' club.

So take pen in hand, pals, send your stories and poems to the editor for printing in the Junior Authors' corner and become a member of the club that is going to grow and grow until it numbers just about every young person in Alberta.

Today the first letter is from Joan Neal, 10939 81 avenue, Edmonton. Joan says:

"Dear Editor:

"We had a play at school about two weeks ago. It was called Old King Cole. I was in the play. I played the part of a Chinaman. The play fitted right in with our enterprise work as it was on China.

"Our enterprise now is We Send Messages to Children Near and Far.

"I am eight years old and in grade three at Normal Practice school.

"Well, I must go now.

"Your friend,

"JOAN NEAL."

Joan send in a very fine little poem, to which the editor awarded four stars:

CHINA IN CHINA

The rickshaws rumble around the land.

If you want a sedan chair they're always on hand,

In China.

The streets are dirty all around.

The beggars lie hungrily on the ground.

In China,

They eat roasted chesnuts, ginger bread and tea.

But the rice they eat is best for me,

In China.

Thank you, Joan. The editor hopes you will like the next card and button and that you will write again soon.

* * *

Here is a letter from Vera Wasylyshyn, of Morinville, that the editor found very appealing:

"Dear Editor:

"I am ten years old and in grade four. I would like to join your Junir's Authors' club. Will you please publish this story?

THE CONVENT AT MORINVILLE

The first time I came to Morinville I thought the convent was a hospital. It was a big building. I think it had five storeys. Then I was sick. My father did not know where the hospital was. I said it was across the road. He went to see, but it was the convent.

"Yours truly,

"VERA WASYLYSHYN."

The editor is glad to welcome you to the corner, Vera. Send another story some time, won't you?

Arriving too late to appear in the corner last week was a letter from an old pal, Joan Charters, of Grande Prairie, which says:

"Dear Editor:

"For the last two weeks there was no library books club so I thought no one had been writing and I decided I would write again. I was anxious to get a letter from some one for I haven't had one yet.

"I have been taking music lessons for the past year. I made up a little poem and then I made the music to play it. I want to know if I should send the music.

St. Joseph's Dramatic club put on a play on Feb. 22nd in Grimshaw. In between acts there were some children who played a band. I played a drum.

"The creek has been very good for skating this year. Last Saturday we skated about six miles up the creek and six back. Neal Saturday two of my girl friends and I are going to start at nine o'clock and bring lunch and skate to the other side bridge. It is about 12 miles. I cannot write you a story this week, so I thought I would write a letter.

"Your friend,

"JOAN CHARTERS."

The editor is always glad to receive one of your letters, Joan. What fun to play a drum in a band! I should think that would be just about the nicest thing to do! Yes, Joan, if you would like to send a copy of the music you made up, the editor will show it to a certain person who knows a good deal about music, to see if it is really good. The editor alone knows practically nothing whatever about music. I am sorry to admit—doesn't even know do-re-mi-so from fa-si-fa-fum, so some one else will have to be called in on this problem.

Perhaps you have begun your correspondence with Helen Mullegan by now. Have you? Do write to let the editor and other pals know how the correspondence plan is coming along.

There is one thing the editor would like to say to all pals before closing. It is this. Please mention when writing to the club whether or not the stories you are sending is your own composition.

The Junior Authors' corner is intended first of all to be a place where pals and pals may see published the letters, stories and poems that they have written themselves. The editor trusts the pals who write in to send only their own work, not that copied from any other book or paper.

Hereafter, when sending in a favorite story or poem not your own work be sure to mention the author or the book from which the piece was taken. However, in all cases the editor would prefer that the poems and stories sent in should be the original work of members of the club.

Now, that's all the lecturing for this week. Quite enough, too, isn't it. And so until next week the editor bids you goodbye.

Provost Lad Working For Scout Badge As Citizen Of The World

SCOUT DOINGS

Patrol leaders' training course for boys of the Second Edmonton Troop of St. Faith's church will be held from March 29 to April 2.

Second Troop Scoutmaster Bill Frost will be in charge of the program. Patrol leaders from the 8th Edmonton Troop to St. Mary's in the Highlands under Scoutmaster Jack Humphreys have also been invited to attend.

The meetings will be held in private homes and topics to be discussed include tenderfoot, second and first-class, Court of Honor, investiture, hiking and camping, and the patrol system. A hike is planned for the following Sunday.

Fourth Edmonton Scouts of Garneau have been enjoying an active season of regular week-end hikes. This outdoor activity has provided opportunity for several of the boys to prepare their cooking tests.

The Troop has planned a special all-day hike for the week-end. The hike will depart from the Scout hall for an unknown destination. Outdoor scouting games and an evening campfire will be features of the hike.

Map reading tests and first aid are presently holding the attention of the boys. Troop Leader Allan is expected to qualify for first-class standing within the near future. The Fourth Troop has made splendid progress during the past winter under the Scoutmastership of Dr. J. J. Ower, who has been assisted by Dr. L. B. Pett.

Under the leadership of E. Caldwell members of the 19th Edmonton Wolf Cub Pack have been hard at work on badge tests.

The following tenderfoot badges have been issued to members of the Pack this week, Tom Davis, Billy Parker, Richard Labonne, Bobby McCallum, Melvin Staines, Henry Charles, Ross Cawley, Gordon Goodman and Jimmy Harrison.

Awards of tenderfoot badges have been the order of the day at the Kiwanis Home where members of the 12th Edmonton Scout Troop have been doing some good badge work under the leadership of Scout-Master R. H. Beckus.

Tenderfoot badges have been issued to Carl Baluck and George Baletic.

C.C.Y.M. Replies To R. B. Bennett

Gilbert Wright, president of the Edmonton Youth Council, was the guest speaker for the evening at the last general membership meeting of the C.C.Y.M. held in the club rooms.

He expressed optimism over the possibilities of the Youth Council in bringing the different organizations of the city together to work on common problems. He also announced that the Youth Council plan to send two delegates to the Youth Congress in Montreal this summer. Bill Thornton moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Wright for his enthusiastic address.

An invitation to attend a meeting of the American College of Surgeons in Edmonton this week was accepted by the meeting. A letter from the Young Communist League inviting the C.C.Y.M. to send delegates to the provincial convention to be held in the Leadership Hall on March 26, 27 and 28 was read and Bill Thornton was selected as delegate.

A letter replying to R. B. Bennett's question as to how the Youth Council should be organizationalized in Canada was read and is being forwarded to Ottawa.

Reports were given by various chairmen of committees on their activities of the past few months.

The meeting concluded with refreshments. The next meeting will take place in the club rooms, 10010 102 street, April 7 at eight o'clock.

Corresponds With Scout Troops In All Parts of Globe

Citizen of the world, that is' what Scout Nathan Stacy of Provost will be when he has completed the requirements for his World Friendship badge.

This badge provides what almost amounts to a correspondence school course in world brotherhood. It requires that the Scout attempting to win it shall exchange letters with Scouts in many other countries, both British and foreign.

Nat has already made a good start as his mail now bears such postmarks as South Africa, India and Australia. Disappointed when local Scout headquarters told him that they were unable to supply him with addresses of all Scout troops in the British Empire, he wrote back asking for assistance in finding correspondents in Gibraltar, St. Helena, Trinidad, Barbados, the Straits Settlements, Southern Rhodesia, Sierra Leone, Nyasaland, East Africa, Jamaica and the Falkland Islands.

By the time he has corresponded with Scouts in all of these countries, Nat should not only be entitled to his World Friendship badge, but should have a marvelous knowledge of geography and be well on his way towards a tidy stamp collection. Scoutmaster of the Provost troop is George Helmes.

TROCHU SCOUTS PLAN SPORTS DAY FOR CORONATION

TROCHU, March 27. — Special celebration will be held by Scouts and Cubs of Trochu, Lousana, Three Hills, Delbourne, Swalwell, Torrington and Wimborne districts mark Coronation day. May 12, it was stated at the last regular meeting of scoutmasters and cubmasters at Trochu school recently.

The big day will begin with a parade from the Trochu village to the fair grounds. Flag break and formel opening will be followed by demonstrations of individual knotting and first aid, including demonstrations on the use of the tourniquet and the triangular bandage. A staff drill will complete the morning.

A general get-together is in order for the noon hour, when cubs and scouts, with their basket lunches, will meet at the grounds.

BONFIRE IN EVENING

The afternoon will be devoted to softball tournaments, nd sport competitions and the evening will see a club athletic program. To wind up an eventful day a huge bonfire will be built in the centre of the field, in light cubs and scouts will stage a program of skits, recitations, stunts and songs. Each troop will give two or three items and a song. In order to encourage as many parents as possible to attend the day's program no admission will be charged.

It is expected that about 90 scouts and 60 cubs will take part in events of the day. The celebrations will mark the first time that the different packs have met together for visiting, and will inaugurate inter-visiting among the troops. All of these troops are of recent organization, the oldest having been started only two years ago, and the youngest groups being only a few months old so an enthusiastic endeavor such as this should make a great step forward in their task of becoming established.

GRADUATES TO VISIT

SYLVAN LAKE, March 27.—The high school dramatic club is busy preparing two one-act plays to be presented early in April. Proceeds will be used to entertain members of the graduating class on a two-day trip to Edmonton later in the season.

CORONATION CUT-OUTS

THE EARL MARSHAL

In the order of precedence the earl marshal is the eighth great officer of state, and is the only officer who is an earl by virtue of the office he holds.

His is also one of the oldest offices of the court. It dates back to earlier than 1066, for Roger de Montgomery was the marshal of the Norman army when William came over to Normandy and conquered England at the Battle of Hastings, so that, at any rate, he can be styled the first marshal of England. However, the title of earl marshal dates from 1135.

The office continued unbroken, held by such noblemen as Henry, Earl of Surrey, who afterwards became Duke of Norfolk, and to his male issue.

After the restoration Charles II restored the right. On October 19, 1672, he granted to the Howard family the dignity of earl marshal of England, with an allowance of £20 each year.

The earl marshal's court is the fountain head of all laws of arms, and it usually sits in the heralds' office. From this court are published royal proclamations. It also grants coats of arms. Attendant on his court are the Kings of Arms, heralds and pursuivants, who are expected to be persons of learning, skilled in ancient and modern languages, good historians and conversant in the genealogies of the nobility and gentry. The pursuivants, it may be noted, are, so to speak, the heralds' apprentices, learning the duties of heralds, eventually to be promoted to that rank.

As it is the duty of the earl marshal to arrange the details of all court ceremonies, his work with the approaching coronation is at present heavy heavy.

SUGGESTIONS FOR COLORING

Face—Flesh tint of yellow ochre and red.

Robe—Crimson with white cape and front edging; lining, bluish gray; collar at neck, yellow.

Sash—Purple, crimson; ermine edging white; remainder, yellow.

Chain and badge—Yellow.

Ribbon, breeches and stockings—white.

Base tabs—Dark green.

HOW TO MAKE

Paste the picture on a stout piece of paper and press flat. When thoroughly dry cut carefully along the outline of the illustration, then lay the "cut-out" face upward on a flat surface and bend figure upwards at dotted line marked AA. Now cut along two dotted lines marked B, and bend the tabs marked C and D backwards, leaving the centre tab to point forward. The three tabs will form a base for figure to stand on.

"Equality" Finally Achieved As Young Men's Club Invades The World Of Fashion Shows

SHADES of Emmeline Pankhurst and Mary Wolstencraft—they did not live in vain! In their day women were beginning to usurp the rights and customs of men—but by the beard of the prophet—the worm has turned. On Friday evening it happened—in the city of Edmonton—in the year 1937—a men's fashion show—complete with ensembles, color schemes—and male mannequins. We've been everywhere and seen everything now. We'll never be surprised again.

THE SINGLE STANDARD

Held in the Tivoli ballroom as a special feature of ice dance sponsored by the Club d'Equire—"The Easter Parade" of male finery marked the ultimate triumph of the fight for equality and the single standard.

As the announcer explained each model—the male mannequin strutted, stumbled and stomped in front of an admiring crowd of more than 400 spectators.

"Note", said the announcer, "this color, and that line"—and then the mannequin would slowly take off his topcoat, twisting it seductively and expertly so that we'd be sure to see the gorgeous silk lining—and then, the outer cover—ah—ahhh—shall we say cocoon—was shed and the moth—pardon us—model—stood revealed in all the beauty of the latest honey-dan, or cornation blue, or half-inch checks as the case might be.

"EVENING" FASHIONS

Of course—the lads lacked just the finesse that one sees in one of these Paris fashion parades in the theatres—they all blushed demurely —that is except the one who really had a right to. For the riot of the evening was the appearance of a somnambulist—nme withheld by very special request—who appeared attired—and we have witnesses—in a stocking nightcap—and an old fashioned, knee length nightshirt.

Without a blush, a flush or an apology—carrying a candlestick to light the way—the apparition appeared out of the dark—gropingly wandered about the stage. The wondering audience stood in dazed silence and amazement. Then someone realized what the garment was —the word spread quickly—and the applause put a permanent dent in the roof of the ballroom.

The only thing missing in the show was a display of lingerie from Paree and coiffures by Marcel.

THE WELL DRESSED MAN

Many a maiden cheek in the hall blushed as the mannequins perked out demurely from under the chic snap brims of the latest hats—and many a male looked in envy at the smart tailoring, and smart colors of the spring's offerings for the well dressed man.

But now just a word for men only—It's color this season, m'dear. Color—with the emphasis on plaid checks, and bi-swing, belted and pleated backs. And here's just another note to guide you as you pick your spring wardrobe. The new suits are specially designed to include vast areas of pants—and to advise that you pick up a pair of cream flannels—too. For the jacket of your suit goes nattily with the cream flannels.

"SPORTY"

Then — sweaters — the economy note here. Her idea is to give you more time. Instead of going to bed for a day while your suit went to the cleaners—and the customer to be, you now put on the extra pair of pants add a sweater or a leather jacket. A few grass stains on your shoes and hands,—rush down to the office a few minutes late—and explain—"lost my ball on the last hole."

Mannequins were the Messrs. Mac Young, Ken Cuthbertson, Mac Young, Alfred Karrer, Stan Oakes, Terry Pierce-Goulding, Gordon Garside, Frank Lewis, Alex Watson, Dick Locke, Graham Shewell and Percy Powers.

HOSTS

Members of the club who acted as hosts were Messrs. Jack Adams, Neil Cuthbertson, Lincoln Graham, Walter Howard, Percy Powers, Graham Shewell, Victor Soley, and Alex Watson.

A few among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Sidey, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Dowling, and Mrs. R. H. Lemoyniere.

LLANARTHNEY SCHOOL BREAKS UP FOR VACATION

Corridors were rapidly deserted when Llanarthney School closed this week, as teachers and students, holiday-bound, dashed for week-end trains.

Miss Ethelinda B. Watts, the principal, has gone to spend the Easter vacation with Dr. and Mrs. J. Palmer of Calgary. Miss Margaret McNeil will also be in Calgary, the guest of her parents, Judge and Mrs. McNeill. An ardent horsewoman and familiar figure in Western Canadian horse shows, Miss McNeill will ride in the Calgary horse show next week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Hord of Vancouver will have their daughter, Miss Margaret Hord, also of the teaching staff, as their holiday guest and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Watson of Calgary are looking forward to the visit of their daughter, Miss Eileen Watson.

Of the students, Miss Vivian McLeod, accompanied by her guest, Miss Margaret Gillies has gone to Cadomin to be with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J., McLeod. Miss Jean Fairbairn is spending the vacation at Waterways. Miss Marian and Miss Heather Wright are visiting their parents Mr. and Mrs. George Wright in Penhold and Miss Enid May Hobson has left for Lougheed the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Hobson.

"Y" Notebook

Special Easter music under the direction of Mrs. Jean Saigeon Kirkpatrick and Miss Helen Barbour will be a feature of the Vesper Service at the Y.W.C.A. on Sunday afternoon. Mrs. A. B. Mac-Kenzie will be the speaker. Mrs. A. K. Southen will preside during the service and later Mrs. A. S. Tuttle will be hostess at tea.

From This Day Forward

The time of the Easter bride, as well as the Easter parade, is here. The Easter bride should emerge from the comparative gloom of Lent like a lovely white butterfly bursting from its chrysalis into a new life —as she is indeed.

An Easter gown of striking simplicity and effectiveness is the model of silk net posed over lustrous silk satin, right. Long sleeves trimmed with tiny covered buttons, a square, yoke-like decolletage and a belted waistline are features of the dress. The lovely veil is silk lace, and gardenias are carried with the prayer book.

Slightly different but equally lovely, is the ivory celanese satin gown, left, worn by June Lang, screen player. It is fashioned on redingote lines, and is buttoned from the neck to below the waist with tiny buttons made of heavy white lace that bands the skirt and forms a triangular panel, makes the narrow turnover collar, and the deep cuffs that reach the elbow.

Clouds of white tulle fall from a coronet of lace. A quaint bouquet is carried by this bride.

Romance is a strong factor of the fashions for spring. A Madame Bovary wedding dress, shown by a New York shop was developed in white mousseline posed over white satin. The skirt was given a bouffant effect through feather-boning. It also was trimmed with rows of braid trimming, which was repeated on the "tucker" of the bodice. A hood veil was worn with this romantic looking dress, and a quaint, old-fashioned bouquet was carried.

The bridesmaids' gowns to accompany this model were built on the same lines as the wedding dress, and trimmed with rows of novelty lace.

Madame Bovary, in case you don't know, was the French novelist, Gilbert Flaubert's sweetheart, and lived between 1821-80.

"Over The Teacups"— Twenty Years Ago

From the Files of the Edmonton Bulletin

IN THE last number of the "Lady's Pictorial," London, under the caption, "The Land of Hope," Miss Elizabeth Banks whose pen-name is "Enid" and who visited Edmonton shortly before last Christmas, has this to say about our street system:

"It is Edmonton the capital city of the Province of Alberta, which has for its motto, "Industry, Energy and Enterprise." The last quality is shown in the laying out of its streets and the numbers of its houses. I have forgotten how many streets are in this look-ahead city of about 50,000 inhabitants, but I seem to remember that it is nine hundred and something street, number two million and six, that I found Mrs Arthur Murphy, so well-known in the book-world as "Janey Canuck."

She is the president of the Canadian Women's Press Club, which has branches in every Canadian town, and she has the distinction of being the only woman magistrate. As she opened the door of her home to me and welcomed me as a sister, I asked her where were the rest of the two million houses in that street, for I must tell you that her house seemed to be very much "detached."

"Why they're going to be built," said Janey Canuck.

Mrs. Nellie L. McClung will be the speaker at the morning service at McDougall Methodist church on Sunday, March 28.

Championship Recipes In Cook's Competition

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

The national "cook-off" is practically on. It begins next Monday, the 29th. From six section of the United States, contestants will "cook-off" against each other in the second annual Champion Cookery Contest sponsored by the Women's National Exposition of Arts and Industries in New York.

The big money goes to the kitchen-of-skills with the menu with most balance, taste, appearance and ingenuity.

Out of thousands of recipes entered by contestants in the sectional competitions, here's one from Mrs. H. A. Townsend, of Minneapolis, who packs a powerful chow mein loaf.

CHOW MEIN LOAF

(4 to 6 servings)

Three-quarters pound of veal, ground very fine, 3 cups diced celery, ½ cup sliced onion, 1 teaspoon molasses, 2 well beaten eggs, ½ cup fine cracker crumbs, ½ cup water, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-16 teaspoon black pepper, dash of red pepper.

Mix veal, celery, onions, crumbs and seasoning. Beat eggs with water and molasses; add mixture. Pack in greased oblong pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 1 hour. Serve on large platter and surround with riced potatoes topped with mushroom gravy and garnish with wedges of hard-cooked eggs and parsley. For gravy, combine 1 can mushroom soup with equal amount of sweet milk, thicken with flour and add seasoning and a tablespoon each of bacon drippings.

Mrs. Townsend follows up with this dessert, which she calls

BLUEBERRY ECLAT

(4 to 6 servings)

One cup canned blueberries. 1 teaspoon lemon juice, 2 tablespoons plain gelatin, 1 cup sweet milk, 1 cup whipping cream, 2-3 cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 cup chopped nuts, 8 macaroons crushed very fine, 1 cup gelatin into milk until completely dissolved. Add blueberries, sugar and salt. Chill. Whip cream, add lemon juice and fold into chilled tin mixture. Pour small amount of blueberry mixture into wet mould, then sprinkle with macaroon crumbs and nuts. Add more gelatin, then more macaroons and nuts. Repeat until used. Pack in freezing tray of refrigerator or in equal parts of ice and salt for several hours. Serve in tall parfait glasses. We're shouting for you, Mrs. Townsend.

Warm weather isn't far off and Mrs. Lloyd J. Robertson of Philipsburg, Ont., has an answer—Lemon Pineapple Ice. She says, "My pride and joy! Lacks the faults and has the virtues of other recipes. No cooking! No gelatin! No marshmallows! Real economy! That's our ice!" Thanks, Mrs. Robertson, step right up and do your stuff.

LEMON PINEAPPLE ICE

(4 to 6 servings)

Two cups milk, 1¼ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons canned lemon juice, 1 can crushed pineapple, 2 egg whites, ¼ teaspoon salt.

Mix milk, sugar, salt and lemon juice. Freeze in mechanical refrigerator until mushy, stirring once or twice. Add beaten egg whites and 1 cup crushed pineapple. Stir occasionally while freezing. Bravo, Mrs. Robertson.

What To Do

We expect to have our first baby christened shortly and would like to make a little occasion of it. Please give me details.

MRS. M. N. S.

Answer—If the christening is in the afternoon, a tea might follow; if in the morning, a breakfast or luncheon. You may telephone your invitations or write them informally. Prepare very simple refreshments, serving them as you would at any other function. Before deciding on the date for the christening, select the godparents or sponsors and consult them about the day and time. Naturally, only very close friends or relatives will be chosen for this honor. Usually the christening takes place in church. But if the rite is performed at the home, you will supply a font of silver or crystal bowl on a small table near the minister.

Monday's Menu

BREAKFAST: Bananas and dates with lemon juice, fried whole wheat cereal cakes, bacon, maple syrup, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Grapefruit juice, onion and cheese souffle, crisp rolls, chocolate eclairs, tea, milk.

DINNER: Menu suggested by Mrs. Katherine Drake of Indianapolis: Peanut butter canapé, green peppers stuffed with beef and pork, sweet potatoes with marshmallows, spinach, celery, cottage cheese and asparagus salad, crushed pineapple in glasses with red mints, cookies, coffee, milk.

Brushing The Hair Won't Injure Wave

By GLADYS GLAD

Women of a certain country, I am told, have the idea that it is unlucky to brush or comb the hair on Friday. Since waves became so popular, I'm beginning to think most women consider brushing the hair unlucky on any and every day, for that old practice of giving the hair its daily hundred brush strokes certainly seems to have been discontinued.

The reason that the practice of brushing the hair daily has gone more or less into the discard, is that so many women think brushing will ruin their waves. That, however, is a fallacious belief, for brushing distributes the natural oil evenly over the hair, and it really helps to bring out the full loveliness of a wave, be it natural or permanent.

Because of this erroneous belief that some women have, however, a famous brush manufacturer has just created a new brush that is designed especially for waved hair. This brush, shaped to the contour of the head for wave-length brushing, lifts a full layer of hair at each stroke. This makes it unnecessary to divide a wave into sections and risk stretching it out of shape during the brushing.

To use this new type of brush properly, set it on its side against the head, with the bristles pointing toward the part. Then roll the brush over until all the bristles touch the scalp, and draw it outward with a sweeping movement to the ends of the hair. Next part the hair about an inch lower, and brush forward from underneath the upper layer. Never brush waved hair directly upward or flat against the head.

When all the hair has been brushed in layers with the contour brush, hold the waved portion lightly in one hand while with you brush the ringlet ends up briskly, finishing with short upward strokes at the nape of the neck. Then, with a blunt-toothed comb, restore the coiffure to its original shape, and brush the ringlets over your finger for added luster.

Personally, I believe that, wave or no wave, every woman should give her hair a good, brisk brushing each day, for a brush, when properly used, is one of the greatest of hair beautifiers. It removes all dirt, foreign particles and dried cuticle from the hair. It stimulates the circulation in the scalp, thus bringing nourishment to the hair follicles. And it polishes the hair making it glassy and lustrous.

PATTERN 5297.

Household Arts by Alice Brooks

A rustic home in a flower garden with the old-time well giving just the right touch, proves delightful "needle-painting." It's done to the greatest part in single stitch, a touch of French knots and lazy-daisy stitch give realism to the flowers. You needn't frame it—just line it and hang it up.

In pattern 5297 you will find a transfer pattern of a wall hanging 15 x 20 inches; a color chart; material requirements; illustrations of all stitches used; directions for finishing wall hanging.

To obtain this pattern send 20 cents in coin to The Edmonton Bulletin, Household Arts Dept. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and PATTERN NUMBER.

Home Influence Most Potent | Children Learn By What They See

The Examples That Parents Set Have a Life Lasting Effect For Good Or Ill Upon the Children, So Only the Best Should Be Shown

It is a curious thing that parents so seldom seem to realize that their attitude toward life sets that of their children. Most of them appear to go upon the cheerful theory that if they preach the doctrine of righteousness to their offspring they do not have to illustrate it personally by their conduct and anyway it's all luck about how children turn out, and their environment has nothing to do with it.

Hence we have the ironic spectacle of fathers and mothers who want their children to be truthful, yet who let little Sally and Johnny hear them lying out of engagements they don't want to keep. Who want their children to be honest, yet who let little Bobby and Mary hear them boast of sharp trades they have made, or brag of money they had sent up from the stores on approval that they used and sent back on some unsatisfactory. Who want their children to be sober, yet who let Susie and Tommy see them mauddin with drink. Who want their children to respect them, yet who accuse each other of unmentionable crimes when they have a spat.

Before strangers, even before their friends, most husbands and wives have the decency to keep up some sort of front and use some self-control, but before their children they let themselves go. They throw all restraint to the winds and give full rein to their tempers and their tongues without caring what the harm they are doing and that they are setting not only their children's pattern of life but that of their children's children.

We don't hear much nowadays about home influence, but nevertheless, for good or ill, it is still the most potent force in the world. It is the one thing from which none of us ever get away. It is what shapes us; what sets our characters and colors our thoughts; what forms our tastes and habits and ideals.

No matter how far we may go, no matter what veneer of sophistication we may put on, deep down in our innermost beings we are still what our homes made us. We still do things the way we were taught to do them as children; we still like home cooking best. In any crisis in our lives we stand or fall according to the principles we learned at our mothers' knees and whether our purpose is bred in strength or weakness is at first.

Since children are by the nature of things copyists, nothing is so vitally important as that their parents should give them a working model of the virtues they wish them to possess. It is no good theorizing with children. You must, in the slang of the day, show them.

If, for instance, you desire your children to develop into upstanding men and women who in the grit of fighting their way to success you must give them a daily exhibition in their own homes of what fortitude calls "the brave attitude toward life." They must have before their eyes the example of a man and woman who had the courage to carry on in the face of difficulties and who had a contempt for a quitter; who are willing to work and sacrifice for what they wanted; who stood upon their own feet and refused to look to others to get a goal before them toward which they drove despite every discouragement.

You will never find a child who comes from that kind of a family who is a lazy loafer and a parasite. He will never give up when the sledding gets hard. He will just tighten his belt and roll up his sleeves and put a little more vim into it. The derelicts and failures are invariably always the sons and daughters of fathers who were forever complaining that they never got any breaks, and of mothers who were whiners and self-pitiers and who made their "poor nerves" an alibi for their slovenly housekeeping.

If you want your children to have good manners, a pleasing personality and the good address that goes so far toward opening the door of success for a boy or girl, you have to start in the cradle by showing them how it is done. Children are grown-up in no time, no matter how many finishing schools you send them to. Good manners to be effective must be instinctive. If they are acquired, they always crack somewhere. The child who has been reared by a gentleman and lady has seen the amenities of society practiced in his own home knows no more how to be rude and boorish than he would how to practice any foreign custom.

If you want your children to have happy marriages, you must show them by example how husbands and wives should treat each other, for practically every boy is the kind of a husband his father was and practically every girl is the kind of a wife her mother was.

First Aid TO THE Ailing House

NEW ROOF OVER AN OLD

By Roger B. Whitman

Question: My roof is made of wood shingles and is old and the leaking badly. I like the effect of wood shingles. Can new ones be laid over the old? Or will this make the old ones rot?

Answer: There can be no rotting in dry shingles. With new and tight shingles laid on top, the old shingles will quickly dry out, and can then offer no such dampness. A new wood shingle roof can be added over the old with complete satisfaction. Old shingles that are curled should be flattened by splitting the split pieces and loose shingles should be nailed tight, and the missing shingles replaced. On all edges of the roof the old shingles should be cut back for two inches or more, to make space for the laying of strips of wood of corresponding thickness underneath. This gives tight edges and solid nailing for the new shingles. The new roof is then laid on top of the old in the usual way.

SETTLING OF AN OLD HOUSE

Question: My house is ten years old, and I thought that it had settled all that it was going to. Lately, in one corner, cracks have appeared in the plaster. Does this mean that settlement is still going on? The water faucet in that corner has apparently clogged, for a storm a puddle forms on the ground and does not go away for quite a while. Would this have anything to do with it?

Answer: That cracking is undoubtedly from settlement, and the puddle is evidently the cause. The continued wetness has softened the ground under the foundation at that point and the corner has sunk. You should put the leader in shape, and connect it to a dry well 15 feet or more from the house, or dispose of the water in some other way. With this trouble removed, the ground may come back to its normal firmness. Plaster will fall from cracks, put a pencil mark at the tip of each one. Should this show that the cracks are growing, you should excavate at that corner and put in a broader footing.

ROUGH CELLAR FLOOR

Question: The cement floor in my cellar is rough and uneven. How can I get it to a smooth enough surface for dancing?

Answer: The usual cellar floor is so thin that it cannot be resurfaced. The best remedy is to break up the floor into small pieces and to pack and level them, and to lay a new concrete floor on top. This can be made as smooth as you please.

Sense of Duty Brings A Woman Loneliness

By Kathleen Norris

DEAR MRS. NORRIS: The wife and I read your article every Sunday, and, if you'll excuse me for saying so, I get rather tired of hearing only of the girls' side of office love affairs. The girl, in these letters, is always the little innocent who is deceived by the big bad wolf of an employer. If he ever has any character or decency or self-control I've never seen you give him credit for it. Sometimes I wonder if you women realize just what a problem it is for the man, too; the man who comes in contact daily with some sweet young thing who is determined if she can to split up his home life, force him into a divorce, and take his wife's place. Sometimes I think there ought to be a law that every man's wife has to spend a part of the day in his office.

"My brother and I are lawyers, another brother is a dentist. And we three usually lunch once a week at a lunch club where we meet others of our sort, fellows who employ one or two women, clerks, or who work for big firms who employ many of them. And they all tell the same story. The office affair is a racket, now, and the girls have done everything but form a union.

"My brother Sid, one of the decentest fellows who ever lived, got mixed up with a girl about fifteen years ago. He got a divorce and married her, in a sort of daze of indifference. He didn't love her and never will. They were divorced two years later. Sid has always loved no one but his first wife, who has never forgiven him, nor have his boys.

Molested By Nurses

"My other brother, Henry, is eternally having hell to pay—if you will excuse me—with his office nurses. Henry is handsome, and he likes women—that is, he likes to talk to them and have them around. His wife thinks he is a regular Don Juan because these fools are always calling him at the house and faking messages from patients. One of them was a grass widow, a handsome girl about thirty, and simply perfect at her work, but she couldn't keep her hands off Henry. She'd be giving him significant glances, putting one perfect rose on the poor fellow's desk, telling him if he wouldn't love to run up to the Concert Hall with her on Sunday afternoon for just half an hour of restful music. She finally got so that she'd even have messages from his wife because 'they were disturbing,' and he was 'too important a man to be bothered with domestic woes.' Finally I got mad, and Henry fired her. Then her lawyer called with a story about letters and promises and all that, and he's been in hot water for three months now, trying to shake her loose.

"Then take me. I've got a grand wife and three boys. If my office is a woman named Lillian of about thirty-six, who was with us years ago, left us to get married, and is now divorced, with a girl of seven. The little girl is a perfect beauty, and when she used to come into the office to wait for her mother on Saturdays, I'd often have chocolate or a paper doll or something for her. She was terribly ill last winter, and as I passed Lillian's apartment on my way home—I always walk home —I used to drop in there now and then to ask about Diana. My wife knew it; in fact she used to go in and see the little thing herself sometimes.

"Well, Lillian got so that she'd have a cocktail for me, and on those cold nights, when I was tired, it was a darned pleasant break on the way home. Mary, my wife's mother was with us, and they'd be playing bridge until dinner was ready, about on the table, and I knew I'd not be missed. Our boys are at the age when they get home dirty and red-faced and noisy at the last possible minute, and I didn't see any harm in lingering a little while with Lillian and Diana. I've always wanted a daughter. I love little girls.

Love's Dramatics Lost

"A week ago we had the scene. Lillian was tearful and silent all morning; late in the afternoon she broke down. She cried. She said I was misunderstood at home. In short she gave me the works. Please, please couldn't I get up courage enough to tell Mary that our clinging to 'an outgrown feeling was wrecking three lives?'

"Now as a matter of fact I'm devoted to Mary, and if Lillian was Venus herself, with the Hulton fortune thrown in, I wouldn't throw Mary and the kids down. Right now, when I'm beginning to get back everything I ever did for my boy! So it meant I had to fire Lillian. I asked my brother if he could use her, and he said, 'Good Lord, no!' When she was here fifteen years ago she thought I was in love with her because I drove her home in my car once or twice!' She's job-hunting now.

"If an attractive girl keeps at it and keeps at it, and is always sweet and affectionate, nine times out of ten she'll get herself liked by her boss. That's my solution about it. But nine times out of ten he's wishing even while he's kissing her that she'd stick to business in the office, and cut out the confidences, the sympathy, the shy betrayal of devotion. When he employs a girl a man ought to be privileged to ask her, 'What's the chances of your falling in love with me and pestering the life out of me and messing up things at home?' Or in secretarial schools they ought to train the young female students on the young male students, and get it out of their systems. In six weeks you can ask him how his headache is; in seven weeks you can offer him a chocolate bar; in eight weeks you can suggest staying at the office in the evening to help him; in nine weeks you can say that you have been going with a nice young man, but you've sent him packing, and that calls for three dress nights, and so on.

"I'm showing my wife this letter and you can print it, if you want to. I'm the original boy that ought to be comforted with apples, for I am sure sick of love affairs.

"Andy."

Late in the afternoon she broke down. She cried. She said I was misunderstood at home. Please, please couldn't I get up courage enough to tell my wife that our clinging to "an outgrown feeling" was wrecking three lives?"

Andy, your letter made me laugh, but I enjoyed every word of it, and I know that thousands of other men will. You happen to be the first to speak for the persecuted brethren and I thank you.

Dutiful, But Bewildered

Today's second letter comes from one those unfortunate women who think all the important things in life are subject to rules of thumb; who believe that reason and justice are their right, in daughterhood, wifehood, motherhood, and who has gotten herself into the usual lonely, dreary, unbalanced condition that always follows upon that delusion.

Laura is thirty-seven, and she has always done her duty and expected others to do their duty in return. Therein all failed her, and she's left out on a solitary rock, still determined to do her duty, but rather bewildered now in that all human contacts have receded from her like a tide, and left her with not much duty to do.

Glancing over her sixteen-page, finely typed letter I come upon such phrases as, "I felt that this money was rightfully mine, and that my father was technically dishonest. We never had been sympathetic, and this ended our association. As I could not logically go into a house whose master was practically called me a liar. I did not see my mother for some months before she died. . . . As these friends were using me simply to entertain them and their friends on Sundays, I moved away. . . . Even though he was my husband I felt that John had been entirely in the wrong. . . . My cousin, perfectly aware that the choice had been left to me, went right on using them with no offer to send them to me. When I went for them her son, seventeen years old, stood idly by and never offered to help me get them into the car. . . . As the child's mother has never called on me, I feel that I don't want my little daughter, Laura, to go to that house. . . . Religion has always seemed a sort of deliberate hypocrisy to me, people trying to convince themselves of something for which there never has been, is not and never will be any proof. . . . With my second husband I had an understanding that we should criticise each other quite openly and frankly, immediately upon perceiving any fault. He now accuses me of cold-blooded and has left me, so that for seven months I have been obliged to return to my old position in the Public Library, and have placed Laura in boarding school. My life, accordingly, is empty. This is the result of my efforts to manage my affairs with reason and with complete devotion to what it has been given me to do.

"Can you suggest interests, occupations for many spare hours and ways in which I can form a desirable circle of friends, and feel myself a valued member of society? I feel that through the misuse of some of the very mistaken ways in which my parents treated me all through childhood, the unhappiness of my first marriage, the years of loneliness and poverty that followed, my nerves unknown terms and my unfortunate second marriage to a richer and older man, who was at heart still a self-made man, and who had a social position from me, and enjoying—or pretending to enjoy—impromptu expeditions, sudden changes of plan, even dancing and movie evenings, I have lost my all this. I say, that life has not been fair with me, and I am anxious to retrieve what can be retrieved. . . .

Laura, there's an answer, but you'll never find it standing up with your chin hard and your fists hard writing figures on a blackboard. You're a long way from discovering, my dear, that nothing valuable in life—and love, nor health, nor self-esteem—can be worked out by reason. The door to happiness hasn't got "reason" printed on it. It's a very low door, way down at your feet, Like Alice, you have to go on your knees to find it.

PEERS NAMED FOR AGE-OLD CEREMONIALS

Earl, Husband of Montreal Girl, Has Important Role

LONDON, March 27.—Names of the peers and peeresses who will play age-old parts in the historic ceremony of coronation May 12 were issued last night.

The Earl of Haddington, whose countess is the former Miss Sarah Cook of Montreal, will carry the Queen's ivory rod with the dove. The Duke of Rutland will bear the sceptre with the cross and the Duke of Portland the Queen's crown.

KING'S REGALIA

The following will carry the King's regalia: Viscount Halifax, St. Bernard's staff; the Duke of Somerset, the sceptre with the cross; Viscount Hastings and Baron Churston, the golden spurs—one each because they are joint-claims in the court of claims—Viscount Trenchard, the third sword; Baron Milne, the second sword; the Earl of Cork and Orrey, the sword of mercy; the Marquess of Zetland, the sword of St. Edward; the Duke of Richmond and Gordon, the sceptre with the dove; the Duke of Sutherland, the orb; the Marquess of Salisbury, St. Edward's crown.

FOUR GARTER KNIGHTS

The Marquess of Salisbury is appointed lord high steward and the Marquess of Crewe, lord high constable.

Four Knights of the Garter, the Marquess of Londenderry, the Duke of Abercorn, the Earl of Lytton and Earl Stanhope, will hold the gold canopy over the King during his anointing while the Dukes of Portland, Rutland, Buccleuch and Roxburghe will perform a similar office for Queen Elizabeth.

The King will be supported by the Bishops of Durham, Bath and Wells; the Queen by the Bishops of St. Albans and Blackburn.

The Bishop of Norwich will carry the bible; the Bishop of Winchester and Challice and the Bishop of London the patena, or plate for the bread of sacrament.

Crash Kills One

BERLIN, March 27.— One person was killed and four injured when a German passenger plane crashed near Hanover last night. It was attempting emergency landing, after developing motor trouble.

THE Royal Road TO THE CORONATION

The King-to-be with his sister, now the Princess Royal, and his brother Edward (right).

THOUGH the Boer War raged to disrupt the peace of empire and the great queen died to a nation's mourning, early years for the young Prince Albert and his brother and sister were comparatively uneventful. Too young to feel the tragedy of strife or of grief, the royal children were growing up as hundreds of thousands of sturdy British children do. Their father and mother, realizing the responsibilities that would some day rest upon them, planned their lives so that early tutoring would instil in the youngsters an appreciation of their duties.

But there was gayety and laughter in the royal household. There were happy weeks at Sandringham when the court of King Edward VII was there, and weeks in London and at Balmoral, in Scotland, where Prince Albert would one day find his bride. King Edward and Queen Alexandra were indulgent grandparents to the royal youngsters and gladly supervised their welfare and their happiness while the father and mother were absent on many a royal task.

Plentiful are the stories still told in the royal family of practical jokes and escapades played in those carefree years and if King George VI is a kindly and indulgent father today, perhaps to his own happy boyhood must the credit be given.

Sports became a popular part of the schedule. Prince Albert learned golf and tennis and is still the best player at both these games in the royal family. Squash racquets and football, and the national game, cricket, also early claimed his attention before 1909 saw the breakup of the family group and his own start in Osborne naval training school.

ABSOLVED OF MURDER, MINER BACK FROM U.S.

Kirkland Lake Man Stood Trial For 31-Year-Old Crime

FORT ERIE, Ont., March 27.—Acquitted of a 31-year-old murder charge at Newcastle, Pa., Rocco Esposito returned to Canada last night, "very, very glad to be back home."

He has no longing for celebrations by friends when he reaches his Kirkland Lake home. The 56-year-old miner expressed the wish to be left alone with his family.

The strain is all over, he told the lone newspaperman who greeted him. Now his only wish is to rush back to his wife and four children from whom he has been since New Year's Eve to try him for the slaying of Francesco Romeo October 7, 1906, at Newcastle.

Police accompanied Esposito, known as Strange at Kirkland Lake from Newcastle to Fort Erie.

Esposito praised the manner in which the Pennsylvania authorities treated him. His weight has increased by 25 pounds and he was rid of an acute indigestion ailment from which he suffered for two years, unable to work.

Club Physician To Canadiens Stricken

DETROIT, March 27.—Dr. J. A. H. Fortier, club physician of Montreal Canadiens, died of a heart attack in the team's dressing room during the third period of the Canadiens-Detroit Red Wings National hockey league play-off game last night.

German Chemist Clearance Held Up In Mystery

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados, March 27.—Erich Hanner, 27-year-old German chemistry graduate, was still without his clearance papers from Bridgetown today, at conclusion of an official investigation into the disappearance of two companions from his yacht between the Canary Islands and Barbados.

When Hanner arrived here last week, in an exhausted condition he told authorities Raymond Cartier, 40, and Miss Octavie Lemgiee had disappeared from the yacht during the evening of March 3 while he was asleep below.

George Pogmore, Murder Victim, Property Sold

BYEMOOR, March 27.—Sale has been made of the property of the late George Pogmore, farmer who was murdered by his hired man and for whose death Mrs. Pogmore is serving a life term as accomplice in the killing.

Although it was a cold day, many curious persons attended to see the scene of the murder. A new window replaced the one through which Pogmore was shot. The property brought a good price at the sale.

Duce Denounced By Marchers In Belgrade Pact

BELGRADE, March 27.—A crowd of several hundred students and workers, shouting "down with Mussolini," smashed windows in a demonstration last night against the new Yugoslav-Italian pact.

The demonstration concentrated in the central district of the city, but police quickly gained control of the situation.

Government spokesmen meanwhile emphasized that agreements reached between Italy and Yugoslavia would not disturb Yugoslavia's obligations to the Little Entente.

The five-year non-aggression political and economic pact was signing at Belgrade yesterday.

Pistol Marksman Going To Gotham

MONTREAL, March 27.—Sergeant R. G. Pickerell, crack shot of the investigation depart. nt of the Canadian National Railways, arrived here from Winnipeg this morning with a trunk full of trophies. Pickrell is on his way to Philadelphia and New York where he is to give a demonstration of marksmanship at sportsmen's shows in those cities.

Crash Kills One

BERLIN, March 27.— One person was killed and four injured when a German passenger plane crashed near Hanover last night. It was attempting emergency landing, after developing motor trouble.

John's Recollections of the Risen Lord

Illustrated Sunday School Lesson

Scripture—John 20:1-21:25.

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell and Alfred J. Buescher

COPYRIGHT 1937 KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

At dawn Easter day three women came to Jesus' tomb with spices to finish embalming His body. They were amazed to see the tomb open and empty. Mary Magdalene was first to see the risen Lord for He appeared to her.

Peter and John hurried to the tomb to verify the women's report. There the angel showed them the empty grave clothes still lying in position where Jesus' body lay, but empty of the body they once encased.

Five times Jesus appeared to various disciples Easter day. Thomas had missed all this and refused to believe unless he should see and feel Jesus' wounds. One week later he saw Jesus and believed, saying, "My Lord and my God."

Later Jesus appeared to seven apostles by the shore of the lake. Here He questioned Peter about his love as many times as Peter had denied Him. Peter professed his love humbly.

HOPE MISSION DOES GOOD WORK

Indicative of the excellent work accomplished by Hope Mission, 10519 101 street is the monthly statistical report of the organization.

It was reported that 166 families were helped during the month including 61 new families. There were 36 families helped on account of sickness and others were helped in emergency. Some of those assisted have given work in return.

The report indicated that 1,629 garments were given out as well as 209 pairs of shoes.

There were 1,057 meals and lunches given and 81 lodgings provided. In all there were 47 sick cases assisted with clothing and 12 single girls.

The mission is repeating its appeal to contributors in the hope that ministering to the needy can be continued. Clothing of all kinds is needed as well as bedding, used furniture and provisions.

Over The Speaker

By E. S. WOODWARD

The House has adjourned until Monday. The two day interlude gives me an opportunity to review the stirring happenings of the past week.

The fact of insurgency amongst rank and file members of the Social Credit ranks has been evident to all in touch with the legislature since the introduction of the budget. Even before the budget was introduced there had been advance notices of the government's intention to bring in a drastic licensing bill and to pass unpopular legislation affecting trade and commerce in the province, and this had created much unrest and apprehension both from the time of the budget the movement gathered strength and the rebels gained confidence.

At the outset the movement was not anti-Aberhart. The members assembled without animus against anybody but with a strong desire to discharge their duties to their constituents. They were imbued with Social Credit teaching that there is a practical way by which the State can issue money in quantities sufficient to abolish taxation and to give away incomes to everybody. Hence their dissatisfaction with the fact that they are assembling for the third time to increase taxes, curtail services and go cap in hand to the Federal government to plead for money.

The first man to come to open with an expression of his dissatisfaction was Mr. Blue, Social Credit M.L.A. for Ribstone. He spoke his mind twice before anyone else gained courage enough to support him openly, although there was plenty of approval expressed in the corridors. At a meeting of caucus Mr. Aberhart expressed his thanks to Mr. Blue and showed some willingness to accept the views of the insurgents. But alas! He did not withdraw the objectionable legislation and he did not change the budget. This brought insurgency into a new phase.

It should be stated at this point that Premier Aberhart has striven just as earnestly to find a means by which to implement Social Credit as the insurgents themselves. The difference between them is that the one is facing the hard facts of government, but the others are not carrying that responsibility. Mr. Aberhart himself believes that it would be quite simple to apply Social Credit teaching. He publicly announced that he had a "wondrous simple plan." But theories and slogans which sound quite feasible on the platform assume quite a different form when put to the touch-stone of reality. It has taken twenty months of government floundering to prove to the satisfaction of every dispassionate observer that Social Credit cannot be applied in the provincial jurisdiction of Alberta. Premier Aberhart has been forced to continue to budget by orthodox methods in order that the machinery of state should be kept in running order. Whilst still proclaiming Social Credit from the public platform he has continued to tax and spend and economize in the old fashioned way.

Insofar as the insurgents are attacking the bureaucratic tendencies of the Aberhart legislation, they are on firm ground. They regard these fascist measures as merely Mr. Aberhart's alibi for failure to implement Social Credit. But insofar as they themselves are demanding that public business shall be conducted by the wonderland methods of Social Credit mysticism, they are asking the impossible. In twenty months of striving Mr. Aberhart has failed to discover the secret of success. It remains to be seen whether twenty months of caucus striving there will be any better record. The attempt will be invaluable in part of the process of disillusionment. But will it reduce unemployment, or increase production, or accomplish any deliverance for the debt ridden people of Alberta? Subjectively the results will be worth while. What will be the results objectively? There would have been little difficulty in bridging the differences between government and caucus, if it had not been for the Premiers platform delivered last Sunday. What he then said about those who were discharging what they conceived to be their plain duty to their constituents added oil to the flames. The result has been a distinctly anti-Aberhart tendency and there are more unlikely developments than a cabinet crisis involving the retirement of the present premier.

hearing of an application made on behalf of the Industrial Mortgage and Trust Co. to regain possession of a farm held by T. M. Appleby, Holden district farmer.

It was stated by Allan D. Harvie, counsel for the company, that an agreement to quit the land had been signed by Appleby. The date on which he would vacate was set at February 28. In the meantime the moratorium was declared and Appleby asked by Judge up the land. He further made representations to the company that he would vacate if given $120 for breaking he had done during the fall.

Mr. Harvie stated the breaking was part of the agreement under which he had been permitted to retain possession last year.

While expressing the view that the defendant seemed to have little right in the matter Mr. Justice Howson reserved judgment, and instructed counsel to seek a settlement.

CLAYTON M. McLENNAN, member of one of Edmonton's pioneer families, and a popular figure in local sports and political circles, who died at his home of his parents Friday evening at the age of 27.

SPECIAL HOLY SERVICES FOR EASTER SUNDAY

Massed Choirs, Special Sermons to Feature in City Churches

Once again will Edmonton churches ring to the happy cry the message of peace on earth and good-will towards men as citizens gather to mark one of the most sacred as well as the most significant of Christian holidays, Easter Sunday.

Massed choirs will commemorate the festival by singing special hymns of praise and jubilation in churches of all denominations. Many cantatas have been arranged to express with the solemn passion of music the gratitude of men for the work of their Redeemer. These inspiring services will be heard in the leading city churches.

Easter Sunday, and all the symbolism associated with the Resurrection of the Lord, will be commemorated by Roman Catholics, who will hold mass from early morning throughout the Holy day. This festival of rejoicing is the climax to the Lenten period observed by the Catholic church.

But Easter Sunday will have its more jocund side too, for it is the unofficial day for the opening of the feminine fashion parade. Edmonton's merry-eyed lassies will be decked out in their most intriguing finery as they stroll along Jasper.

And kiddies, too, munching the chocolate of their gaudy Easter eggs, look forward to the holiday with happy eagerness, for them it is a gay adventure into the realm of fancy, and they swiftly seize their opportunity to relish it to the full.

On Monday, even business will feel its tempo slackened in obedience to a day that is not as other days, for Easter Monday as well ranks among the notable days of the year. Banks, government offices, and courts will be closed. Mail deliveries will be made at the usual hours.

Police Court

Pleading not guilty to a charge of indecent assault, when he appeared before Magistrate James Ritchie in police court Saturday morning, Thomas Cochrane, 18-year old city youth, was remanded in custody and will appear in police court to answer the charge on Friday, April 2.

No plea was taken when Violet Brown appeared in answer to a charge of theft of $50. She was granted an adjournment until Friday, April 2.

Mary Ross was also granted an adjournment and no plea was taken. She will appear Thursday, April 1.

Charge of assault against Ivor Warrink, laid by his wife, was withdrawn at her request.

Daniel A. Puhach, who had previously pleaded guilty to one charge of theft, three of forgery, and three of uttering forged documents, was granted a further remand for sentence of one week.

C. M. M'LENNAN, POPULAR CITY YOUTH, IS DEAD

Had Been Outstanding Figure in Local Sports and Politics

Member of one of Edmonton's pioneer families and outstanding figure in young men's activities, particularly in sport and politics, Clayton Murdoch McLennan, 27, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan McLennan, 9173 Jasper avenue, passed away at his home at 8:15 p.m. Friday, following a protracted illness.

With all members of his immediate family present, as well as some of his closest friends, Clayton passed away peacefully. Repeated recurrence of an illness which first affected his health in 1931 had kept him confined to bed for the past month. In spite of suffering, he remained courageous and calm to the end, maintaining his always keen interest in people about him and in current affairs.

BORN NOV. 19, 1909

A grandson of the late Kenneth McDonald, one of the first settlers to live outside the stockade at Fort Edmonton, Clayton was born and died in the present home of his parents, which is on the site of the original McDonald homestead. His birth date was November 19, 1909.

He received his education at Alexander Taylor school, Highlands High school and McDougall Commercial school, joining the staff of The Edmonton Bulletin following matriculation. He worked in the collections and circulation department from 1926 to 1931, being downtown district manager, a post which put him in contact with hundreds of young boys, with whom he had a knack of making friends. When ill health forced him to retire from active work, he still kept his interest in the paper and always was regarded as a member of the staff.

CONNECTED WITH Y.M.C.A.

During his school days he was connected with the Y.M.C.A., Tuxis and other boys' organizations, and later organized and managed a large number of junior athletic teams.

Among teams which he managed were Joe Simpson's Eskimo Midgets, in 1931, in the first midget hockey league in Edmonton, the

OPTIMISTS TO STAGE FROLIC FOR CHARITY

The Optimist Child Welfare Association whose major work and service in the community is the care and guidance of fatherless underprivileged boys has now completed all arrangements for holding their annual Grand Frolic at the Tivoli Ballroom on May 31 and June 1 and 2.

This association, chartered under the Benevolent Societies Act, was organized and formed by the Optimist Service Club of Edmonton in order to give greater efficiency to the club's work and service as "Friend of the Boy" and has amply justified its existence as is evidenced by the fact that they now have over 65 fatherless boys in their Junior Optimist club who are receiving the instruction and guidance necessary to stimulate the boys to a greater realization of their responsibilities and to the prevention of juvenile delinquency.

The members of the Optimist club of Edmonton having worked for many years amongst delinquent boys came to the bitter realization that juvenile delinquency once started was extremely difficult to contend with and directed their entire efforts to the establishment of the best methods possible to overcome the tendency in the 'teen aged boys.

After very careful and serious consideration it was decided that the care and welfare of fatherless underprivileged boys should be the first step in this direction and the Optimist Child Welfare Association was formed to arrange, organize and give greater efficiency to this service. This effort has proved highly successful and the only regret is that lack of funds prevents many fatherless boys from receiving the guidance and care they require.

The Optimist Grand Frolic is the only opportunity afforded the public to participate in and support this very important and worthwhile community service; a service which can be augmented and increased to the greater benefit and good of the future citizens of our city, province and Dominion.

COOL WEATHER FOR EASTER

Showing no mercy to Easter parades in their light-weight clothes, the weather man chuckled gleefully on Saturday morning and produced a record of "fair and moderately cold" weather. The highest point reached by the mid line on Friday was 36 above, registered at 3 p.m., while the lowest reading up to 9 a.m. Saturday was marked up at 6 a.m., when the mercury touched 12 above. By 9 a.m. the thermometer rallied to 22 above.

Temperatures in the area north at 8:30 a.m. ranged from 30 above at Spirit River, to 5 above, at Fort Vermilion, Hudson Hope, Dawson Creek and Peace Coupe, all reported "snowing."

INCOME TAX RETURNS DUE BY WEDNESDAY

Provincial income tax returns for the year 1936 are due to be filed with the superintendent of income tax, Qu'Appelle building, this city, and court house building, Calgary, not later than March 31.

As Monday next, being Easter Monday, is a legal holiday and all government offices, including the income tax office, will be closed, special provision is being made to accommodate residents desiring to file returns on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The offices here and in Calgary will remain open until 6 p.m. on Tuesday and again on Wednesday.

Officials state that returns are being filed in large numbers.

It is estimated that revenue from the income tax this year will be greatly increased over last year, the estimates calling for an increase of nearly $500,000.00.

The Inquiring Reporter

"Have you any prophecies for the year?" the Bulletin Inquiring Reporter asked the following citizens, who took a peek in the crystal bowl and reported:

MILLER PETERSON, sports follower: Maroons to cop the Stanley cup—North Battleford to win the Allan cup—Winnipeg to win the Canadian rugby championship—Yanks to win the American league pennant and St. Louis to win the National League—Yanks to win the world series in five games.

CHRIS DIAMOND, waiter: Brooklyn won't finish worse than eighth in the National League.

JOE MANLEY, railroader: Aberhart will resign this year—the Social Credit party will go to the country and will break back in with the United Farmer group a close second.

FRED WALDEN, clerk: I see prosperity coming around the corner—I see $2 wheat and larger glasses with less froth.

SCOTTY THOMPSON, pigeon fancier: I see the "doos" having a spectacular season—I see one million birds flying in our supersignal derby from Winnipeg to Edmonton.

ART JACKSON, porter: Dizzy Dean will retire from baseball and then sign another juicy contract. Lou Gehrig will retire from baseball and sign another juicy contract. Babe Ruth will be mentioned for a managerial post but won't get it. Brooklyn will finish eighth in the National League.

Rev. David Fleming, formerly pastor of Knox church in South Edmonton, before amalgamation of Strathcona and Edmonton in 1912, and now associate pastor of West minster United church in Winnipeg, will receive the degree of Doctor of Divinity at Pine Hill Divinity College, Halifax, on April 14, according to word received here.

PREMIER MAY ASK SUPPORT OF FOLLOWERS

Likely to Make Strong Appeal on Budget at Bible Institute

Premier William Aberhart left on Saturday by Calgary, where he will address the Prophetic Bible institute at 3 p.m. on Sunday. It is expected that he will make a strong appeal for support in his followers to pass the budget now before the legislature. In the meantime the political front smoulders but without any shelling going on.

Both the government and the insurgent members were busy on Friday with preparations for the continuation of the budget debate in the house on Monday and the climax which will come during the day or early on Tuesday morning when the premier's closure motion is put.

A closure motion is not debatable and a vote may be taken on it as soon as it is moved by the Premier.

If not, several speakers will carry on the debate from the insurgent ranks and then when the closure motion is moved Hon. Nelson E. Low, provincial treasurer, will speak in closing the debate after which the vote will be taken.

In the meantime with every possibility showing that the budget will not be passed by midnight on March 31, due to protracted debate, relief recipients are wondering if they will be able to receive relief and farmers are wondering if any seed grain will be available. If the budget does not pass by midnight on March 31, there will be no funds for relief, seed and the civil service payroll of $250,000 a month will not be met.

Thus, it is imperative, say government members, that the budget be passed in order that the services be carried on.

On the other hand, the insurgents are reported to be taking the position that the budget will not be passed if the government will include in it the provision for heavy taxation on all Alberta securities as tax said to be tantamount to confiscatory proportions.

Clarence C. Ross, president of the Alberta Social Credit League has asked directors of the League regarding their stand and some of the members are canvassing their constituents.

In the meantime both government and insurgents are watching the situation and foresee developments are not expected to come to light until the house reconvenes.

FINE DISPLAY MAPLE LEAVES

Indicating the wide variety in growth, color and shape of the maple leaf is a splendid display of leaves on exhibit in the lobby of the hotel. This display shows winning samples of a contest conducted jointly by the Canadian Travel Bureau, the C.N.R. and C.P.R.

First prize for the most beautiful maple leaf went to Miss Madeleine Cote, 366 Third avenue, Quebec and first prize for the largest maple leaf to Miss Marina Krvetsky, of Ladysmith, B.C. This leaf contains 238.4 square inches.

Most of the leaves shown from eastern Canada are red with a mixture of other colors, while the basic color of western leaves is green.

ANOTHER MEAN THIEF STEALS BABY CARRIAGE

It never rains but it pours and city police are of the opinion that there is a "strangest theft" committed in the city by denizens of Edmonton's underworld.

Early Thursday a barber reported the theft of his barber pole. But hats off to the new champion—the thief who came to hat and stolen a baby carriage. Alfred Jones, 10174 107 street, reported to police the theft of a baby carriage from the porch of his residence. It is described as grey, with wicker top and panel body.

CITY GRANTS ARE APPROVED TENTATIVELY

Only Two Requests Dealt With By Council At Special Meet

City grants totalling $350 were tentatively authorized by city council at a special meeting Saturday morning when a list of 26 grants totalling $40,130 was considered. Only two required grants were dealt with, the remainder being tabled for consideration later.

Edmonton Chamber of Mines was given $250 and the Community Service Mission, $100.

Speaking for the Chamber of Mines, R. C. Marshall told council that the organization was rendering the city a valuable service by promoting interest in northern mining, bringing the resulting business through Edmonton and placing unemployed in the mineral field.

Alderman Ismailovitz agreed, to grant the chamber $250.

Mr. Marshall said this organization had sent 78 Edmonton men to Jobs in the north last year, and that another 11 had been placed this spring.

He stressed the fact that the chamber was assisting the city financially by bringing a flow of mining trade through Edmonton. A strong attempt was being made by outsiders to divert this business through Prince Albert, he warned.

New Radio Firm Opens Business

Wade and Kales, Edmonton's latest radio and refrigerator store opened up its doors to the public for the first time during the week. The store is operated by George Wade and Albert Kales, both of whom are well known in the city.

For the past nine years Mr. Wade has been service manager of the radio and refrigerator department of J. A. Werner Hardware. Mr. Wade is a member of the Edmonton Radio Service Men's Association and holds a first class government certificate for servicing radios and refrigerators. He is also a member of the Radio and Television Institute and Radio Manufacturers Service.

Mr. Kale is Edmonton born. He is a graduate of Victoria High School and M. Pavish Business College. He was formerly associated with T. Campbell Furniture.

500 Teachers Will Gather In City For Annual Convention

Gathering in Edmonton from all over the province nearly 500 teachers are expected to attend the twentieth annual convention of the Alberta Teachers' Association which will open for a four-day session in the Macdonald hotel Monday afternoon.

Rev. C. Anslow of Medicine Hat, president of the association, will preside at the annual general business meeting which will take place following registration. Minutes and financial statements and reports of the Association will be presented at this session. Also on the agenda of the Association, which was to be addressed by Dr. M. E. Lazerte, chairman of the Edmonton Public School Board, Dr. M. E. Lazerte, president of the U. of A., and Dr. A. E. Ottewell, M.A., will speak on "The Teaching Profession Past, Present and Future." Dr. A. E. Ottewell is president of the Alberta Public School Teachers' Federation.

Besides the annual business meeting the four-day session will be devoted to lectures on topics of general and specific interest in teaching, given by experts in the educational field. A complete program has been drawn up to include addresses on elementary education, high school, commercial and technical work and on the teaching of music and physical education.

Among the speakers to address sessions will be A. A. Bowerman, M.A., D. C. Nasmith, Miss Mary G. Fowler, M.A., A. D. McKenzie, B.A., D. H. E. Smith, M.A., Miss Elliott, M.A., H. C. Clarke, M.A., Miss Clara Tyner, Dr. Donalda Dickie, Miss George Macdonald, M.A., Miss K. Teskey, Mr. George Clarson, H. W. Hedley, Ralph Zinar, and A. E. Mann, M.A.

ABERHART TO SPEAK

Hon. William Aberhart, premier of the province, and minister of education, will speak at the opening session of the general convention in McDougall United Church Monday afternoon at 8 o'clock. Mayor Weaver will welcome the delegates to the city.

PROGRAM OF LECTURES

Monday being Easter Monday and a holiday, the first session of the convention will be held on Tuesday, March 30, at 9:30 a.m.

There will be a meeting of the executive of the Alberta Teachers' Association in the Macdonald hotel on Tuesday, March 30, at 8 p.m.

Looking Them Over

By Jack Kelly

Dunkel Sensation

Racing On Spot

M.C.C. Coming

LAST night Promoter Mike Cutcher pulled a sensation out of his hat when he introduced Del Kunkel to Edmonton. This classy master of the mat mysteries is generally rated as the world's tigerweight champion —and those that saw him in action last night will readily accept his title claims. "Tigerweight" in the wrestling world covers the division from 180 to 195 pounds, since heavyweight matmen run to poundages of well over the 200 mark.

Indian Ike Cazzell is still trying to figure out just how Kunkel did what he did to him last night. Ike now has a sympathetic feeling for people who have been caught in the vortex of cyclone and tossed around the countryside like a stick of kindling . . . and the Indian is a mighty mauler in his own right.

If Mike Cutcher can prevail on Kunkel to return here for another show, he will pack the Memorial Hall to the roof and have to turn them away. This Kunkel ever-shadows such giants of brawn and showmanship as Lord Lansdowne and Martonio Angelo, the Fascist Fury. He has everything that any reasonable person can demand.

Movies Taboo For Detroit

JACK ADAMS is one hockey magnate who sees that his player's pastimes do not slow up their eyes and is paying big dividends. He has banned movies on any day that the Detroit Red Wings are playing, claiming that a movie leaves the eyes sub-normal for several hours. Among other club orders that Adams has issued is that every player must be in bed by midnight and have breakfast over by 10 a.m. The boys then have to get out and take a brisk walk. Those who go in for steaks for dinner, must eat them not later than 3 p.m. when there is a game that night. They then ankle out for another walk around town. After this stroll, the players have to go back to their rooms, strip off, wrap up in blankets and relax for a couple hours.

States Puts Racing On Spot

TODAY horse racing in the United States is being threatened by a movement which may close scores of tracks and breeding farms. It is not merely another drive by moral fanatics but a carefully organized move by hard-headed business men who are basing their stand on the totals which their cash registers show during a race meet. And the strongest part of it all is that this anti-betting campaign has originated in Texas, Florida and California—the winter resort sectors where legalized race betting was supposed to be bringing prosperity in large slices.

The Texas Senate has already passed a bill prohibiting betting on horse races and it is now before the House of Representatives. Over in Florida, Governor Fred P. Cone has instructed every sheriff in the state to wage a relentless war on gambling of every sort. He too is now considering the repeal of the bill that legalized betting on horse racing.

In California the movement has not yet come to a head in legislative action, but it is likely to take the form of a bill before long. In this unkissed state it is also the business men who are organizing the campaign. One of their first moves has been to erect a huge sign along the road to the Santa Anita track which asks this pertinent question: "Are you playing the races, or paying your bills?"

Something like this was bound to come. As state after state adopted legislation that legalized race betting, the track owners went crazy with long meets that were too much for any place to stand. In addition tracks sprang up like mushrooms all over the place. Track owners let their greed for big profits blot out their common sense and it begins to look very much as if their fabulous harvest is about over.

Our Canadian system of short, well-controlled meets seems to be the only one that will give the maximum benefits from racing with the minimum of bad effects.

M.C.C. Tour Peps Cricket Forces

WITH winter sports pretty well packed away in moth balls for the season, decks are now being cleared daily for the spring and summer season and Canadian cricket forces are eagerly anticipating a major treat—the promised tour across Canada of the strongest team that the Marylebone Cricket Club can spare. This tour is being made on the invitation of the Hon. R. C. Matthews, chairman of the Dominion Cricket Advisory Board, and the man who sent the all-star Canadian team to England last summer. Present indications are that this M.C.C. team will play in every province in the dominion. They will be here in the west sometime in August.

For Canadians who are not cricket fans to appreciate the importance of this tour, it is necessary for them to imagine themselves in France arriving on an exhibition tour of an all-star team selected by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. The Marylebone Cricket Club is the major body of cricket control in the world.

So far as available records show, the first cricket team from across the ocean to tour Canada was George Parr's group of players who visited Eastern Canada in 1859. Since then teams from various parts of the Empire have made 25 Canadian tours, although most of them were confined to the eastern provinces. England has sent 16 teams, Australia four, Ireland two, South Africa one, Bermuda one, and West Indies one. This 1937 tour will be the first time that a M.C.C. team has crossed Canada from coast to coast.

Grads, Gradettes, Varsity Seek Hoop Titles Tonight

Y.M.C.A. Livewires Add To Local Contenders Meeting Neilsons

This will definitely be a basketball week-end for Edmonton, with four local teams seeking provincial honors in their respective classes.

A local game which is attracting much attention is the Gradette-Caledonia game to be played at the Normal school gym tonight, starting at 8:30 p.m. Both Jimmies and Gradettes have won one game to date and both teams are out to cop the deciding encounter.

While their understudies battle here, Coach Percy Page's world renowned Grads will seek once again the Alberta senior title when they meet Calgary Boxers in the second game of their two-of-three series. Grads won the first 74-27. If they decide to come to Edmonton, and have elected to, the Grads will entrain for the Coast and an inter-provincial series with Vancouver Crescents.

One game being claimed here tonight that claims plenty of interest is the second game of the inter-provincial senior playoffs between Varsity Golden Bears and Raymond Union Jacks.

Raymond won the first game in Raymond last Saturday, but tonight Coach Jake Jamieson's hardy crew will be shooting the works to even up the series on their own floor. The game will be played at Varsity gym and will start at 8:00 o'clock.

In the third local game, Y.M.C.A. Livewires meet Calgary Neilsons in the second game of the men's provincial intermediate finals. Neilsons won the first game last night 33-32.

Star Holdouts Accept Terms

Two of the year's greatest hold-outs have come to terms with their club owners. "Dizzy" Dean and Lou Gehrig are the two gentlemen in question. In this layout the two baseball notables are seen affixing their signatures to contracts which are not exactly as they would like them to be, but are better than the alternative—no baseball this season. On the left, Lou Gehrig, New York Yankees' heavy slugging first baseman, poses with pen in hand, while Col. Jacob Ruppert, Yanks' owner, watches the ceremony. The picture at right shows Dizzy Dean, St. Louis Cardinals' ace hurler, as he slyly winks at the cameraman, while signing his 1937 contract.

ARSENAL HELD TO SCORELESS DRAW BUT BOOSTS LEAD AS A'S BEATEN

Gunners Held in Check by Stoke City Club but Charlton Bows to Chelsea by 3-0 Score; Middlesbrough Is Third

LONDON, March 27.—Although held to a scoreless draw by Stoke City at Highbury Friday, Arsenal increased its margin at the top of the English Football League when Charlton Athletic bowed to Chelsea at Stamford Bridge, 3-0.

Wednesday jumped into third place behind the Athletic by whipping Birmingham 3-1. Other leaders did little in the first of the holiday series of games, Portsmouth losing 1-0 at Grimsby while Brentford drew 1-1 with Preston North End.

Manchester City joined Preston, Middlesbrough and Brentford in fourth place, one point behind Middlesbrough. The Mancunians, making an 11th-hour rush for the championship, won 5-0 at Liverpool.

IMPROVE CHANCES

At the other end of the table, Manchester United and Boston Wanderers improved their chances of avoiding demotion to the second division. The United defeated Everton 2-1 at Old Trafford and Bolton also at home, got the only goal of the game against Sheffield Wednesday.

In the second division, Blackpool enhanced its chances of promotion by trimming Blackburn Rovers 2-0 while Aston Villa did well to win 2-0 at Newcastle. The Villans, out to regain their senior status after a season in the second division, are now only three points behind second-place Leicester City.

Notts County seems headed for promotion from the southern section of the third division. The Magpies landers made it 4-0 over Cardiff City, while Brighton, runner-up, won 1-0 from Southend United.

In the north vn section, Stockport County went into a clear lead with a 2-1 decision over Hull City. Lincoln City is one point behind following a 1-1 draw with Port Vale while Tranmere Rovers whipped Rotherham 5-0 at Mansfield to drop to third place.

FORT WILLIAM GOT BAD GAME OUT OF HIDES

Say Report From Fort Camp; Coulson Full Of Confidence

CALGARY, March 27.—The air around the Fort William Wanderers camp was thick today with reports the Thunder Bay senior hockey outfitists had "got a bad game out of their systems" and that they would do better tonight in the second of their three-game series with North Battleford Beavers for the Western Canada Allan cup berth.

But among North Battleford followers there was a suspicion that Beavers may hand Wanderers a beating even worse than the 9-2 drubbing they administered Thursday.

Gus Forsland, coach of the Fort William team, said his goalkeeper, Gordon Hacquoil, had been in bed practically since the team came to Calgary from the effects of a bad cold. Gordon Garrioch, Hacquoil's understudy, may be given the call tonight.

Otherwise both teams are expected to put the same teams on the ice that they did Thursday. Frank Coulson, Beaver coach, said he did not think Eddie O'Keefe would be playing. Eddie received a charley-horse while playing in the series with Edmonton Dominions.

"But he'll be in good shape if you need him Monday, eh?" Coulson was asked.

"Yes. That's right. If we need him Monday," the coach replied. He answered the "if."

HEARTS SOCCER CLUB TO MEET

The Hearts' Football club will hold a meeting at the Leland hotel on Monday evening. The gathering will commence at 7:30 p.m., and all last year members are asked to attend. Important business such as re-organization for coming season, will be discussed.

Bayonne Bowlers Provide Changes A.B.C. Standings

NEW YORK, March 27.—Bayonne, N.J., bowlers took over second places in both singles and all-events standings of the American Bowling Congress yesterday.

Nat Addis rolled games of 206, 223, 232 for a 661 total to take the all-events spot behind Jimmy Smith of Syracuse, with 690 in the singles.

Frank Vetter, member of the Bayonne Wheelmen five which advanced to second place in the team race last night, slipped into the No. 2 spot in all-events with a nine-game aggregate of 1,879 by his 656 in the team scoring, 605 in doubles and 618 in singles. He trailed M. Deonigisel of New York with 1,927.

In team play the Jerseyans rolled a three-game total of 2,947 to dislodge the Marsellus Casket team of Syracuse in second place.

Vermilion Wins Over Prolites, 6-5

LLOYDMINSTER, Sask., March 26.—Vermilion took the holiday fixture from the Prolites here yesterday afternoon by a 6-5 score in a rugged game. Following goals at the start of the last frame the visitors rapped in three without a reply. Vermilion finally succeeded three for the Vermilion squad, F. Brimacombe, G. Brimacombe and Craig each a single. For the Prolites Duffield bagged two, B. McIvor, Salt and Shorlell one each.

LINEUPS

Vermilion: Powell, G. Brimacombe, J. English, F. Brimacombe, J. Erwin, Craig, B. Brown, A. Wright, R. Craig, O. Brimacombe.

Lloydminster: P. Brown, J. Kinney, W. Salt, Cleo, McIvor, B. McIvor, F. Spencer, S. Lawrence, G. Duffield, A. Barstow.

U. B. C. Captures Hoop Championship

VICTORIA, March 27.—University of British Columbia Thunderbirds captured the British Columbia senior A basketball championship and entered the western finals here last night when they defeated Victoria Domineers 44-25 for their third straight victory in the best of five series.

The collegians defeated Dominoes last year's dominion finalists with Winnipeg Fords 42-25 and 34-30 in the first two games at Vancouver last Friday and Saturday.

There are 50,000 to 75,000 workers in the average beehive.

PORTLAND TAKES SECOND WIN 4-1

PORTLAND, March 27.—Portland Buckaroos won a lone game away from the Pacific Coast hockey league championship last night. The Bucs nosed out Spokane Clippers 2-1 here last night after two overtime periods in the second game of the best-of-five series after taking the opener 4-3 in Spokane Sunday night in the third fixture.

Ronny Martin scored both Portland's goals. Ron Moffatt tallied for Spokane.

LINEUPS

Saskatoon Reaches Objective In Drive

SASKATOON, March 27.—Final drive for an artificial ice arena and auditorium was completed here Thursday night with the staging of a monster theatre carnival by the young men's section of the Board of Trade. At the completion of the show it was announced the objective of $5,000 had been reached, which assured this city of an artificial ice rink next winter.

Some of the money was raised by subscriptions of $1,000 by certain individuals and several business firms made subscriptions in the hundreds, but the majority was donated through the sale of $10 shares to the citizens as a whole.

Trail Tigers Blanked 5-0 By Classy Saskatoon Team

Wesleys Knew Too Much Hockey for B.C. Champs

SASKATOON, March 27.—Saskatoon Wesleys knew too much hockey for Trail Tigers Friday afternoon in the first of the three-game series between the Saskatchewan junior hockey champions and the British Columbia titlists and skated off the ice with a convincing 5-0 victory. A Good Friday holiday crowd of about 2,500 watched the game which failed to produce much good hockey as the soft ice made puck control difficult. The second game will be played here Saturday night with the third, if necessary, here on Monday.

TRAIL HAD WEIGHT

Trail, who outweighed the Wesleys team started off with a rush and had the better of the opening exchanges but were unable to fathom the hard-hitting Wesley defense and most of the Tigers shots were from outside the blue line. Wesleys did not get started until more than half the period had gone and then poor work around the nets plus some brilliant goal-keeping by Sopko, held the present holders of the Abbott cup in check.

Wesleys rushed at the opening of the second period and Brownridge circled the Tigers' goal and then scored with a decidedly lucky shot. The Saskatchewan team kept up the pressure but Sopko was unassailable, drawing rounds of applause as he held the entire Wesley team at bay. At the 16:15 mark Wesley tallied again, Wilson netting from about 30 feet with a great shot from a face-off in front of the nets. Trail worked hard and Hughes was prominent several times with clever stickhandling, but he could not get in close to Bayne as the Wesley goal who had only three or four difficult shots to handle in this period.

WESLEYS DANGEROUS

Wesleys were dangerous throughout the third and added to their total by goals from Brownridge, a picture tally by the clever Martinson, Wilder and Abel line, and a last score by Wilder with but four seconds to go. Trail swimmed around the Saskatoon nets in this period and had Goalie Rayner Sprawling about in all directions, but he kept his goal clean.

For Trail, Sopko was outstanding, giving the best exhibition of netminding seen here this year. The Trail defence was good but slow in puck clearing, and the Tiger forwards did not know how to evade the speedy and persistent backchecking Wesleys.

Bilinger again shone for Saskatoon, the captain of the juniors spilling incoming forwards at every opportunity.

LINEUPS

Trail Tigers: Sopko; Zarusky and Petrenko; Smith, Hughes, Robinson. Subs: Tognotti, Turik, Gourlie, Zarusky and Rumak.

Saskatoon Wesleys: Bayne; Ellinger and McFadyen; McCleave, Wilson, Martinson and Brownridge. Reserves: Abel, Wilder and Martinson.
Referee: Art Tormond, Edmonton.

SUMMARY

First Period: Scoring—None. Penalties—Gourlie, Bilinger.
Second Period: 1—Wesley, Brownridge, 1:25. 2—Wesley, Wilder (Abel), 16:15. Penalties—Wilson.
Third Period: 3—Wesley, Brownridge, 9:37. 4—Wesley, Martinson (Wilder, Abel), 11:50. 5—Wesley, Wilder, 19:56. Penalties—McConkey, Robinson, Bilinger.

Ranking Triumphs In Toronto Race

TORONTO, March 27.—"Scotty" Ranking of Preston, Ont., ploughed through 15 miles of snow and slush to win the annual Good Friday marathon here in one hour, 29 minutes and 47 seconds. Thirty-two ran.

BERMUDA GOLF

HAMILTON, Bermuda, March 27. Ted Fenwick of Montreal and George West of Bermuda reached the final round of the Bermuda amateur golf championship Friday by reaching par in the 36-hole semi-finals on the Riddell's Bay course.

Tigerweight Champ Whips Ike Cazzell In Fine Mat Card

Brilliant Gotham Grappler Provides Small Crowd Finest Battle to Date; Hanson Also Good but Weber Beats Him

By JACK DEAKIN

DEL KUNKEL, tigerweight champion of the world, made a whirlwind wrestling debut here last night in Mike Cutcher's weekly bouts at the Memorial hall.

Handsome, his body perfectly proportioned, Kunkel proved every inch a champion. He has something besides good looks and a great physique, it's that extra quality that makes champions standout performers in the best of company.

Kunkel, in taking a straight two-fall triumph over Indian Ike Cazzell, gave one of the finest performances seen in the Memorial hall ring since the days of Lord Lansdowne and Martonio Angelo. His triumph polished off a grand grapple card in which Vic Weber flattened Floyd Hanson, also a newcomer, and Jack Jackson took the only fall over Frank Knott.

FOUR-STAR CARD

Before a disheartening crowd every member on the card gave a four-star performance. Those who missed Friday's card took a fade-out on one of the most spectacular in weeks.

Opening up with mediocre grappling into a pulse-quickening semi-main and then into a spine-tingling final that featured Kunkel's whirlwind debut, grapplers left little to be desired.

Both Cazzell and Kunkel went through 60 minutes or more of robust rassling. The pace they set and the spectacular way in which they battled, required every ounce of stamina these grapplers had. It was a test of endurance, one which ended suddenly and dramatically.

THRILLING END

Cazzell, like small craft upon stormy waters, was tossed hither and thither, took terrific forearm butts and slams. For the first part of the bout Cazzell stood up to the terrific pace, but after that he was overmastered. Kunkel had that slashing power that makes champions. He ended the bout with straight falls, both coming in rapid order and in a manner that thrilled every patron to the utmost.

Many were the highlights in Friday's final bout. The best of these coming near the end of the joust as Kunkel was gradually breaking down Cazzell's resistance. The big feature was when Kunkel took a head scissors on Cazzell, then with his hands walked along the top rope, urging Cazzell to follow. Half way around the ring Kunkel tossed Cazzell's tiring form into the laps of fair ringside fannettes.

IKE SAID UNCLE

But Ike came back. He was not entirely beaten, but his comeback efforts soon faded, for Kunkel applied a terrific crupper for toe hold. Ike stood this punishment for only a short time before he gave up. Ike was given only two minutes after returning to the ring, for Kunkel applied the same hold, and on the same leg.

Kunkel's second fall closed the bout out suddenly, but not a fan begrudged it. Instead he's the "talk of the town." Everyone hopes for his return, and if he does, then the main bout will be the largest seen here, even surpassing that of Lord Lansdowne's second performance here.

OLSON COMES BACK

Floyd Olson and Vic Weber also gave a good battle. Weber took the first two falls from his rougher, eye gouging opponent after dropping the first. Olson also proved a pleasing entertainer and will be back next week, probably matched with Indian Ike Cazzell.

Hanson adopted some of Angelo's pet holds to subdue the clever Weber. He took the first fall with scissoring of an armlock, stretching the arm upon the canvas and dealing it much punishment with his head until Weber lunged the canvas.

But Weber's Irish whip came in handy to take the second fall. It had the unwelcome effect of fanning Hanson, much to the enjoyment of many fans.

Winnipeg Juniors Win Hockey Title

WINNIPEG, March 27.—Winnipeg Monarchs won the Manitoba junior hockey championship Friday with a 3-2 victory over St. Boniface Seals in the third game of their series. Monarchs will meet Fort Arthur in the western semi-final opening here Saturday.

The Winnipeg youngsters won the first game of the series 6-3 but St. Boniface took the second 3-2.

Reno Vandale gave Monarchs a first-period lead in the matinee game and Pete Langelle made it 2-0 in the second period. Terry Reardon scored for Seals. Johnny McCready netted the third Monarch goal after nine seconds of the third period and Pat Couture scored for St. Boniface.

A small animal of the Pyrenees, the desman, has such a long, mobile nose that it can thrust it into its own mouth.

Mat Champion

lightweight champion of the world and one of the finest grapplers ever seen here is the "talk of the town" now. Kunkel defeated Indian Ike Cazzell smartly last night at the Memorial Hall in two straight falls. He is every inch a champion and many will welcome his return if he decides to come back to perform here again. His next appearance, should he make one, will no doubt fill the Memorial Hall to capacity. It is hoped he will return.

Gradettes Beat Calgary 57-45 to Tie Title Series; Livewires Lose

Jean Williamson and Frances Gordon Lead Edmonton to Victory; "Y" Livewires Lose First Game of Series

With a whirlwind attack in the first two quarters that swept aside all competition the Edmonton Gradettes evened up their provincial basketball championship series with Calgary Jimmies last night by defeating the Southerners 57-45 at the McDougall gym.

The third and deciding game of the series will be played tonight at the Normal school gym, Jimmies had previously won the first game in Calgary by a 34-45 score in Calgary last Saturday.

Jean Williamson, brilliant Gradette guard, led the attack against Calgary last night and garnered 20 points of her team's total with eight field baskets and four penalty shots. She was closely followed by Frances Gordon who boasted a total of 19 points.

BETTY WAS HIGH

Betty Jackson was high scorer for the Calgary crew with 13 points to her credit, while Jean Clark and Ruth Brown followed with eight points each.

The Gradettes, intent on evening up the series and avenging their defeat in Calgary, lost no time last night and at the end of the first quarter they enjoyed a 21-7 lead over the Southern contenders, thanks to the brilliant shooting of Frances Gordon.

The second quarter went much the same way with Frances again showing keen marksmanship, with Katie Ewaschuk running a close second. Gradettes garnered 19 more points in this quarter to Calgary's 15 making the halftime score read 40-22 in favor of Edmonton.

BRILLIANT RALLY

The second half of the game was featured by a brilliant Calgary rally and in both quarters the Jimmies outscored Gradettes final 13-10 and 14-7. Betty Jackson and Jean Clark were the Jimmies' field marshals.

In this second half Frances Gordon was checking nearly so well as still by the fighting Jimmies and it was Williamson's cue to come to the fore and she scored 13 of her team's 17 counters.

LINEUPS

Jimmies: Jean Clark 8, Currie 2, Betty Johnson 13, McKinley, Kelly 5, Brown 8, Williams 6, Crist 4, Mitchell, Total 45.

Gradettes: Williamson 20, Watson 2, Vickey, Gordon 19, Davidson, Fraser, Bawden 4, Taylor, Watkins Plante 2 Ewaschuk 10. Total 57.

Officials: Bill Douglas and Jim Taylor.

Neil Injured

NEIL COLVILLE

Broken Jaw Won't Keep Colville Out

NEW YORK, March 27.—Neil Colville, young centre player for New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, suffered a fractured jaw in the game at Toronto with Maple Leafs Tuesday night, an X-ray examination disclosed yesterday but the injury will not keep the Edmonton rookie out of action, club officials said.

Colville, who received the injury in a tussle with Bob Davidson of the Leafs, complained of the jaw being sore Thursday night and it pained him during the game in which Rangers eliminated Leafs from the Stanley Cup playdowns. Colville insisted, however, on remaining in the game.

After the x-ray examination club officials began a search for a harness—similar to that used by Ching Johnson of the Rangers several years ago—to enable Colville to see further action.

Edmonton Allstars Lose To Wetaskiwin

WETASKIWIN, March 27.—The local Colonels upheld the flag of intermediate hockey here last night when they defeated an allstar aggregation from Edmonton by a 7-3 score.

With some of Edmonton's standout senior players on the allstar lineup, Wetaskiwin fans were treated to one of the best games ever witnessed in local arena.

Chillibeck, Elock, McCurdo and Spencer were conspicuous in Wetaskiwin's scoring, while Garry Brown, Ralph Morgan, Bud Allgar, Flett and Wotherspoon played in Edmonton's attack on goal.

LINEUPS

Edmonton: Harney; Flett, Wilmer; Brown, Morgan, Stewart, Allgar, Wotherspoon, R. Lemieux, Taylor, Foster.

Wetaskiwin: Gleason, Patton, Chillibeck, Morrison, Spencer, McMurdo, Elok, Brown, Demke, Mauk, Gerlitz.

Referees: Atkinson and White.

Markle Tops Smith, Hextall in Scoring

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 27.—Jack Markle of Syracuse Stars put together 21 goals and 39 assists for 60 points nearly monopolizing scoring honors in the International-American hockey league, it was shown last night in the final statistics for the regular league season.

Badman Again

the 'big bad man of National Hockey who bounces 'em for Toronto Leafs, topped high honors for tripping lightly to the penalty box. He served no less than 124 minutes with time-keepers in every city in the majors. He's a rough, tough gent to most everyone, but Toronto thinks him just a big playful fella. Well, may be he is, but those minutes in penalties are about twice as many as Allan Shields got, who is second on the list.

CANUCKS FACE UPHILL FIGHT GAME TONIGHT

Cec Hart Banks On Law Of Averages For Victory

MONTREAL, March 27. — The law of averages may come to their rescue and bring them a victory to keep them in the Stanley cup hunt, Montreal Canadiens hockey players believe.

Beaten two straight by Detroit Red Wings, they take on the Detroiters here tonight in the crucial game, and derive some comfort from the fact they have been in a slump and might be due to emerge.

Canadiens, who wound up the National hockey league season in first place in the Canadian section, have won only once in the past nine games, tied once and lost seven. If Wings win tonight they take the league title in three straight games and advance to the Stanley cup final.

"We're bound to change for the better," said Manager Cecil Hart. "All the luck we've had for the past month has been bad. It must swing in our favor soon, and I've a hunch it will tonight.

Bruin Injuries Hamper Lineup

BOSTON, March 27—Unless Bruin casualties recover rapidly, Montreal Maroons will have an edge in physical man power Sunday night in the third game of their struggle to gain a zerth in the Stanley cup hockey playoff semi-final.

Manager Art Ross of the Boston team called up reserves from the minor league in case his regulars are not ready for play Sunday. Leroy Goldsworthy's nose was broken when Lionel Conacher checked him in Thursday's game. The Boston defence is weakened by an injury to Allan Shields, suffering from a gashed leg.

Playing it the safe way, Ross recalled Peggy O'Neill and Bobby Bauer from Providence Reds of the International-American league, and may dress either or both of them. Both teams showed confidence tonight in the outcome of Sunday's crucial game. Maroons took the bruising opening game of the series 4-0, but Bruins upset the Montreal-ers 4-0 Thursday night.

Manager Thomas P. Gorman of Maroons said last night he did not contemplate any lineup changes.

Toronto Ties Up East Semi-Finals

TORONTO, March 27.—Staving off a terrific Sudbury Tigers' offensive in the dying minutes, Toronto Dominions held on to a 4-3 win here last night and even the best-of-three game series for the Ontario senior hockey championship.

Down three goals at one time, Tigers fought gamely to come within a goal of the winners.

Roy Conacher, brother of the Maple Leafs' Charlie, led Dominions all the way. He shot three of their four goals, the last one on a penalty shot. His other goals came in the second period after Len Lorer had given the Toronto team a start by his first-period marker.

Gold Cup Regatta Is International

DETROIT, March 27.—The Gold Cup regatta here in September will be an international affair with entries from France and Canada and probably from Italy and England, it was learned Friday following a meeting of the Gold Cup committee.

The entry from Canada in the Gold Cup race will be Harold Wilson of Ingersoll. Ont. Wilson is considered one of the dominion's greatest racing drivers.

MAY PLAY FOR SCOTLAND

PORTSMOUTH, Eng. — Record displays of R. Salmond, Portsmouth centre-half, have impressed soccer critics and he is now being mentioned as a candidate for the pivotal position in the next Scottish team.

SCHRINER IS OFFICIAL TOP N. L. SNIPER

Figures Released Give Him 46 Points; Apps One Point Behind

MONTREAL, March 27. — Final score for the National Hockey League's marksmen was posted last night by league officials. For the second consecutive season, Sweeney Schriner of New York Americans led the field, scoring 21 goals and giving 25 assists for a point total of 46. He finished a lone point ahead of Syl Apps, Toronto Maple Leafs rookie, with 16 goals and 29 assists. Marty Barry, Detroit, leader of the United States division, was next with 17 goals and 27 assists for a total of 44.

Barry's linemate, Larry Aurie, ended up a point behind with 43, made up of 23 goals and 20 assists. Harvey Jackson of Toronto was fifth with 21 goals and 19 assists, a total of 40. Four points behind came Johnny Gagnon, Montreal Canadiens' veteran, and Bob Gracie of Montreal Maroons. Three were grouped with 35 points, Nels Stewart, who started with Boston and finished with Americans; Chicago's Paul Thompson and Bill Cowley of Boston.

Schriner was leading scorer, but Stewart and Aurie carried off honors for greatest number of goals each getting 23 to Schriner's 21. Their averages suffered because they had not compiled as many assists as the Calgary sharpshooter. Apps three more assists than any other player, getting credit for aid on 29 scoring plays in the 45-game season.

Regina "Red" Horner, Toronto defence star, played the equivalent of two full games and a little overtime in the penalty box. Horner, most penalized player in the league served 124 minutes in penalties. Next to him was Allan Shields, former American, who finished the season with Bruins, with a total of 94 minutes.

HOADLEY DATA GATHERED FOR HEALTH PLAN

Plight of People in Moderate Circumstances Is Emphasized

OTTAWA, March 27—Collecting data which may be used in preparing any scheme for public health insurance, George Hoadley, former Alberta minister of health, has been in Ottawa this week.

The work I, under the auspices of the Canadian National committee for mental hygiene of which Sir Edward Beatty is chairman, and which covers all health information.

"As he travelled over Canada he found in all parts, Mr. Hoadley said, a demand that relief be provided for the person of small means overtaken by illness. "The very poor get treatment free, the rich do not mind the expense, but the person with a moderate income or small saving is in greatest need of some form of protection," he said.

"We are not suggesting any method of procedure in providing protection. We are gathering the data which will be required when governments reach the point where they have to deal with it."

Referring to the many instances where the entire savings of a lifetime had been wiped out by illness, Mr. Hoadley said the data he had gathered convinced him that a system of co-operation between the workers, the employer and the state would be feasible. The data was being obtained in all parts of Canada. The committee is financed chiefly by prominent financiers and industrialists.

Rookies Make Grade Nearly Every Major Loop Baseball Club

Boys From Farm Making Hay For Themselves And Painting Bright Futures For Club Owners In Both Loops

By PAUL MICKELSON

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 27.—The boys from the farm are making hay for themselves and hey-hey for the major league club owners at the baseball training camps this spring.

Every big league club appears to have at least one gilt edge rookie of great promise, lifting the once-lowered hopes of the owners and fans for better showings in the pennant races and more excitement on the diamond.

HERE THE ARE

Here are the rookies, some of them up for their second and third chances, who are in the fullest bloom:

AMERICAN LEAGUE

New York: Second baseman Joe Gordon already has been shipped to the Newark farm, because the world champs are standing pat with the club that copped the flag by 19½ games, but he'll be back and maybe soon.

Detroit: Bob Logan, a southpaw with lots of what it takes. Won ten 16 games for Indianapolis last year, may be just what the Tigers, sorely pressed for pitching, need.

Cleveland: Outfielder Henry John Steinbacher, who piled seven years of double A baseball, though but 24 years old, is pleasing Manager Jimmy Dykes.

Washington: The outstanding "rookie" is old Shanty Hogan, who got sick of riding buses in the minor league and decided to reduce. Shanty, quite a vet at 31, has put fire in the Senators with his catching and hitting.

Cleveland: The greatest pitching prospect of years in Bob Feller.

Boston: Infielder Bobby Doerr, 19-year-old kid wonder from San Diego, is the rage of the Red Sox camp.

St. Louis: Right handed pitcher Guilio Bonetti from Des Moines.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

New York: Cliff Melton, big southpaw from Baltimore. Promises to give the champs a pitching staff second to none.

St. Louis: Catcher Mickey Owen of Columbus, a one-man gang, is the big ticket.

Pittsburgh: Infielder Lee Handley, who came to the Pirates via Commissioner K. M. Landis' office on a free-agency ruling, is going places.

Cincinnati: The Reds have a flock of fine hopefuls, chiefs of whom are pitcher Lloyd Moore of Eldorado, pitcher Lee Grissom and infielder Jim Outlaw, both from Columbus.

Brooklyn: Tony Malinosky, a flashy 26-year-old rookie from Louisville.

Contract Bridge

A LITTLE TOO HIGH

Sometimes a plethora of quick tricks leads the declarer to expect more tricks than he finds it easy to make. The following hand, played in North Dakota, illustrates the point. Can you see what you would do at each table?

Bidding: West, South, Spade, North, 2 Clubs; East, 2 Spades; South, 3 Clubs; West, 3 No Trumps; North, 4 Clubs; East, 4 Spades; South, 5 Clubs.

West was hard put for a proper lead to his partner's 4 Spades. Lack of spades and low trumps made the trump lead unattractive. Diamond, the first bid suit, was out of the question. Declarer's 3 No Trump bid showed a distribution of 4-3-3-3 and a probable 3 Club stopper. The first thing was lead. Obviously, West had to get that ace. Which one? Well, of course, that is how you would lead against a No Trump contract, but you would have seen by the bidding that the hand was not of that nature. Of course, you would lead a trick in spades, two in diamonds and one in clubs, defeating the contract a trick.

Finally West decided to lead back the club suit. That gave declarer five eight remaining tricks. One in spades, two in hearts, three in diamonds and two in clubs.

It is probable that had North, instead of South, played the deal at the 3 Club stage, the defenders would have won the same number of tricks. Four, no doubt, less.

MODERNIZE

Decoration Question Can No Longer Be Ended With Just One Period

RIGHT now "Variety is the spice of life" is the motto of interior decorators. Almost anything goes for diversity. In some homes, decorators do each room in a different period, or mingle any number of alien scenes in one room. Modern furniture and old paintings harmonize as perfectly as coffee and cream.

Mme. Elisabeth Rethberg, Metropolitan Opera star, is one who proves the success of variety in her charming new house, a 15-room replica of a Rhineland castle. Each room represents a different period, has a distinctive, definite personality, a special function, and an undeniable charm all its own.

The main entrance hall is a huge circular room patterned after a medieval fortress. A spiral stone staircase with a wrought-iron railing, leads to another hall with a tremendous Renaissance fireplace, and the large upstairs living room.

Lounging Room Is American

Going through the entrance hall, one encounters an enchanting patchwork of a house. First there is a cozy American room for lounging, resting or reading. Three casement windows overlook the Hudson River Parkway. Deep brown American maple furnishings designed in early American style, are framed against a perfect setting of buff walls. Cushions and couch-covers are done in tones of yellow, orange and red to carry out the warm, cheery color scheme.

Next new typical little German beer-room. Small and intimate, it is entirely panelled in a dark wood that gives off a pungent, spicy odor. There are rustic wall benches circling the room, closets with thick glass panels in bottle-bottom design, and a cunning sink concealed beneath a flap of wood. The outside door is just what one would expect—the divided type with the top and bottom parts swinging open independently.

The music room is ultra modern. One wall is all windows, and the others are painted a pale green. Botany prints are the chief decoration, and indirect lighting is featured. The ceiling is arched for perfect acoustical conditions.

Library Like Chapel

An old Gothic chapel is Mme. Rethberg's library. Its beamed ceiling reaching up into the eaves, a madonna in a Gothic-arched niche, and a stained glass window placed high at one end and illuminated from behind into glowing beauty, all contribute to the tranquil feeling of Old World tradition. Oval-back chairs of leather, worn to a pale golden brown, stand about a square oak table. Books fill the built-in oaken shelves, and rare old china plates and porcelain vases border the tops.

The Renaissance is reflected in the living room with its blue, green and gold Gobelin tapestry its original Rubens, and the priceless needlepoint chairs. A wooden chest, richly carved, gilded and painted by a master hand, further emphasizes the spirit of the vanished age.

Upon entering the dining room, one finds himself in quaint Bohemia. Delicately fashioned inlaid furniture, and old china-closets filled with treasures are breath-takingly picturesque. Miniatures adorn the walls and further decorative notes are provided by many curios brought over from Mme. Rethberg's European home.

Across the hall is a cheery, chintzy sun porch that harbors canaries and finches. Upstairs, between Mme. Rethberg's bedroom which is tastefully neo-classical in style, and her dressing room, is a tiny ship's-cabin of a sleeping closet. Here the opera star rests under the eaves before a performance. A high day bed with downy quilts makes an inviting picture on one side of the long narrow room, and on the other side, are shallow closets behind delicately ruffled curtains of pale pink chintz.

LEFT

A replica of an old beer tavern is the cozy little "late snack" room in the home of Mme. Elisabeth Rethberg. Done entirely in fragrant knotted wood panels, it also reproduces the quaint cupboards with their bottle-bottom glass panes, the lantern, the heavy beams, and the hand-painted plates for decoration.

Mme. Elisabeth Rethberg has made repose and ease the keynotes of this charming room. The casement windows overlook the Hudson River Parkway from a terrace. The walls are soft buff, a perfect background for the deep brown of the American maple furnishings. The chairs are cushioned in tan, orange, and the day bed cover and wall-hanging are genuine paisley, warmly red in background.

The Federal building at High Point, N. C., has five electric eyes which control shaded windows so that workers have the correct amount of light at all times.

The Theobroma cacao, a small evergreen tree native to tropical America, yields the large nutritious seeds from which chocolate and cocoa are made.

'HEALTH WALLS' INTERESTING TALK TOPIC

New Developments Herald Amazing Changes in Homes

In the years to come you're likely to hear a lot about "health walls." Which is why you'd better get acquainted with what they are right now. First thing you know the architect you consult about remodeling your home will be suggesting that you ought to put "health walls" in!

Technically, they are known as translucent masonry. In other words, walls made of glass blocks. And they are touted as relentless enemies of dust, dirt and darkness because they not only take the place of windows (entrances for dust as well as light) but let in a maximum of light while affording privacy and are practically soundproof.

They've already found extensive adoption by interior decorators, being used in living rooms, sunporches, dining nooks, at the heads of stairways and in the kitchen. And—great boon—they admit adequate light to bathrooms without sacrificing privacy.

CHANGES DECORATIVE SCHEME

There probably will have to be an extensive change in the decoration of "health walls" homes, for furniture is strikingly accented against a background of glass blocks.

In the dining room of one such home, the table and chairs were placed in the centre near the wall; then, on either side and touching the wall, was a tall potted plant, that almost reached the ceiling. Lounging or reading furniture and gadgets in the living room were correctly and conveniently used near the glass side.

Mangrove trees do not scatter seeds as do most trees. Such seeds would be swept by water which covers the roots at high tide. The young plants are developed on the tree, instead, and then fall like spears into the mud below.

Former Edmonton Divine Honored

HALIFAX, March 27.—Four ministers of the United Church of Canada will receive the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Pine Hill Divinity College here April 14, it was announced today.

They include Rev. David Fleming, B.A., associate pastor of Westminster United Church, Winnipeg. Mr. Flemming studied at Queen's University and University of Chicago and served pastorates at Edmonton, Dauphin, Man., and Winnipeg.

Warner Battling Smallpox Scourge

WARNER, Alta., March 27.—Steps were taken today to curb an outbreak of smallpox which already has stricken eight persons. Dr. H. O. Wilson, health officer of this village, 20 miles from the United States border, said all the cases were of a mild form.

Dr. Wilson said he expected the disease would run its course in three or four weeks' time. In the meantime precautions are being taken to curb its spread.

Debunker

By Fanny Y. Cory

A generation ago in England fashion was the fluttering of banners from the windows of houses celebrating that a child was born. Although the reverse is the general fashion in the British Isles today, the rule is broken because they are better than they were a half century ago. And there is only one way to find out whether or not a thing is true, and that is by testing it. If there is a difference between them, they usually are fairly close together in temperature, they will then feel even warmer than the blanket itself." This is rather hard for most of us to believe, but it is worth experimenting with. The Re-Debunker has found no reason to disprove it.

It's Nine O'Clock In Cairo - - - By Mary Synon

A Bulletin Short Story Complete On This Page Every Saturday

AS NAN CAMERON came back to the land of her birth with a travel-worn trunk, a battered bag she had bought in Dusseldorf, the remnants of a permanent wave last set in Genoa, a polyglot typewriter that had passed the customs of half the countries of Europe, she had a poignant ache of self-pity that, after years of exile, she should be returning now for her daughter's wedding.

All the way up the Chesapeake and into the harbor of Baltimore she had been telling herself that this was not the motive of homecoming she had visioned through hard-working days and lonely nights in an older world. The scene was the one she had always pictured, this low-lying shore of Maryland that had been her one home. Through lifting fog her eager eyes found outline of inlets and coves she had once known well: Tangier Island, with its oyster fleet at anchor; Saint Michael's with sea-shell byways that looked like Holland; the Wye, placid as the upper Thames; the Choptank Light of the tolling bell; and, on the mainland, below Anapolis, the Calvert Town where she had been born and to which she had sent back her child. Always, though, in her plans she had been seeing that shore in the thought that a girl who was all her own would be waiting for her, a Craigie whom she'd take back with her to Paris where they'd live in a little house near the forest of Fontainebleau. If only she'd had the money to do it long ago!

If only she'd had the money—

As the smell of salt marshes rushed over her, Nan Cameron sighed in memory of how poverty had changed life for her child and herself. She'd never thought of money in the gay year after she'd married Bart. He'd just won a promotion from the Baltimore paper into foreign correspondence and they'd taken their honeymoon following the news from Southampton to Salonika and back again, blazoning names of places like Bulgaria and Bohemia that were to be lost in a little while and names of men like Grey of Culloden and Clemenceau and von Hindenburg that were soon to rise high in a sky of war. What, they asked each other in the starry exaltation of youth and love, could money give them beyond the gleam and glory they already had? Waltzing to the music of red-coated Hungarian fiddlers on the terrace at Budapest while a golden moon shone over the Danube; drinking aperitifs in the Cafe Mistral on the Quai de la Fraternite with the restless tide of the great gateway city of Marseilles surging around them; dining at Maxim's when the night was young in Paris, and dancing at dawn in the streets of Montmartre—that was a life above and beyond price while they had each other.

They hadn't been able to save on Bart's salary. She had next to nothing in that June when Bart, rushed to Sarajevo by his chief in the Paris office, had left her in Munich. He'd be sending her money, he said, and he'd be back, he told her as he bade her goodby in the Pension Hellman in the Prinz Ludwigstrasse, long before the heir of the Camerons should arrive in a waiting world.

Bart Didn't Come Back

Bart didn't come back. He died, two weeks later, stricken by angina upon a Serbian street, and was buried in that troubled and troublous land. Not until the war was over did she see his grave.

Craigie was born in July on a Sunday morning when the bells of the Frauenkirche were ringing. Every one was kind. The Paris office sent money through the consulate. German doctors, German nurses, German housemaids strove to help her, even though they must have been immersed in their own trials and tribulations: for by that time the caissons of the Bavarian artillery were rolling toward the Belgian border.

Too stricken for protest, too numbed for thought, she did only what she was told. Herr Doktor von Purwitz made all arrangements for her Frau Hellman, carrying Craigie in her stout arms, wept all the way to the Hauptbahnhof and the first special train to bear Americans from Germany. She paid, she remembered, a hundred and four marks for her ticket to Holland, but she went through the milling crowd in a fog that took count of little until the Oberbuergermeister von Borsch thrust upon her one of the little bunches of field flowers he had brought as aufwiedersehen gifts to the departing American women. They must have bloomed on some slope of the hills where she and Bart had some times gone on his days off duty; and she cried over them as the train slid out through the gray twilight into its three-day run to Rotterdam.

In those three days she came into her first real thought for her child. The baby was so little, so helpless, so pathetically dependent upon her. With every hour, every mile her instinct of protectiveness grew until, seeing the camouflaged ships at the Dutch docks, she clutched Craigie to her in a passion of terror.

She couldn't, she thought wildly, take the risk of passage through waters periled by mines and submarines. If both of them should die, it wouldn't matter. Her father and mother, back in Maryland, would grieve for her, but she wasn't vital to their happiness as Bart had been to hers; but if she should be left without Craigie, if the baby should be left without her—she fled from the thought and from the docks, using the last of her money and her strength to get to Paris.

Labored With Desperation

In a war-dark Paris she found work. Newspaper editors for whom Bart had signed by-lines made a place for her. She couldn't write well—in all the years between she had never risen above hack jobs—but she labored with the desperation of need. While she left Craigie with Madame Terroux, whose husband was with the Hundred and Ninth Regiment and who boarded them in a tiny house not far from Sainte-Chappelle, she tramped the city, interviewing refugees in the Gare du Nord and wounded in the American Hospital at Neuilly, trudging to Red Cross and American Ambulance Corps headquarters, scouting news about women at the big hotels and the American Embassy.

Through four years she lived on the trampled shore of war; but the major theme of her troubled thoughts was not war but Craigie, Craigie well, Craigie sick, Craigie crying, laughing, walking, talking in French, Craigie waiting at the window for her.

Through that time her father and mother had been sending her pleas to return to Maryland. She might, she supposed now, looking out on the golden dome of the State House as the ship swung past Annapolis, have risked life, as other women did, and returned home. Always, though, the memory of the Rotterdam quay and an unacknowledged but deeper feeling that she could not put an ocean between herself and a grave she had never seen held her. With Armistice signed, she had to make choice. Then her knowledge that she could earn in Europe a livelihood for her child and herself determined her course.

When she knew that her work must mean not Paris but a reopened Continent, Geneva and Rome and Moscow, she realized that she couldn't leave Craigie with comparative strangers through the time when she'd be trailing Marie of Rumania's gold dress across the capitals; and so, without a tear until she'd waved her goodby at Havre, she put her in the care of a New York Times correspondent and his wife, and sent her back to the States.

Alone, she strove to attain enough recognition in her work to win her right to signed stories so that she might have enough fame to insure her a job back home; but she never won it. She never saw the Hall of Mirrors at Versailles, although she counted Mrs. Wilson's orchids every day. She never saw the Hall of the Unions in Moscow, although she stood in the deep snow beside John Reed's grave as Krupskaya passed on her way to Lenin's funeral rite. She never interviewed Lloyd George at Geneva, but she wrote the story of the American woman who ordered the lake drained in order to find the ring she had lost in it. She never met Mussolini, although she covered the wedding of an Italian Princess to a Yugoslavian King. She never saw Hitler.

Four Years Of Struggle

Craigie was ten when Nan brought her back to Europe. She put her in school in Switzerland. Other children adored Montreaux, but Craigie was actually, miserably unhappy there. In letters and at every visit she told her mother that she wanted to go crabbing, that she wanted to go sailing on the Chesapeake, that she wanted playmates who spoke her language, Rodney Evans and Sally Stevenson and Lucy Wythe.

For four years in which Nan went without all the amenities and most of the comforts of life so that she could pay the bill, Craigie continued to hate the school and every other place where her mother took her on vacation. When her grandmother died she begged so piteously to be sent back to her grandfather that Nan once again put her on a westbound boat. "I'll be seeing you next Summer," she promised her.

Ruefully, as Baltimore loomed from the bay and the customs inspector went through her bags, she thought of those years that the locust had eaten. She hadn't the money to come back the next Summer or any other. There wasn't much money in the old house in Calvert Town, and she suspected that what she sent for Craigie was keeping it up for both her father and her child. Her job was still fairly good but not good enough to let her risk it. Men and women in the States, let out of jobs, were writing the Paris office, asking for work. Grimly she held her own, too busy, too troubled for what little play might be left in a worried world.

She had been at the Hague, trying to find out if Wilhelmina would marry off Juliana to a Scandinavian prince, when she'd had the forwarded cablegram from Craigie, asking her to come back for her wedding to Rodney Evans. In a huge and dreary hotel room she realized that now she'd never have Craigie for her own. Any girl who married an Evans of Calvert Town would have security. The Evanses had been saving their own and other people's money ever since old Cassius Evans had used his brick tobacco house for a place of deposit when the British had passed through Anne Arundel County. Nan counted her own money, telephoned the Paris office, talked the chief into giving her a leave of absence with an advance, sped to the airport, and boarded the K.L.M. for Paris. There, for three days, she bought for Craigie all the things she'd ever wanted for herself, hats and stockings and gloves and negligees and perfumes and gay, glittering baubles from the Rue de la Paix. Now, seeing them spread in her opened bags, she wondered if Craigie would like them. For, after all, she realized, she didn't know her daughter very well.

They must have bloomed on some slope of the hills where she and Bart had sometimes gone on his days off duty.

Craigie Presents Rodney

The girl who met her at the pier seemed all that she'd wanted her to be, a girl with Bart's eyes and Bart's manner, gay and blithe and almost breath-takingly radiant. She rushed on Nan like a young whirlwind, and Nan clasped her in tightening arms.

"Oh, Moms, I'm glad you could come!" Craigie cried. Her voice lilted and sang in a happiness, Nan guessed, deeper than that of occasion. Any woman, even one less keen and interested than her mother, would have set her down as a girl in love and beloved. "I didn't take a long breath until we had your cable from Havre. I was so afraid they'd sent you off to see Mussolini or the Emperor of Ethiopia. But you're here!" She gazed at Nan with bright joy, and Nan gazed back with yearning adoration. After all, no matter when or whom Craigie married, she was her child. "And am I glad to be here," she sighed contentedly.

"This is Rodney." With casual but certain pride Craigie displayed the young man in her wake. He was, Nan thought, solid. He'd never take his wife off the main lines of life's conducted tours; but he'd never let her drown. She held out her hand to him, and he grasped it with earnest reassurance. "I hope you won't be leaving us soon for any front page story of Europe," he said a little solemnly.

"I hope not." Her mouth quirked in amusement at his idea that she, Nan Cameron, should be needed for a front page assignment. When had she written any story that had crashed the headlines? "Oh, they'll have to struggle along without me for a while."

As they wound through Baltimore traffic and out upon the pike toward Calvert Town Nan strove to swing the conversation from their interest in her to her interest in them. "Ever since Craigie came back from Montreaux," she told Rodney, "I've suspected that some one like you was the main attraction of Maryland."

"I had to work hard," he declared boyishly, "to keep her around this part of the world. I knew that if she went back to Europe I'd never have a chance against the princes and grand dukes she'd meet."

Where, Nan wondered with a surprise she concealed under a joyous smile at her child, would Craigie meet them? Not with her, she was certain, but Craigie sent back the ball. "Rod was afraid I'd be sitting out dances with the Prince of Wales while you were talking to Queen Mary."

"Why, I never—," Nan began, but Craigie's wig-wagging hand halted her. "Well, there'd be a danger," she shifted. "Tell me about the wedding," she bade them, striving to get off the topic of acquaintanceship she'd never possessed.

"It won't be much of a wedding to you after the ones you've seen," Craigie said. "Only a little country church and two bridesmaids, Sally Stevenson and Lucy Wythe. Just think, Rod darlin', mother went to the Duke of Gloucester's wedding."

"And I suppose King George took me in to dinner afterward?" she laughed, remembering that her nearest approach to an English royal wedding had been an interview with a dressmaker who'd made a gown for the Princess Marina.

"Did he?" Rodney asked seriously. "What does Stanley Baldwin say about the Anglo-Dutch understanding? Will there be a cabinet crisis on silver? What does Cecil think about the sanctions?"

He was, she decided, most certainly solid. Where on earth did these youngsters learn more than their elders? Did he talk like this all the time or was he reading from his cuff to impress her? But why?

No one in all her lifetime had put her on a pedestal. "It's certainly a privilege to meet a woman of the great world like you," he told her. "Good Lord," she thought, "he'll be quoting me in a minute that 'I walk with kings but keep the common touch.' How do they get this way?"

Suddenly, watching Craigie, she found answer. The girl had built for her a magnificent myth of life, inferring, declaring that she worked and played with men and women who were making the news of the world. Surely, though, Craigie hadn't needed to set up any such false background for this nice boy who so evidently loved her. Why on earth had she been silly enough to lie this way? Youth, Nan decided, in quest of romance, and parried and sparred to keep up the illusion. She couldn't let Craigie down. If Craigie said she'd played billiards with Poincare, well, then, she'd played billiards with Poincare.

Deftly she avoided quicksands and tried to keep somewhere near the truth; but she sighed in relief when the car stopped in front of the old house she had not seen for more than twenty years.

Father Gives Old-Time Welcome

Her father, looking older than she recalled him but not as old as she had feared, gave her the same calm welcome he had been wont to give her when she had returned from girlhood jaunts to Annapolis and Baltimore. She clung to him wordlessly for a little while, trying to bridge their long years of separation by the understanding tenderness of her love for him, trying to tell him by the fervor of her embrace how she had sorrowed with him for her mother's passing. At first she could not see the shabby old rooms for her tears of remembrance. Then, with misted eyes, she began to glimpse the aspect of the long parlor, and knew that at last, she had come home.

The white marble mantel, with its low fire of coals, gleamed just as it had on the last day she had seen it, the day of her own wedding. Upon it stood, just as of old, the Staffordshire figures of Wallace and Rob Roy. In the firelight gleamed the old brass and irons. The same old hurricane lamp stood on the same old butterfly table. The same old slave chairs guarded the old secretary. Nothing, not even the worn carpet and the lace curtains, seemed changed.

• • • •

Home Is More Than a Place

Home was, she realized, more than a place. It was a symbol of peace, of security, of all the things she'd never had since she'd gone away from it. Its serenity flooded her spirit, and she turned to the others with a sigh of utter contentment. "Oh, it's wonderful to be here!"

"It can't look much to you after the palaces you've seen," her father said.

"It looks better to me than any palace I've ever seen," she insisted, but she knew that they were, all three discounting her sincerity for politeness. How could she make them believe how truly happy she was in this homecoming? How could she batter down this absurd ridiculous idea that she would not be satisfied with their simple pleasures? How deeply had Craigie infected them with this silly notion?

She was to find out how good a press agent her child had been when Calvert Town came over the threshold with a celerity that suggested that it had been at its windows watching for her return. Rodney's mother, who had been Susie May Harrison and who'd gone to high school with her, was the first to arrive. Nan, rejoicing in the chance to talk with her about Rod and Craigie, took the field; but Susie May drove her into another. "How much of Ivan Kreuger's money did that woman in Paris keep?" she wanted to know, explaining that they'd lost a little on Swedish Match. Before Nan could display her ignorance of Kreuger's affairs, financial or sentimental the bridesmaids came in; but their coming did not save her, for Sally Stevenson and Lucy Wythe, young as today, chattering like magpies, whirled into queries of their own.

Didn't Queen Mary like the Duchess of Kent better than the Duchess of Gloucester? Hadn't the Prince of Wales a ducky smile? What had Mata Hari told her when she'd seen her in prison? Had she brought over the autographed picture that the Archduke Otto had given her? Whom did she think was handsomer, the Duke of Torlonia or Sir Anthony Eden? What did Dolfuss say to her when he was dying? Was that why she couldn't go into Germany now? Wouldn't she tell them the story of that awful night when she'd escaped prison in Russia?

Never once in the hours that followed, while her own old friends and Craigie's younger ones crowded the house, could she come down to the earth of her own honesty. She didn't have to lie flatly, for the questions came too fast to force her into corners, but she felt like the ball of a pelota game, bounced backward and forward, hither and yon.

Sometimes, catching Craigie's imploring glances as she faltered, she felt sorry for the girl, but her anger grew that her daughter should have thought it necessary to lie about her. More than once she flung at the girl a look of protesting indignation. Hadn't she done enough for Craigie by providing her with this security? Wasn't it infinitely better that she was marrying a lad like Rodney than chasing around Europe, digging up third-class tales? Perhaps, though, she conceded with her old humor, Craigie might have done better in the game than her mother had done. After all, the child had Bart's imagination, and lacking other use for it, had draped her fancy around an absent parent. But what a tangling web she'd woven! For the rest of her life, Nan supposed, she'd be trying to avoid the snares of these fantastic stories.

For the rest of her life.

Prefers Own Home To Europe

Not until she came within the shelter of her own old room that night did she realize how she had been repeating to herself that phrase. In the haven of its faded chintz she faced understanding of her own deep desire. More than she had wanted anything else in the world since Bart's death she longed to stay here. The chancereis of Europe? She'd prefer the farmers market on Saturday mornings. Pleasures and palaces? She'd rather have the strawberry festival at Bethany Church. Thrills and excitements? She'd take a yawl on the bay. Even if she might have all that Craigie had painted as her background the parties at palaces whose names she hardly knew, the contacts with people whom the whole world knew quite as well as did she, she'd still choose this old town, this old house, this old way of life.

Even while her long repressed homesickness swept over her consciousness she realized that she'd have to stem its tide. With the clarity of practical knowledge she saw the situation into which she had come. Her money, the money which she earned with the hardships Craigie ignored, was certainly the only income for her father or her daughter. Craigie was leaving the need of it, but her father was too old, too set in his ways to be transplanted. He'd have to stay on in this house where he'd been born. It would be cruel to take him out of it, even to live with Rod and Craigie; but how could he stay in it without the money she earned for him? And how could she earn the money without holding the one job she'd ever had? "Heigh-ho!" she sighed, and made up her mind to have it out with Craigie. Not for another day would she endure this humiliation of pretense. What if some one should put it in a Baltimore paper? How'd she ever again face the men of the Paris office? If there was one thing she'd learned, it was respect for honest work. If she couldn't give Craigie any other heritage, she'd give her that for a wedding gift.

• • • •

From the hall below young laughter rose to her. The bridesmaids and Rodney were going. She heard their gay shouts as they went out into the Maryland night. The door closed, and she thought Craigie would be coming; but Craigie did not come, and, after a while, wondering if she had gone out with the others Nan went back down the stair.

There was no light in the parlor except the glow from the dying fire. For a moment she stood, looking into it, then, at a sound behind her, whirled to see Craigie, curled upon the couch, crying. "What is it?" she pleaded, her grievance forgotten in swift solicitude. "Darling, what's happened?"

"Nothing." With Nan's arms around her she shook in [illegible] misery.

"Tell me."

"I can't. Oh, mother, I'm so sorry!"

"For what?" She kissed the back of Craigie's neck as she had done when they'd lived at Mme. Terroux. "Can't you tell me, baby?"

"You know."

"But I don't know. What has he done?"

"It isn't Rodney. It's you."

"I? How have I messed things up? Why, I've done nothing since I came to this house but back up your wild stories about me. Any one who believes you would think I've been chasing all over Europe like a galloping heiress and the worst of it is that they all believe you, even father. What have I ever done that you'd be ashamed of what I really am?"

Not Ashamed, But Proud

"Oh, that's it." Craigie said miserably. "I'm not ashamed. I'm proud of you. Really. Oh, Moms, I didn't mean to have it turn out this way."

"Then why did you start it?"

"I don't know that you'll understand." She braced herself for the plunge. "You see, this is how it happened. When I came back here from Switzerland I used to listen to the girls, Sally and Lucy and the others, talking about their fathers and their mothers, and—and I my father was dead, and you were such a long way off. When they used to tell me about what their mothers were doing I used to wish that I could tell something about you that would sound better than making cakes and going to parties and buying dresses for them in Baltimore.

"And so one day I said that you were going to lunch with the Queen of Spain, and and they all got so excited that I had to tell it over and over again to pretty nearly everybody in town. Then they all began asking questions about you, and I just kept on saying you were with people who were on the front pages. I didn't realize how wrong it was—not till you came home today. Then I saw all you'd done for us, for grandfather and for me—and I'm so ashamed that I want to spend all the rest of my life making it up to you."

"You poor baby." She tried to hold her tight, but Craigie drew herself away. "What a lonesome youngster you've been."

"But I wasn't. You were the lonesome one. Moms, I've been a selfish wretch. I should have stayed with you instead of coming here from Montreaux. But I'm going to make it up to you." She lifted a tear-stained exalted young face. "I'm going back with you now."

"With me? What about Rodney?"

"I'll tell him"—her tone was firm but her lip quivered—"that my first duty is to my mother."

"But, Craigie, dear."

"I won't be a burden to you, Moms. I'll work with you."

"Work with me?"

"I'll go around with you, and—"

"Craigie, listen to me." For a moment she remembered her plan for the little house near the forest of Fontainebleau, and her heart beat fast at the thought that she might yet win it with Craigie. Then in the dim light from the fire she seemed to see herself as she had stood, more than twenty years ago, one night when Bart had gone back to Baltimore. They had quarreled over some trivial matter, and hurt and angry, he had gone from her. The desolation of the hours that followed had been so terrible that, even now she could feel their wretchedness, could understand what the girl must endure in any intention of giving up the boy she loved. "Do you love Rodney?"

"Ye-es."

"Do you want to leave him?"

"No, but—"

"Then you're not going to do it."

She twisted the girl's shoulder so that she might look deep into her eyes, so startlingly, heart-breakingly like Bart's. "You're doing this for me, aren't you?"

"I want to do it for you. You've done so much for me and I——I——"

"I don't want you to do this." If she remembered her dreams of what life with Craigie could mean she put them back of her. "If I give up [illegible] up in the hope that you'd [illegible] getting now peace and comfort, and security, and love like Rodney. You have that. You'll have it always. He's that kind of [illegible]

Our Old Country Letter

By J. E. Norcross

LONDON, Eng., March 13.—"The Fall of London," gasped the Morning Post.

"A blow to the prestige of the British Empire abroad," sobbed the Rothermere paper.

The worst had happened or nearly the worst. London had not only voted for another three years of Labor administration, but had actually increased the Labor majority in the County Council.

J. E. Norcross

As has been explained in the correspondence, the 124 councillors are elected as a body every three years. In 1934 Labor obtained a majority for the first time returning 69 members to the 55 of the Municipal Reformers.

This result was attributed to the apathy of the electorate and Labor's opponents were sure that London would not permit such a thing to occur again. It was monstrous that the capital of the Empire should be in the hands of the Socialists.

So the Conservative central office, which is organized on national lines for parliamentary elections, came to the rescue of the Municipal Reformers, bringing all its batteries into action. Propaganda streamed forth. Mr. Baldwin and Sir John Simon appealed on behalf of the National government, begging the electors to go to the polls and evict the Labor party from the seats of the mighty—"a kind of [illegible] testimonial to the National government," suggested a Conservative council.

All alike were confident that if only the electors could be [illegible] into action the Municipal Reformers would be victorious.

Well, the electors were stirred, but it worked in reverse. In 1934 only 33.5 per cent of the registered voters marked their ballots. This time 42.6 did so, not a big percentage, but, as The Times points out, one that is much better than it looks considering the tendency of Londoners to move frequently from one neighborhood to another and so find themselves a long way from their voting place.

The 42.6 sent back six more Labor councillors, thus increasing the Labor majority from 14 to 26.

DURING the campaign the Labor party deemed themselves handicapped by the Communists who insisted on fighting for them. The Conservatives lost no opportunity of rubbing this in.

"Certainly the Communist party has played the Tory game splendidly," was the bitter comment of the Labor leader on the eve of the election.

"Leaflets, expensively produced papers, posters, loud speaker vans, processions, indoor and outdoor meetings, and a Trafalgar Square demonstration the Sunday before the poll. They have featured every [illegible] the Tory wanted featured. They have given interviews to the [illegible] Tory newspapers that are lying worst about Labor.

It is doubtful whether the Communists had anything to do with the general outcome. They were responsible, however, for one sinister result. The Fascists elected none of their candidates but the number of votes they polled was an unwelcome surprise to all other parties.

AS the event has proved it was a psychological mistake for the National government to intervene in the London County Council election.

Yet, Londoners have always been jealous of the [illegible] He has always resented [illegible] Mr. Herbert Morrison [illegible] attempt to turn the capital [illegible] colony. It might have been known in advance that he would resent the advice given him by the Prime Minister and the Home Secretary as to how he should manage his own affairs.

Again and again in centuries gone by the old City of London has been at loggerheads with the executive at Westminster and the tradition has carried on into the relations of Greater London, governed by its County Council, with the ministry of the day.

As the Daily Telegraph points out the result of this last election indicates the persistency of the principle that London elects a County Council of party complexion opposite to that of the government.

The Progressives (predominantly Liberals) were in office during the good days of Unionism under Salisbury, and Chamberlain. At the first County Council election following the parliamentary triumph of the Liberals in 1906 the Municipal Reformers brought the long reign of the Progressives to an end. "It was during the paralysis of Socialism in parliament that the Socialists evicted the Municipal Reformers."

To avoid confusion it may be stated here that "Socialist party" and "Labor party" are interchangeable terms. The Labor party [illegible]

HER NAME IN LIGHTS

By MARC BLIZARD

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DAPHNE BRETT loved LARRY SMITH, architect. Larry had repeatedly asked her to marry him. But Daphne had always refused, not telling Larry, however, that she first wanted to lay aside sufficient money to launch JENNIFER, her young sister, on a career.

Jennifer had proved the selfish sister from the start, defying Daphne at every turn. Finally Jennifer meets GORDON HERZBERG, theater producer, and apparently finds her work.

Then Daphne is sent on a two-months' sales tour across the continent. Before she leaves, Larry again asks her to marry him, and again she refuses. So Larry says goodby, assuming that Daphne cares more for her career than she does for him. The trip proves successful, but the thought of losing Larry tortures Daphne.

And when she returns she finds that Larry is now dating Jennifer!

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XX

DAPHNE said yes, she had certainly liked San Francisco and that she would like to have seen it when there was a Barbary coast. No, she said, she hadn't met anyone named Mickel when she was in Cleveland.

She told them the story about the midget who walked up and down all night in his berth. She admired the sketch someone showed her of the town hall at Marietta. She danced with three people. She told Mr. Todd that she did like Rockefeller Centre and that he was all wrong if he had gotten any other impress.on.

She did her very best to be the kind of a guest she would have been at Anne's annual party for her advertising agency friends but when two o'clock came, she picked herself up from her cushioned seat on the floor and slipped away to the bedroom to get her wrap.

Anne closed the door softly at her back and they were alone for the first time.

"Lovely party, Anne. Mr. Todd told me that he wanted you to do their spring book." She powdered her nose.

"I know all about that so let's skip it. What I want to know is what's happened to you."

"We'll talk about it some other time, darling. I hear your guests screaming for you. That's a sure sign of success."

"Let 'em scream. Oh, I wish I'd had a chance to talk to you but you know how it is."

Daphne was getting into her wrap. "Of course, I do. Give me a ring at the office tomorrow."

Anne stood at her back, looking into the same mirror. "What's the matter, Daphne? You look as though the devil himself had chased you across the country."

Daphne shook her head and bit her lip in an effort to keep back the tears.

Anne was stunned. "Do I see tears? Have you had bad news?"

Daphne nodded her head.

"The job?"

"No," Daphne said, "tis just that I'm an unpleasant girl. I'm cracking up because my sister stole my beau."

"Jennifer and Larry? But that's ridiculous. Why I've seen them together three or four times in the last month but I . . . She realized she had said too much. "Was there some trouble between you, Daph?"

"Yes." Daphne drew on her gloves, "it was all my fault and Jennifer is beautiful so I guess I'd better get a grip on myself. Why shouldn't he fall for her?"

Anne pulled Daphne down on the bed beside her. "I'll tell you why, you little fool; because Jennifer isn't worth your little finger and because she is a . . . well, what kind of a girl is she who'd do a thing like this to her own sister? She knows that you were in love with Larry. You ought to teach her a lesson for her own good."

Teach Jennifer a lesson for her own good!

For Jennifer's good. For Larry's good. Jennifer had everything now. She had no reason not to believe that she could always take what she wanted, have everything she desired no matter who it hurt. She was young, beautiful, ruthless. And some day it would hurt her. That some day was still Daphne's responsibility. That thought she kept in mind.

"Do you mind terribly about Larry?" Jennifer asked her.

"Why should I?" she responded, coolly.

"I've got to rush if I'm going to meet Larry" . . . "You understand why I don't ask him here, don't you, darling? I don't want to embarrass either of you" . . . "Larry was showing me some plans today for the new building the Trepal school is putting up at Plantsport."

. . . Larry this and Larry that.

Not by one small sign did Daphne Brett betray the thing that happened to her when she heard his name on her sister's lips; the swift, hot pain that smote her and retreated slowly along an aching path of memory.

She picked up the threads where she had left them off and was astonished to see how few they were. She hadn't realized how completely Larry had filled her life, how many pleasant companions she had let go when she had found Larry.

So you're in circulation again," they said on the telephone after she had sent cards to say that she was home and would be glad to have them on Sunday for tea.

"Yes," she said gaily, and thought how artificial she was going to become.

"Do come on Sunday," she said. Oh, yes please come on Sunday because on Sunday Jennifer may say that she is going up to Brett Hall. "Larry came for me and drove me up last Sunday."

Daph. I saw Gordon Herzberg today. He's got a marvelous new show. He took me to lunch and told me about it. There's a part that calls for a girl who is more your type but I'm sure I could do it and I think he's interested. So, I didnt pay any attention to the call from the Brown offices. I'd rather stay with Gordon if I can. Heavens, is that 10 of 7? I've got to fly. I've got a date." Jennifer flew.

That hurt, too. That new habit of saying, "I've got a date." Not saying where or with whom. Leaving her to guess that it would be with Larry.

One night Daphne allowed herself to get "weepy." She saw again the tender gestures that were part of Larry. Only the girl who received them was Jennifer and not herself. In the midst of her misery the telephone rang.

She reached for it and said, "Hello," in a strangled voice.

"Is Miss Brett in?" It was Larry. "No," she said and put the receiver back.

Oh, Jennifer it isn't fair! You've always had everything. The best dolls when we were little. My new boys when you yelled for them and even when you didn't. Money for school when I had to work for my livelihood. Money for good times while I tapped a typewriter till the time that I wanted to be an actress.

Be an actress. Be an actress. Be an actress.

Daphne sat up straight and thought about the thing that the phrase had put in her mind. The thing that would teach Jennifer. Resolutely she got up and slinked into her living room and sat down at her desk. Then she opened the telephone book and drew a pad and pencil toward her.

She wrote:

See maitre

Buy paper and envelopes at Tiffany

Ask Anne for name of fur rental

Plan flowers

Arrange Tuesday off for experiment

Make out guest list

Larry? ? ?

Private dining room

Which night club?

When she finished she studied the list of things to do with approval. "I'll start tomorrow," she said to herself. "With $3,000 I ought to be able to have a little fun. Not to mention fireworks."

When Jennifer came in, about midnight, with no explanations, Daphne said to her, "What's Gordon Herzberg's home address, do you know?"

Today's Markets

At New York

NEW YORK, March 27.—Steels and specialties gave the stock market a brighter tinge in today's brief session, a number pushing up fractions to a point and a few considerably more.

The "Blue Chip" Homestake Mining, responding to a proposal for a 5-for-1 split-up of the stock in order to afford it a broader market, jumped more than 35 points. Transfers approximated 550,000 shares.

International Nickel and McIntyre were steady in quiet trading. Canadian Pacific and Hiram Walker fell back slightly.

EDMONTON STOCKYARDS, March 27—Report from Edmonton stockyards for week ending March 27:—

| Receipts— | Cattle | Calves | Hogs | Sheep |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Week | 738 | 227 | 1012 | 217 |
| Saturday | 191 | 32 | 240 | 153 |

There was not the same keenness noticeable on the cattle market during this past week, due principally to the large percentage of poor quality offerings. Sales on the whole indicated that prices generally remain fully steady and unchanged with last week's close. The following are the ruling quotations:—

Good to choice fed calves $6.50 to $7.50; others from $6 down; good to choice steers $6.50 to $7.50, medium to good $5.50 to $6.50, common to fair $4 to $5; good to choice heifers $5 to $6, medium to good $4.50 to $5, common to medium $3.50 to $4.50; good to choice cows $3.75 to $4.25, common to medium $2.50 to $3.50, canners and cutters $1.25 to $2; bulls $2.50 to $3.25.

Fair action on the stocker market which remained fully steady. Good kinds $3.50 to $4.50; others $3.25 down.

Calf market steady and unchanged with the bulk of good kinds going at $6.50 to $7, choice up to $7.50, plainer kinds from $6 down.

Hog market during this past week has been showing a firmer tone. Today (Thursday) trucked bacons sold at $7.90, selects bringing a premium of 50c per cwt., and butchers discounted 50c per cwt.

Insufficient sheep and lamb arrivals to make or establish a market, with quality decidedly of an indifferent order. Prices generally remain about steady and unchanged with quotations for lambs ranging from $8.40 down; yearlings $5 down, and ewes $4 down.

Veteran Woman Scribe Dies at 74

WESTPORT, Conn., March 27.—Mrs. Nevada Davis Hitchcock, 74, veteran newspaperwoman, died today at her home here after an illness of several weeks.

Mrs. Hitchcock, who joined the staff of the New York Herald in 1893, later was an assistant woman's page editor for the New York Press and, during the Great War days, home economics editor of the Philadelphia Record.

Her husband, Ralph Hitchcock, was a Cleveland reporter. He died in 1916.

HOLY RITE IS OBSERVED IN SPAIN CRISIS

Insurgents Pause to Celebrate Saving of Famous Images

SEVILLE, Spain, March 26.—The colorful pageantry of Holy Week processions ended at sunrise today when thousands of residents of insurgent Seville had paid homage to two famous images saved by Spain's bullfighters from the ravages of war.

The statues, the Madonna of the faith of Macarena and the Christ of great power, borne upon richly canopied platforms between 1,000 burning candles, were greeted with cries of joy and chants all along the procession route through the streets of Seville.

STATUES HIDDEN

It was the first public appearance of the images since before the civil war started last July. Months ago, bullfighters secretly took the statues of their patron saints out of churches and hid them in other buildings. The Macarena church was burned and many believed the statue of the Madonna had been destroyed.

Ireland's General Eoin O'Duffy, who has 1,000 Irishmen fighting with him on the insurgent side, was among those who came to Seville to witness the ceremonies. He said he intended to remain in Spain "for the duration."

PAY TRIBUTE

The hush of prayer settled over Seville upon conclusion of the centuries-old pageantry, in which barefoot women and girls tramped the cobblestone streets to pay tribute to the Holy Virgin.

Uniforms of insurgent officers and soldiers added color to the milling throngs in the streets during the ceremonies, which started at dawn Thursday.

Party Convention Being Held Here

Commendation of the stand taken by Fred Anderson, M.L.A., Calgary, on the relief situation regarding unemployed Chinese in Calgary, was expressed by Andrew Hogarth secretary for Alberta of the Communist Party of Canada, when he spoke at the opening of the Young Communist party convention which commenced a three day session in the Scandinavian hall Friday.

Mr. Hogarth described conditions in which he said Calgary unemployed Chinese were living, stating that dozens of them were required to live together in one room sleeping on the floor, eating only bread, and thin soup, as their $1.1[illegible] relief each week would allow them nothing better.

"A more sympathetic attitude was expected from a young M.L.A. than was received from Hon. Lucien Maynard," said Mr. Hogarth, who roundly condemned Mr. Maynard and the government.

He stated that the Social Credit party had failed to make effective its election promises and that it was showing a decidedly unsympathetic attitude towards the problems of the unemployed.

The conference is continuing Saturday and Sunday.

U.S. FREIGHTER FLASHES SOS AS PUMPS FAIL

British Boat Rushes To Stricken Craft After Violent Gales

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27—Carrying a crew of about 40, the U.S. freighter Volunteer flashed an SOS today as her pumps failed and water gained in her hold. The British freighter Fresno City, 240 miles away, steamed to her assistance at 12 knots.

The Volunteer reported she was 840 miles from Yokohama, Japan. It was estimated the Fresno City would reach the stricken craft about 10 p.m. M.S.T. tonight.

SHIP LISTING

Coast guard headquarters in Seattle heard the Volunteer was listing.

Word of the Volunteer's plight was received by Globe wireless here from the Dollar liner President Harrison. The freighter said water was "out of control" in number one hold and the pumps not functioning properly.

The message also was picked up by the Empress of Canada, sailing west from Japan. The Canadian Pacific liner held to her course after learning the Fresno City was the nearest ship.

SALE DAMAGE

Globe wireless said the Volunteer probably was damaged in a mile-a-minute gale which swept the Pacific ocean two days ago. No storm was reported today.

The Volunteer left New Orleans Feb. 7 and cleared Honolulu March 15 for Kobe and Osaka. She is owned by the U.S. Shipping Board, a ship of 7,717 gross tons and 410 feet long, built at Alameda, Calif., in 1918.

Mock Judas Gets Rough Treatment

ANTICOLI CORRADO, Italy, March 27.—Peasants lost in religious fervor cuffed and screamed insults at the most unpopular of their community, forced to play the role of Judas Iscariot, yesterday as they reenacted the entombment of Christ.

So sorrowfully vituperative did spectators become that the mimic Judas had to leave the procession and hide.

Start Work Early

OTTAWA, March 27.—The House of Commons will begin morning sittings next week. Notice of motion was given today by Prime Minister Mackenzie King that beginning March 31 the house will begin its duties at 11 a.m.

EDMONTON BOY MAY WIN TRIP ON QUEEN MARY

It took Rene Pepin, of 9824 110 street, 1,200 hours to fashion his miniature model of the massive Queen Mary, but he now has the hope of being rewarded for his labors by getting a free ride across the ocean in the renowned beauty of the seas.

For Rene received word Friday that his boat—a bewitching thing—has been judged one of the hundred best submitted to a New York firm by experienced craftsmen from all over the continent. Thousands of entries were weeded out ere the best models were deemed worthy of the final rigid tests. The owner of the winning boat gets the free trip to England.

The petite Queen Mary, almost as pretty as its original, is now on display at the office of the C.P. R.Steamships, where jovial Ron Greene, manager, has trouble recognizing it apart from the real liner.

Gleaned From Today's News

The meeting of the Edmonton Young Men's Liberal Association on Monday, scheduled to have been addressed by J. H. Tremblay, Liberal M.L.A. for Grouard, has been cancelled out of respect to Clayton McLennan, who died Friday night. Mr. McLennan has for many years been the association's outstanding member. He was a past president of the organization and at his death was its secretary.

Pilot Sheldon Luck, United Air ways, left Fort McMurray Friday for Outpost Island and Cameron Bay, and will continue from there to Coppermine and Cambridge Bay on a fur flight. Archie McMullen is northbound from Fort Simpson to Aklavik on the mail flight. Art Rankin was reported at Yellowknife, Don Lawson at Fort Smith, and Con Farrell due in Edmonton Saturday.

Pilot Sheldon Luck, nited Air Transport, returned to Edmonton Friday with the Peace River mail and two passengers, B. H. Watcher and S. Winton from Grande Prairie. Pilot Ernest Kubicek, who flew parts to McDame's Creek for Ralph Oakes' damaged aircraft, is expected in Saturday.

Grant McConachie, president of United Air Transport, was test flying a new Ford tri-motor plane in Montreal on Friday, which he is bringing to Edmonton next week, it was learned at the Edmonton office. The huge new aircraft is equipped with two-way radio, and will be operated on floats this summer in northern British Columbia.

"BOARD" INSURANCE COMPANIES

182 of which have co-operated in one Technical and Service Organization—THE WESTERN CANADA INSURANCE UNDERWRITERS' ASSOCIATION.

This organization has accumulated statistical and rating information which it would be impossible for any one Insurance Company alone to acquire.

Such co-operative effort economically provides each of the "Board" Companies with a vital service—a rate classification based on actual experience.

In addition to its Rating Service, this Organization promotes Fire Prevention and Protection—through its inspection and testing laboratories for mechanical, electrical devices, appliances and building materials—inspection of Water Works and Fire Department systems for all Western cities and towns—compiling Building, Electrical, Fire Prevention and Safety Codes for cities and towns—and co-operating in civic protective problems . . . thereby

Madrid Claims Second Victory Against Rebels

BARCELONA, Spain, March 27.—The cabinet of the autonomous state of Catalonia headed by Premier Jose Tarradellas resigned Friday. President Luis Companys announced names of a new cabinet would be announced Monday or Tuesday "at the earliest."

MADRID, March 27 — The Spanish government claimed last night its second major victory within a week in a drive against insurgent positions outside Pozoblanco, 150 miles southwest of Madrid.

Such a victory might mark an important turning point in the civil war, now in its ninth month, by keeping the insurgents from a desired new field base in the southern sector and by cutting them off from the Mercury mining district—with its raw materials for armaments.

The Valencia government reported dissension within its enemy's ranks caused removal of 30,000 Italian insurgent volunteers from the Guadalajara front and that a number of bodies found indicated "those in the front line had been shot by others behind them."

The Pozoblanco offensive, second within a week, appeared to indicate a strengthened government morale.

On the front northeast of Madrid, government militia have driven back the insurgents to a point about 30 miles from the capital.

A third army, however, still is within quick striking distance.

This army is composed of an insurgent contingent within suburban Madrid itself—the University City troops are about two miles from the centre of the capital—and a network of trenches and artillery pieces just outside.

From this army has come the damaging artillery shelling that has plagued Madrid for six months, yet the University City troops have been unable to advance further.

Insurgent headquarters disputed the Pozoblanco reports, claiming government fighters suffered heavy losses.

ELDORADO PLANS FOR BIG YEAR

Orders for machinery, groceries and other supplies, totalling $100,000 will be placed immediately for the coming year's operations at Eldorado Gold Mines, Ltd., radium producers at Great Bear Lake, it was stated Friday by Emil J. Walli, manager, who arrived from the north Thursday and is staying at the Macdonald hotel.

A large proportion of these orders will be placed with Edmonton firms, Mr. Walli said, although he could not state definitely the amount. A new Diesel electric unit is being brought from the east while considerable other equipment already has been shipped north.

A new prospect shaft, 1,800 feet from the present mine, is being sunk. Production, which last year was $1,345,00, is expected to be greatly increased this year.

ISHAM AGAIN MAKES FIND

NEW YORK, March 27—Colonel Ralph M. Isham, who in 1927 discovered enough of James Boswell's hitherto unpublished papers to fill 18 volumes, and three years later discovered the original manuscript of Boswell's Journal of a Tour to the Hebrides with Samuel Johnson," has made a new discovery—an 84-page diary kept by Dr. Johnson between 1765 and 1784.

Colonel Isham also found Boswell's great-great grandson's castle Malahide Castle, near Dublin. The descendant, Lord Talbot, almost 10 years ago sold to Colonel Isham his entire collection of Boswelliana. Colonel Isham found the new items last March 16 after three days of search.

Beauty and Beast—Struck By Same Idea

Waitresses Want Just Desserts

Forty waitresses in a Detroit restaurant hadn't lost a bit of enthusiasm for their sit-down strike when this picture was taken of them in conference with the management. The girls struck during the noon hour and those in another cafe immediately followed suit. Customers went unfed or waited on themselves. Food cooled unheeded in the kitchen. Unpaid checks were numerous. The waitresses want more pay, shorter hours.

Colossal Move, But Not on Foot

When bustling activity around winter quarters of the A. G. Barnes-Sells Floto circus near Los Angeles indicated the road season was about to begin with its resultant labor of pushing wagons, tiger cages, packing, dining, dismantling. How did they demur? They sat down. And thus was born the first elephant sit-down on record. Police were powerless, but the trainers thought of using pickets every sharp[?] on the elephants.

C. M. M'LENNAN, POPULAR CITY YOUTH, IS DEAD

Bulletin Bulletts junior hockey team, Young Liberals and Arrow Busses junior baseball teams, a girls' baseball team and the Young Liberals rugby football team. He was an ardent follower of all sports, including horse racing.

He became actively interested in politics in 1931 and took a leading part in the activities of the Edmonton Young Liberal club, being its president at one time. In the latter part of last May he was a delegate to the Twentieth Century club convention in Ottawa, where he was received by Prime Minister Mackenzie King and was his guest at lunch. Prior to his death he was secretary of the Young Liberals.

He was an omnivorous reader and had an astonishing grasp of world and national affairs, both historical and current. In recent years he spent considerable time in the garden at his home and, as in all his activities, took a keen interest in its science and fundamentals, doing some experimentation in flower culture.

MAGNETIC PERSONALITY

Possessed of a magnetic personality and a ready wit, he made friends readily, drawing all persons to him by his genuine interest in themselves, their problems and their interests.

He leaves his parents, Duncan McLennan, who is superintendent of the Edmonton Stock Yards, and Mrs. McLennan; one brother, Kenneth and one sister, Mary, Mrs. Daniel McLeod, all living at the family residence.

Also surviving are his uncle, William Blythe, of Edmonton, a veteran of the Royal North West Mounted Police and later warden at Fort Saskatchewan and Lethbridge jails; also an aunt, Mrs. D. R. Stewart, Winnipeg, whose husband is superintendent of Whittier Park.

FUNERAL MONDAY

Clayton was christened by the late Rev. D. G. McQueen, D.D., pioneer Presbyterian missionary of Edmonton.

Funeral service will be held Monday at 2 p.m. from Andrews Brothers' private chapel, with Rev. A. R. Osborn, D.D., officiating. Burial will be in the Edmonton cemetery.

Tributes Paid Clayton McLennan

High tribute was paid to Clayton McLennan for his personal qualities by city men high in public life, who were his former associates. Expressions of feeling follow:

Mr. Justice W. R. Howson, former Alberta Liberal leader: For a number of years I was closely associated with Clayton McLennan and knew something of his capabilities. This makes it very regrettable to me to learn of his demise.

He was a splendid type of aggressive young manhood, who had real qualities of leadership, and I predicted for him a most successful career. The young people of the rising generation have not only lost a good friend but one who at all times was a champion of their cause.

Mayor Joseph A. Clarke, K.C.: I knew Clayton for years and always found him a tireless worker in any community cause. He took a deep interest in politics and made a genuine attempt through his organizational work to better conditions for the more unfortunate.

Possessing a happy disposition and a fund of wit he was starting a very promising career. Both Mrs. Clarke, who knew him well, and myself are deeply grieved at his death and wish to extend our heartfelt sympathies to his family.

Dr. Walter Morrish M.L.A.: Clayton McLennan was one of the most active young Liberals we had in the city, not only that, he was a fine type of young fellow. He was an idealist to some extent, and yet practical. He will be kindly remembered by all who had anything to do with him, either in a political or a social way.

Joseph Hoefle Dies In City Hospital

A resident of Riviere Qui Barre for 36 years before leaving to take up residence in Edmonton, Joseph Hoefle, 58, died in a city hospital Friday after a brief illness. He was born in Deemerton, Ont., and came to Alberta in 1899, where, settling in the Riviere Qui Barre district, he practiced his trade as carpenter until his retirement two years ago.

He leaves three daughters and four sons, Joseph and Josephine, in Edmonton, Mrs. H. Dahlgren in Everett, Wash.; Mrs. T. W. Shnell, in Grapeview, Calif.; C. Albert and Eugene in Calmoso, and Peter in Willamette, Ore.

The funeral service will be conducted by Rev. Father MacIntyre in the Roman Catholic church at Riviere Qui Barre Monday at 10 o'clock. Andrews Brothers are directing funeral arrangements.

Mackenzie Air Service on Saturday reported Pilot Alex. Bannerman for Gordon Lake. Harry Hayter arrived at Edmonton Friday from Outpost Island. W. A. Coughlin was a passenger.

men of the Conservative party and destined for high, possibly the highest office.

It is a fascinating speculation. If nothing more, one day a Morrison will face a Morrison in the house, the one as premier, the other as leader of the opposition.

* * * * *

THE Labor executive has made public an "immediate program to be achieved when the party is returned to power."

This includes nationalization of the Bank of England, but not the joint-stock banks; nationalization of the coal industry; co-ordination, but not nationalization, of transport by road, rail, air and coastwise shipping; public ownership of the electricity and gas supply industries, and control of land in the public interest, the small occupier, however, being assured that he will be left in undisputed possession of the home hundreds of thousands of him have bought through the building societies.

The News-Chronicle, which supports the Popular Front scheme, a union of all opposition parties for the purpose of overthrowing the National government, gives the program its Liberal blessing but points out that "having definitely rejected the proposal for a Popular Front, Labor now proceeds to take action which will make the Popular Front possible. It was on the basis of a definite and limited program," it continues, "that both in France and Spain the Popular Front came into being. There is no reason why the same results should not follow here."

The Spanish parallel does not strike one as being particularly well-chosen or happy.

Another Donation For Coles Family

Another gift from the Ladies' Aid of St. Matthews Lutheran Church of Stony Plain has been received by Rev. H. A. Boettcher for the Jim Coles family, Middletown district farmers, who were recently burned out. This time it is groceries and clothing that the ladies have got together, and a box of each has been sent out.

A former gift sent in consisted of a cash donation from the same source.

LEGAL BATTLE OVER CLAIMS

A legal fight over valuable gold claims situated at Yellowknife will be the principal case before Mr. Justice W. C. Ives when supreme civil court sittings opens on Tuesday. The action is brought by Edward G. Hirkmont and Roy Caskey, Yellowknife hotel keepers, against Gordon Latham, Edmonton prospector.

It is claimed by the plaintiffs they staked Latham and Tom Payne, northern prospector, to seek gold-bearing lands in the Yellowknife district and that Latham failed to recognize a half interest claim assigned to the plaintiffs in return for the staking. The existence of any agreement regarding the assignment of interest in claims staked is denied by the defendant.

Other cases listed are three decrees absolute and four decrees nisi of divorce.

The funeral service of Mary Hannah Le Vitt, widow of the late John Le Vitt, of 11937 81 St., who passed away in an Edmonton hospital on March 22, at the age of 76 years, was held on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Howard and McBride's funeral chapel. Canon Pierce-Goulding officiated and interment took place in the Beechmount cemetery. The pallbearers were Messrs. A. Thomson, J. Smith, W. A. Grove, A. White, A. O'Hara, C. Sewers. Many beautiful floral tributes were received. She is survived by three sons, John of Edmonton, William Stanley of B.C. and Leonard of California, four daughters, Mrs. J. H. V. White and Mrs. A. K. Taylor, both of Edmonton, Mrs. T. Hebden of Mayerthorpe and Mrs. W. Pierce of Earlie, also 16 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren. Howard and McBride Funeral Service.

In the funeral notice for the late Mrs. Mary Kennedy Fleming the following names were inadvertently omitted: Mr. M. McLean, Mrs. C. Warwick, Mrs. D. Gow, Mrs. M. Nudo, Mrs. R. Abbott, Mrs. J. Rutherford, Mrs. K. McFadyen, Miss H. Murray, Mrs. A. McKay, Mrs. M. McLeod, Mrs. A. Moir.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. J. F. Fleming and family wish to thank their many friends and relatives for the beautiful floral tributes and kind expressions of sympathy received during their recent bereavement.

IN MEMORIAM

To assist readers in preparing "In Memoriam" notices the Edmonton Bulletin has prepared a booklet of some very appropriate verses. It is free upon request. Call, write or phone for a copy.

IN loving memory of Florence May Nicholson who fell asleep in Jesus, March 28th, 1934.

"Time speeds on, three years have passed,
Since death its gloom, its shadow, cast,
Within our home, where all seemed bright,
God took from us a shining light.
We miss that light and ever will,
Her vacant place there is none to fill.
Down here we mourn but not in vain,
For up in Heaven we will meet again."

—Ever remembered by Dad and Mother.

IN loving memory of James A. Campbell, who passed away March 28, 1934.

"He is gone but not forgotten,
As dawns another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of him are always near.
Days of sadness will come o'er us,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within the heart concealed."

—Ever remembered by his loving wife and family.

HAM RADIO CALL SAVES LIVES OF 16

Youthful Skipper Learned How To Send Distress Signal

BOSTON, March 27 — Sixteen shipwrecked mariners landed here in safety Friday because a youthful skipper of a little old Norwegian tramp spent hours off watch learning something about the science of wireless telegraphy.

He is Captain Bjarne Sverdrup, 30, a seafarer since 18, who until she sank almost beneath his feet last Tuesday, was master of the 38-year-old freighter Bjerkli.

RAGGED DOTS

Captain Sverdrup modestly admitted, coming up the harbor yesterday on a coast guard cutter, he tapped out the ragged dots and dashes of a distress call which diverted a dozen liners and freighters from their courses to seek the Bjerkli as she foundered in a gale 650 miles east of Boston.

Crack operators of other vessels who heard his uncertain signals, described them as "amateurish." But Captain Sverdrup brought the cutter alongside a few hours before the Bjerkli foundered.

SAVED CREW

"While I was third officer on another ship," he explained, "the operator told me I should learn something about radio just in case I found myself on a ship sometime where the operator was sick or disabled.

"It took me six months to learn what I know about it. Well we didn't have any operator on the Bjerkli."

Hammer Bandit Is Put To Flight

LONDON, Ont., March 27.—An attempt by a bandit wielding a hammer to rob Joseph Quigley, middle-aged grocer, in his small store here last night, failed when the shopkeeper, blood pouring from a deep wound behind his ear, put his attacker to flight with a butcher knife.

Struck on the head with a hammer as he turned his back on the man he supposed to be a customer, the grocer swung around and chased the bandit into the street.

Farm Hand Must Face Murder Count

RUSSELL, Man., March 27.—Peter Rebela, 36, is committed for trial at the autumn assize in Minnedosa, Man., for the slaying of Mike Rurak, 50 year old farmer of this district, 225 miles west of Winnipeg.

Rurak was found beaten to death at his farm March 12 by neighbors who answered Mrs. Rurak's call for help. Rebela was employed on the Rurak farm.

The Sahara desert is spreading southward at the rate of a half mile a year.

Canuck Warships In Dockyard

The reconditioned British destroyer H.M.C.S. Fraser and H.M.C.S. St. Laurent, pictured in the Chatham, England, dockyard just before they left for the West Indies to join the Atlantic fleet in spring manoeuvres. They will join the Canadian navy following the "war games." The ships formerly were the H.M.S. Crescent and H.M.S. Cygnet. They will replace two ships ready for the scrap heap.

German Entrants For Priesthood Must First Labor

BERLIN, March 27—A decree obligating all candidates for the Catholic priesthood to serve in German labor battalions before starting their theological studies was issued today by the education ministry.

The measure also ruled prospective priests must first serve regular military conscription terms unless a "competent" bishop certifies they have been admitted to theological academics.

International trade began prior to 2000 B.C. according to evidence found in the ruins of the Babylonian city of Kish.

Good-Will Agent Of Alberta Speaks

RED DEER, March 27—Red Deer Rotarians at their weekly luncheon heard an interesting address by Mrs. M. M. Speedie, of Red Deer, on "Canada's National Parks." Mrs. Speedie had recently returned from a trip to California, where she did some missionary work in advertising the tourist attractions of Alberta.

There would be a large increase in the number of visitors from the south if proper publicity were used and roads were better here, according to the speaker. Mrs. Speedie showed slides of Waterton, Glacier, Yoho, Kootenay, Banff and Jasper Parks. Members of the Red Deer Quota Club were guests for the meeting.

ICE ON WINGS BLAMED FOR AIR TRAGEDY

Twisted Fuselage of Death Plane Burned By Workmen

PITTSBURGH, March 27.—Two separate investigations today attributed crash of the Transcontinental and Western Airlines plane in which 13 persons were killed to formation of ice on the air liner's control equipment.

While aeronautical inspectors searched through the wreckage of the giant transport that nosed into a corn field, officials of TWA said ice had formed on the ailerons and sent the plane out of control.

ICE ON WINGS

Dr. John J. McLean, director of the Allegheny county airport where the plane had attempted to land shortly before the crash, said the disaster was caused by ice collecting on the wings.

Workmen burned the twisted fuselage of the plane after federal investigators announced they had completed their inspection. The motors and instruments were preserved for further examination.

Company officials said only the ice would explain why Pilot F. L. Bohnet and 12 others crashing to their deaths a few minutes after he had received the airport and radioed that all was "Okay".

ARRIVED SAFELY

From debris of the demolished liner came additional support of the ice theory. Investigators reported they found a postcard on which one of the passengers, Miss Pauline Trask, a school teacher from Germantown, Pa., had written to a friend:

"Arrived safely—6:15 p.m.—pulling out of ice storm."

Deaf Mutes As Traffic Police Avoid Debates

LONDON, March 27. — Charity didn't prompt Bucharest authorities in hiring deaf mutes for traffic police duty, according to a writer in The Observer.

It was simply the necessity of putting an end to long and heated street debates between constable and offending motorists.

These arguments often degenerated into fisticuffs and several times a day the flow of vehicles on the narrow, busy streets of Rumania's capital was clogged, thanks to the loquaciousness and pugnacity of the traffic policeman.

Now the deaf mute constable merely takes down in the dignified manner the number of the trespasser and the incident is closed—or almost.

Eight Ounce Babe Lived 18 Hours

NEW YORK, March 27—Weighing a scant eight ounces, an infant boy died last night after 18 hours of life and defiance of all available authenticated medical records.

He was prematurely born by five months. His chances of surviving, medical authorities agreed, were "little, if nothing." His head was the size of a small apple.

Cape Race In Shipping Menace

HALIFAX, March 27.—Field ice and bergs are prevalent off Cape Race, Nfld., the constituard cutter Mendota reported when she docked here after ice patrol duty. Ice in steamer lanes 'E' and 'F' menaces navigation from Canadian ports of-ficers said.

ROME PRESS IS IRATE AT LONDON TALK

Attack on Ethiopian Massacre Hits Italian Soft Spot

ROME, March 27.—The press today attacked the British government for "tolerating if not authorizing" the criticism of Italy in the House of Commons.

Tribuna demanded: "What are the true sentiments of England toward Italy, which until it is proved otherwise is a nation linked to the British Empire by the recent gentlemen's agreement?"

The paper admitted the conduct of a foreign nation might be criticized freely in Great Britain and even the entire world, but declared it was "inconceivable that a representative of the government should thus countenance the provocations of the Labor members' injurious spew against Italy."

It criticized Viscount Cranborne, foreign under-secretary, for not denouncing attacks on Italy's "Ethiopian massacre" and intervention in Spain.

SPAIN'S GOOD FRIDAY FETED AS WAR RAGES

Churches Fill — Beshawled Women Wait on Food Lines

By GEORGE C. JORDAN
Associated Press Foreign Staff

MADRID, March 26.—Good Friday in government Spain—

April 3, 1931—Alfonso is King, by the grace of 11 short days.

In street promenade, senoritas tread the Gran Via and the other main thoroughfares, through the Puerta Del Sol, past the statue of Don Quixote. Black mantillas fall in sombre folds from their high combs. Their escorts wore their finest clothes. The churches fill.

Eleven days later, on April 14, 1931, Alfonso fled the country on a cruiser; a Republic was proclaimed.

For five years more, in the days of Republic, the Good Friday customs continued, somewhat modified. Most of the principal observances were confined to the churches.

THEN WAR STRIKES

Then: July 18, 1936, and civil war. Spain is afire.

Good Friday, March 26, 1937—Soldiers, grimy, khaki-clad, on leave throng the Gran Via's bars. They down coffee, cognac, beer, breathing deep in the respite from war.

Beshawled women and children stand patiently in food lines or jostle each other in shopping crowds in the narrow, occasional passages between piles of shell-made debris.

Guards stand at barricades in the suburbs.

SHELLS WHINE OVER

An early morning shell whines into the Gran Via. There is a dull detonation and then quiet, the strange and treacherous peace of a city of siege.

Usual Easter week services in the capital were conspicuously absent. War has nearly eliminated traditional religious observances.

With the exception of quiet services in the new protestant churches still open there was little to indicate this is Easter week.

CO-WORKER WITH NIGHTINGALE IS VICTIM OF FIRE

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27. —Mrs. Luella Papper, deputy coroner, said today flames which apparently started from an overturned lamp had burned to death "Mother" Minerva Hartman, 104-year-old nursing veteran of three wars.

Mrs. Hartman, who had claimed she served with Florence Nightingale in Crimea, died in fire which destroyed her odd little home on stilts last night.

Little was known of the woman except her career as a nurse in the Indian, civil and Spanish American wars. She claimed Miss Nightingale, founder of modern nursing, was a close friend.

Flying Midwife Car Aids Mothers

BIRMINGHAM, March 27.—In an effort to reduce maternal mortality rate, Birmingham maternity hospital has introduced a "flying squad."

A car, equipped with every possible facility for dealing with obstetrical emergencies at the patient's home, and staffed by a driver, a nurse and a trained midwife is read at a moment's notice to rush to any part of the city.

Wages Shocking, Declares Minister

WINDSOR, Ont., March 27.—While a government official today sought settlement of the eight-day Consolidated Tobacco Company strike at Kingsville, 25 miles east of here, Hon. David Croll, Ontario minister of welfare and labor termed wages paid by the company "shocking."

"These people have an honest complaint," Mr. Croll said.

Sea-lions are so named because of the lion-like mane possessed by male species.

Commencing Thursday, April 1st,
THE STORE WILL GO ON SUMMER HOURS
Opening at 8:30 a.m., Closing at 5:30 p.m.

MORE ABOUT EATON'S

Coming to the Fashion Show staged by the Very Youngest Crowd? It's to be Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, you know. Judging by the applause that greeted the wee flower girl in the grown-up show — and by last year's showings of the children's togs—it should be no small success. If you're the parent of a two - to - sixer, or have a daughter who's even as TERRIBLY old as thirteen, we predict you'll enjoy this — a lot.

Princess and Peasant . . .

Perhaps we should have said it 'tother way round . . . for the wee girl's playtime frocks have gone peasant — while for parties they're as fine as any little Princess'. Little coats are on fitted Princess lines, too . . . even the sturdy tweed numbers. And of course the honest - and - truly dress - up dresses have the excited little models in fair dithers of delight.

Beginner's Luck . . .

Everybody knows that shoes for bright and early walkers set the pace for later life. And all sorts of attention has been given the shoes that the little models wear in the Show. Fitted by X-ray in all — just as when Dads and Mothers buy, and want to SEE the fit of their footgear.

Hurlbut—that reliable firm — makes many of the little slippers and oxfords. Others are the "Mickey Mouse" and "Peter Rabbit" shoes that children lispingly demand. Some in black or brown calf, or in the leather the trade calls "elk" — and others a-gleam in patent.

Not Among Those Present . . .

—but certainly rating headline attention when the Younger Crowd is being mentioned — are the togs the Boys' Department is showing for lads in their 'teens. Of course, the fellows that go for these swanky-looking tweeds, Harris-like in rough finish — or for those new striped worsteds—would scarcely like to be grouped in the same Crowd as the "youngsters." Our error, chaps—but we certainly don't need an apology for asking you to see the new line-up of suits and topcoats for your Spring stepping-out.

Mothers Out-of-Town . . .

Who would like assistance in shopping — be it for everyday overalls for the youngsters, or these little outfits that are in the Show—are invited to write. We may not know the answers, but we'll certainly find out for you!

The Fashionizer

A HAPPY EASTER TO YOU!

Parade of Children's Wear

Our Children's Wear Department becomes a mecca of excitement at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. That's when the parade of newest Spring styles for the wee girls, boys and their older sisters commences. One by one demure little models will wear coats, suits, school frocks, dressy frocks . . . included are imported print and Shirley Temple frocks. And the shoes that will parade with these ensembles bear famous names: Mickey Mouse, Peter Rabbit, Hurlbut. Style comments will be made by The Fashionizer.

'Duncan' Glassware

Glance through the recent editions of "Better Homes and Gardens," "The American Home," "House Beautiful" and you'll find that smart tables are being set with "Duncan" glassware. For instance, there's more than one movie actress who uses it. Choose it crystal clear or in a delicate blue shade . . . plain, rippled or blistered. Included are relish dishes, bon bons, cake plates, vases, flower bowls, ash trays, fruit bowls and sandwich plates. PIECE.

BADGERS

ARE KNOWN IN BOTH THE OLD AND NEW WORLDS, BUT THEIR NUMBERS HAVE BEEN GREATLY REDUCED OVER MOST OF THEIR NATIVE TERRITORY.

UNSEEN BADGER HOLES ARE A CONSTANT THREAT TO HORSEBACK RIDERS OF THE PLAINS.

THE ANIMAL IS KNOWN THE WORLD OVER AS A FIGHTER/ IT NEVER SURRENDERS, NO MATTER HOW GREAT THE ODDS. IT CAN HANDLE TWICE ITS WEIGHT IN WILD CATS, COYOTES, OR DOGS.

IT IS A HOPELESS TASK TO ATTEMPT TO DIG OUT A BADGER/ THE ANIMAL CAN BURROW FASTER THAN A MAN CAN DIG WITH A SHOVEL.

THEY THRIVE BEST IN THE GRASSY PLAINS COUNTRY, WHERE GOPHERS, MICE, GROUND-SQUIRRELS, AND PRAIRIE DOGS ARE PLENTIFUL.

AT NIGHT, THE BADGER GOES IN SEARCH OF FOOD/ WITH ITS POWERFUL CLAWS, IT QUICKLY DIGS INTO THE BURROWS OF SMALL ANIMALS, AND DINES ON THE OCCUPANTS.

WHEN WINTER COMES, BADGERS OF THE COLDER COUNTRY GO INTO THEIR DENS, AND SLEEP UNTIL SPRING... LIVING ENTIRELY ON THEIR OWN BODY FAT.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

By Blosser

GEE, PUG, WHERE'D YA GET THE BLACK EYE?

I GOT IT FROM OSSIE PLETZENBAUM... ME AN' HIM HAD A FIGHT IN A DARK ALLEY!

BUT I THOUGHT YOU LIKED OSSIE!

I DO! BUT IT WAS DARK IN TH' ALLEY, AN' I THOUGHT HE WAS SOMEBODY ELSE!

I HAD AN ARGUMENT AT SCHOOL TODAY WITH A KID NAMED PORKY... I ASKED HIM TO MEET ME IN TH' ALLEY! THEN I BUMPED INTO OSSIE!

PUG TOLD ME HE THOUGHT YOU WERE PORKY!

YEAH, AN' I THOUGHT HE WAS LEFTY CUTLER.... BESIDES IT WAS AWFUL DARK IN THE ALLEY!

WERE YOU SUPPOSED TO FIGHT LEFTY THIS AFTERNOON?

YEAH, AN' PUG WAS SUPPOSED TO FIGHT PORKY! BUT I GUESS THEY RAN OUT ON US!!

I KNEW I COULD LICK LEFTY.... THAT'S WHY I CHALLENGED HIM! AN' I GUESS PUG FIGURED HE COULD TAKE PORKY!

BUT NEITHER ONE OF THOSE GUYS SHOWED UP! AN' WHEN I SPOTTED PUG, I THOUGHT HE WAS LEFTY..., AN' WHEN PUG SPOTTED ME HE THOUGHT I WAS PORKY!!

WITHOUT ASKIN' ANY QUESTIONS WE TOOK POKES AT EACH OTHER, AN' IT WASN'T UNTIL TEN MINUTES LATER THAT WE DISCOVERED EACH OF US WAS MISTAKEN!

GEE, OSSIE... YOU KINDA LOOK LIKE YOU WERE MORE MISTAKEN THAN PUG WAS!!
